SENATOR CALLS RELIEF SYMBOL OF HUGE FAILURE

Says Billions Fail to Cut Jobless.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The administration's 250 million dollar supplemental relief appropriation bill was described by Senator Josiah W. Bailey [D., N. C.] in the senate today as a symbol of failure, and a warning that spending does not employ the unemployed.

Senator Bailey cited President Roosevelt's estimate that 3 million persons had become unemployed in the last three months and estimates of the Works Progress administration that unemployment has increased from 8 to 11 millions since Nov. 1.

That is the present picture, he said, after the spending of 9 billion 10 million dollars for relief and work relief since the appropriation of 4 billion 880 million dollars in 1935 in order that the federal government might "quit this business of relief."

National Debt Goes Up.

"The national debt is 38 billion dollars, and it won't be paid for 75 years," Senator Bailey declared. "If all we can do is to reach our hands into an empty treasury and borrow more and more money from the banks, with the public debt going higher and higher and unemployment continuing to increase, we might as well go home."

The bill pending in the senate, which the house has passed, adds 50 million dollars to a total of $1,443,400,000 already made available to the Works Progress administration for the current fiscal year. It will make a total of $1,993,400,000 for the fiscal year, and before June 30 congress must make another relief appropriation for the next fiscal year, a billion or a billion and a half, as the president may determine.

Demands Local Spending.

Senator Bailey offered an amendment requiring local sponsors of WPA projects to put up 25 per cent of the cost, or else make a showing of insolvency. The same amendment was offered to the 1937 relief appropriation act by the late Senator Joseph T. Robinson, the Democratic leader, but the administration opposed it and the senate rejected it.

Senator Bailey argued that there should be no mad rush to obtain WPA projects, regardless of their usefulness or need, if the local communities had to put up 25 per cent.

"I think the people of a community who want a golf course, or a ski course, or a country club ought to build it themselves," he said. "In my state there was a federal project to index the records of a city, and there was another project to clean up a graveyard."

Reads from WPA Play.

Senator Bailey then caused much merriment in the senate by reading a sample of the type of work the WPA is doing—act 2, scene 4, of a WPA theater play depicting the passage of the Wagner housing bill in the senate.

The play, called "Living Newspaper," made a hero of Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.] and held up to scorn Senators Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], Charles O. Andrews [D., Fla.], and Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.].

"This is a contribution to the permanent literature of the ages," said Senator Bailey. "It prepares the way for senators, notably the junior senator from New York, to take the places of Hamlet, King Lear, and Shylock."

Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.] told Senator Bailey he did not agree with him, and then undertook to censure the senate for laughing at the product of a WPA enterprise intended, he said, to relieve suffering humanity.

LITTLE ZOOKS UPSET HOME, BUT CAN THEY HELP IT?

New Market, Pa., Feb. 22.—(AP)—There are three quarantine cards on the door of a rural home near here. "Measles," one reads. That is for Ruth Zook, 7 years old, and her sister Doris, 5.

"Chicken pox," says a second. That is for Ruth.

"Mumps," warns a third sign. It's for Eugene, 4 years old.

PERSHING SUFFERS SECOND RELAPSE; CONDITION IS GRAVE

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Gen. John J. Pershing, 77 years old, world war commander, suffered his second relapse in 12 hours late tonight, but physicians said they were optimistic regarding his chances to recover. He has a rheumatic ailment complicated by a heart condition.

Lieut. Col. S. U. Marrietta, army cardiac specialist, who flew here from San Antonio, Tex., and Dr. Roland Davison, Pershing's physician, said after an examination they were "not entirely satisfied with his heart."

Col. Marrietta planned to spend the night at the desert sanitarium, where the general was taken after he suffered a relapse early this afternoon. Dr. Davison asked for an army consultant when the general's condition became serious.

The physicians said Pershing was mentally alert and clear tonight, "although not as well as he was this afternoon," when he rallied.

The first turn for the worse came unexpectedly.

MOTORIST AND HIS MONEY GET LOST IN TRAFIC

Lucky? Louis Holland and his wife were on their way home to Ogden, Utah, yesterday in the new car they had bought in Detroit. And a green light beamed at Montrose and Kedzie avenues. But fortune scowled, and a red light flashed the instant they were across.

It stopped their neighbor, Marvin Seddon, who was following in his new car with every cent the automobile dealer had left him and the Hollands —$78.

When the Hollands looked back for Mr. Seddon, they couldn't see him. They circled the block and got lost. Mr. Seddon went on. The Hollands had a postal card with the address of Matthew Buol of 3478 Elston avenue, who used to live in Ogden. They hope Sidden will find them there.

A Youth, a Girl, a Bad Check, a Marmaduke

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

This story begins with the young fellow and the bad checks. Next you meet the cheerful fat man named Marmaduke. In addition there is a pretty girl and a mysterious hotel proprietor. Then comes the kind hearted taxicab driver and finally the shocking business on the dark side street. As you read on remember that it took the Englewood police two days to piece all this together and that as a result they are pretty tired.

The young man is named John Lemke, and it was last Thursday that he gave the bad check for $27.50 to John Sindinos, café proprietor at 5900 South Racine avenue. Some one at the New National hotel, 6128 South Halsted street, told Mr. Sindinos that the check was all right. But this was all wrong.

A Pistol Pointer.

On Saturday night, then, when Lemke walked into the café again, Mr. Sindinos pointed a large pistol at him. Lemke knew at once what the trouble was and said if he could use the phone all would soon be put to rights. Mr. Sindinos agreed to this, but kept the pistol pointed at Lemke.

Presently the door opened and in came the cheerful fat man. "I am Detective Marmaduke Atkinson of the Englewood police," he said. "I understand you have a check passer here."

Mr. Sindinos' eyes narrowed. "Who told YOU?" he demanded, swinging the pistol in an arc to include Marmaduke Atkinson, who appeared taken aback. "I want $27.50 or you both go to jail!"

Mr. Atkinson protested in vain that he usually worked with Robert McKee, a fellow detective at the Englewood station. Then he asked if he also might make a phone call. After a few minutes an attractive young woman walked in, looked disgustedly at John and Marmaduke, laid down $27.50, and the three departed.

Enter Detective McKee.

It was Monday morning that Detective McKee was having cakes and coffee at Mr. Sindinos' and heard about the episode. Considerably annoyed, he went to the New National hotel and arrested Lemke, Marmaduke, and the girl, who said she is Ethel Kennedy, 20 years old. Remembering that some one at the hotel had vouched for Lemke's check, McKee arrested Thomas Ahearn, the manager, and took him along, too.

At the Englewood station the prisoners finally were persuaded to talk about themselves. As a result ten merchants signed complaints charging Lemke and the girl with check frauds. Marmaduke will be charged with impersonating a policeman. Ahearn is held on an open charge. The prisoners now insisted they had told all, except possibly the fake taxicab holdup, which was another story.

In a short time then the little circle was joined by Fred Hauk, 6336 Drexel avenue, the cab driver. He said it was indeed true that when Miss Kennedy had been unable to pay a cab bill he had conceived the idea of a faked $20 holdup, thus making up the deficit and netting a few dollars besides. Miss Kennedy's boy friend [Lemke] was to tap him gently on the head, Hauk said, so the holdup would appear genuine.

The Out of Sorts Mr. Lemke.

"I gave Miss Kennedy $3 as her share in addition to canceling the unpaid cab bill. Mr. Lemke, however, appeared out of sorts when this was explained and I thought he looked at me jealously. But I drove to a side street and said, 'Now tap me, but remember—gently.'

"Just then I saw all the stars in kingdom come and when I woke up I had a knot the size of an egg, and it was an hour and a half later."

As the driver was led away Marmaduke Atkinson turned shocked eyes upon Lemke. "How could you be so crude?" he asked. "It is true that I am a steamfitter, but this really distresses me."

Washington Can't Believe George Threw $1 Away

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 22.—(AP)—George Washington of Omaha, who said he was a descendant of the first President's family, declared today he did not believe the story about his ancestor throwing a dollar across the Rappahannock river. "Those were almost as hard times as these and George wasn't throwing dollars across any old river," said Mr. Washington.

FLYERS' BOMBS DISABLE TWO OF REBELS' VESSELS

60 Shells Fired Into Town of Sagunto.

MADRID, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Spanish rebel warships and government planes engaged today in one of the most thrilling sea and air battles of the Spanish civil war. Two rebel warships were believed to have been disabled, the government announced. A French merchant vessel at the scene was damaged by a bomb.

The battle took place after four rebel warships shelled the eastern coastal cities of Valencia and Sagunto, inflicting heavy property damage, but no loss of life.

Sixty naval shells were hurled into Sagunto while three rebel bombing planes dropped fifty bombs on the city. The French freighter Prado, nearby, was struck and shells fell close to another French ship, the Gaulois.

Planes Fight Off Attackers.

Three squadrons of government planes took to the air to meet the attack. One plane swooped low to drop bombs. Thick columns of smoke rose from one warship which the commander of the Prado said was the Almirante Cervera.

Some hours later government planes scouting the sea for raiders encountered two ships, one towing the other, twenty-five miles east of Valencia toward the Columbretes Islands.

These ships were rebombed and the towing vessel apparently struck when a column of smoke rose from the ship. The government communique said it was believed the bomb dropped inside the ship's funnel.

A French destroyer rushed to the assistance of the Prado, which only a month ago figured in another Mediterranean incident when stopped by a Spanish warship off Palamos and rescued by a French destroyer.

Rebels Masters of Teruel.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HENDAYE, France, [At the Spanish Frontier], Feb. 22.—Teruel, capital of the southernmost province in the medieval kingdom of Aragon, was in Spanish rebel hands again today after two months in the possession of the loyalists.

The rebel encirclement of the city, which once had 12,000 residents, but now is deserted and in ruins, was completed after a column of perhaps 1,000 loyalist soldiers had fought their way out last night. Rebels said many of this rear guard were killed or taken prisoners.

The loyalists, under a covering artillery fire, retreated nine miles to the southeast, to Puerto Escandon on the main highway to Sagunto—a port on the Mediterranean just north of Valencia.

Set For Drive to Sea.

The rebels declared in dispatches reaching the frontier that they would pursue their advantage with a drive to the sea to split Valencia from Barcelona and disrupt communications of the two cities with Madrid.

Loyalist dispatches declared that Puerto Escandon is an impregnable defense point and that their troops had fallen back there because from that point they had parried all rebel thrusts toward the sea since the Spanish civil war began in July, 1936.

Teruel was doomed last Saturday when rebel troops captured positions on all sides of the city except at Mansueto hill and the road to the southeast. During Sunday and Monday the city and the troops within it were subjected to terrific artillery fire and plane bombardment.

Rebels Gain New Territory.

The loyalists replied only with machine guns, but began exploding the mines they had packed in cellars and underground tunnels of the city —completing the destruction that the rebels began when they were driven from the city Dec. 21.

The loyalists today had lost all they gained in the December drive and other territory, too, in the Alfambra valley to the north, but declared the Teruel campaign was not a failure because it had diverted Gen. Francisco Franco's attention from other sectors of the Spanish front.

Both sides admitted that the campaign was one of the most costly of the war in men killed and wounded. Rebels declared the loyalists' casualties must have totaled 60,000.

EUROPEAN SHIFTS PUSH U. S. TOWARD ISOLATION POLICY

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Repercussions in Washington of the sensational political events of the last two days in Europe foreshadow a profound effect upon American policies.

It already is apparent that President Roosevelt's proposal to quarantine aggressor nations has been dealt a mortal blow by the decision of the British government to come to terms with Dictator Mussolini of Italy.

With the internationalism of Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull in eclipse, an isolationist policy has received a tremendous impetus. On Capitol hill the reaction to the events in Europe is on the whole one of solicitude to keep this country out of foreign entanglements and broils and to make it strong enough to repel single handed any possible enemies from our shores.

Big Navy Program Boosted.

As a result the administration's big navy program has received a sudden, tremendous boost. The prospects are that the billion dollar navy increase bill will go through congress virtually intact without substantial opposition.

Beginning with his Chicago speech last fall in which he proposed an international quarantine of treaty breaking nations, Mr. Roosevelt has shaped his foreign policy in the direction of joint or common action by the United States, Great Britain, France and other democracies against the dictator countries. He was ready at all times to align the United States with the league of nations in coercing Japan and other treaty breaking nations.

A few weeks ago, it transpires, he sought to induce the American Federation of Labor to make a public declaration against world dictatorships. His object was to align American organized labor with the British trade unions, whose condemnation of dictatorships was voiced in a speech by Sir Walter Citrine, British trade unionist.

Labor Turns Cold Shoulder.

The President broached this proposal at a secret White House conference attended by William Green, president, and Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor; George Harrison, president of the Railway Clerks, and Robert Watt, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor.

These labor leaders went to the White House expecting to be consulted on the business recession and other domestic questions. Instead the President sought their views on foreign policies and rearmament. They were greatly surprised when they found he was chiefly interested in getting them to blaze away at the dictators. The labor leaders refused to go along with the President on this proposition.

Hopes for U. S. Aid Dashed.

If the British and French governments expected Mr. Roosevelt to swing America to their support in their clash with Chancellor Adolf

CHAMBERLAIN'S PLANS GET O. K. IN PARLIAMENT

Premier Attacked by Eden's Friends.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The house of commons tonight placed its stamp of approval on Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and a new British policy of seeking the good will of dictators. It rejected a motion by the Labor opposition to censure the prime minister's action in discarding Anthony Eden, vigorous foe of Adolf Hitler of Germany and Benito Mussolini of Italy, as his foreign secretary.

Neville Chamberlain. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

The vote was 330 to 168.

Only one member of the dominant Conservative party voted against Chamberlain. He was Vyvyan Adams. However, Eden, Winston Churchill, veteran statesman, and almost twenty other Conservatives declined to cast ballots.

The voting followed a tumultuous session in which the prime minister was bitterly attacked as he defended himself for making friendly gestures to Italy and Germany.

Opposition Jeers Premier.

A furious din of opposition jeers and interruptions plagued Chamberlain. Frequently he was forced to halt his address and await a chance to continue while the speaker vainly attempted to keep order.

David Lloyd George, wartime prime minister, accused Chamberlain of "going over Eden's head" in dealing with Italy. This charge brought on demands for Chamberlain to resign.

Lloyd George disclosed that the prime minister had withheld from Eden and the cabinet a telegram which the Italian ambassador to London, Count Dino Grandi, had received Sunday morning.

Italy Accepts British Plan.

The communication revealed Italy's acceptance of a British plan for the withdrawal of "volunteers" from the Spanish civil war so as to hasten Anglo-Italian negotiations. It was not delivered formally until Monday, the day after Eden's resignation.

Lloyd George let loose a vicious attack against most members of the government.

He pinned the label of "runaway horse" on Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary and former foreign minister.

"We have been beaten by dictators," he cried. "A man as innocent as Chamberlain is only fit for a stained glass window. You've got rid of the only man who would stand up to the dictators."

Lloyd George Charges Plot.

"It's exactly what they wanted," he said. "The prime minister knew this document was in existence and never took the trouble to secure it and Grandi never took the trouble to deliver it—because he wanted to get rid of the foreign secretary. I never heard of such conduct."

He explained that Grandi had informed him of the telegram's "favorable" contents on Sunday and that he immediately told the cabinet about it.

Eden Enters Debate.

Eden then leaped to his feet. He said that up to the time of his resignation he had "received no official intimation whatever from the Italian government in the sense of which the prime minister has just spoken."

Churchill joined the attack on Chamberlain.

"Eden was absolutely right in resigning," he said. "The prime minister must now take the responsibility for whatever happens."

Churchill said Mussolini's position is weak and that the dictator is worried about his nation's internal condition.

"It is sometimes wise to let natural processes work and for crimes and follies to be paid in coin of their own mint," he added. "It is much less easy to see why we should hurry so eagerly to the rescue.

"This has been a good week for dictators, one of the best they ever had. The German dictator [Hitler] laid his heavy hand on a small but historic country [Austria]. The Italian dictator carried his vendetta to a successful conclusion against Mr. Eden.

"Mussolini has won again. The might, majesty, and power of the British empire has not been able to secure success of the cause which we entrusted to the late foreign secretary by the general will of parliament.

Sees "Havoc" in U. S.

"Havoc has resulted in the United States from these events. Millions of people there who are our enemies have been armed with the means to mock the sincerity of British idealism.

"American isolationists now can represent that we are all of us continental people, tarred with the same brush, and that there is nothing to choose between us.

"That is propaganda which is now being given enormous impulse while our friends and those who steadily are working for closer coöperation of the two countries on parallel lines are downcast, baffled, and bewildered."

The high points of Chamberlain's defense were a scathing attack on the league of nations and a blunt statement that Eden's idea of making the Italians carry out last year's "gentleman's agreement" before opening new talks was "humbug."

Puts Question to Eden.

Prefacing his speech with the announcement that he would "endeavor to be scrupulously fair" to Eden, Chamberlain said that if Eden demanded the withdrawal of "Italian volunteers from Spain and the cessation of anti-British propaganda before negotiating why does he not ask that Italy come out of Ethiopia, too?"

"The suggestion that we enter into conversations provided these things are done first is humbug," the prime minister said.

It was more than a minute before he could make himself heard above a roar of protest to say: "No nation with any self-respect could accept conditions of that kind."

Retorts to Critics.

"I wish to say here in the presence of Mr. Eden that I have no recollection that at any time he ever said to me that the question of international good faith constituted an embargo on conversations with either Italy or Germany."

Eden yesterday told parliment he objected to the Italian conversations because of "the attitude of the Italian government to international problems in general."

Chamberlain stressed that it was essential to talk friendship with Italy at once.

"There may come a time when some one who occupies the position I hold today will have to face again the awful responsibility of answering this question—will you plunge your country into war?" he said.

Chamberlain Points to Duty.

"I pray that this responsibility will not fall on me, but does not an equally heavy responsibility lie on a man who feels, as I do, that if we do not take action we may presently be faced with that frightful question and who feels that by taking action we shall do something to avert it?

"I would be failing in my duty if I failed to take that action now—as I have done!"

Of the league Chamberlain said: "We must not try to delude ourselves and still more must not try to delude the small and weak nations that they will be protected by the league against aggression. We know nothing of the kind can be expected.

"Today you will not find anywhere in the league any conviction that collective security can be provided by the league."

Calls Sanctions Impossible.

Sanctions are impossible, he declared. He advised that the league "throw off shams, throw off pretenses which every one sees through and come out with a declaration of what it is prepared to do and can do as a moral force and as a focus for public opinion. It might draw to itself some of those who have lost faith in it in the past."

Arthur Greenwood, Laborite, who presented the motion of censure, spared no words in his criticism of Chamberlain's action.

"The fate of the world rests in the trembling hands of the prime minister," he said, adding that Eden's resignation was considered a personal triumph by dictators.

He argued that the government was elected on a basis of collective security but that now it has "scuttled to the back door of a dictatorship state to make a deal behind the backs of other friendly countries."

Says Premier Shocked World.

Greenwood said that recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia "would really hamstring the President of the United States and drive him completely into a policy of isolation."

Anglo-Italian talks will begin next week, it was announced. That would give the earl of Perth, British ambassador to Rome, time to get instructions in London and return to Rome. The earl will leave Rome for London tomorrow. He had an interview with Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, today.

PAPER SEIZED BY ITALY FOR TAKING A SLY DIG AT EDEN

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

ROME, Feb. 22.—Italy's desire to reach an understanding with Great Britain was reflected today in a complete change in the tone of the press. Even Il Tevere, which has always distinguished itself for its attacks upon Britain, contained not a single abusive remark.

Regime Fascista of Cremona, edited by the Fascist leader Roberto Farinacci, was seized by the authorities for poking fun at Anthony Eden, former British foreign secretary. The newspaper said that Eden deserved Italy's gratitude because he was directly responsible for the highly favorable position in which Fascism found itself today in all parts of the world.

In all other newspapers there was still complete lack of editorial reference to the British cabinet crisis.

CANADIAN PAPER FLAYS POLICY OF BRITISH PREMIER

Montreal Star [Conservative]: "The presumption is that Premier Chamberlain will now go ahead and strike a bargain with the successful burglars. It is no use pretending the British people anywhere will like this."

Toronto Telegram [Conservative]: "It would be wise to refrain from rushing into discussion of a situation the essential facts of which are known only to the chief actors."

Toronto Globe and Mail [Independent Liberal]: "We can only trust to the wisdom and knowledge of those in authority even though they are but human."

FRANCE WAVERS; MAY ALSO SEEK PEACE WITH DUCE

Foreign Minister Delbos Sets Two Conditions.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos said tonight that the French government, faced with a choice between isolation in Europe or adopting a course parallel to England's, might enter into negotiations with Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Delbos, addressing the chamber of deputies foreign affairs committee after the French cabinet had approved a five year plan to strengthen national defenses, said the government might seek reconciliation with Italy on two conditions:

FIRST—That the league of nations must recognize Italian sovereignty in Ethiopia before France would take such action.

SECOND—That Italy retire its troops from Spain.

Similar to British Terms.

These were about the same conditions Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain specified for England's reconciliation with Italy.

The foreign affairs committee issued a statement quoting Delbos as saying:

"Franco-British solidarity must remain just as close and just as confident as in the past."

At the same time Delbos assured left wing elements that the "government, faithful to our alliances and to the league of nations covenant, does not renounce in any way the work of restoring collective security.

"It hopes that public opinion will not give way to inconsidered nervousness and that the country understands the necessity for discipline and union."

Delbos Reassures Reds.

In reply to communist members of the committee who expressed fear that Chamberlain meant to conclude an accord among France, Great Britain, Germany, and Italy—leaving soviet Russia out in the cold—Delbos said he "understood" that any accord would be "open to all."

The French cabinet's five year defense plan provides for strengthening the air corps and navy. The ministers voted in favor of a bill submitted by Minister of National Defense and War Edouard Daladier to expend 12 billion francs [$394,800,000] for additional warships and fighting planes during the period.

This fund, which is supplementary to the regular national defense budget allotments totaling 22 billion francs [$724,000,000], will be obtained from public borrowing. It will be administered as an independent fund by a committee headed by Daladier.

After parliamentary approval borrowing was expected to begin immediately through the floating of a 2 billion franc [$65,000,000] loan.

The air corps will be given 1,200,000,000 francs [$39,480,000] to start construction of 1,000 planes. The navy will be alloted 800,000 francs [$25,320,000] to lay down two 35,000 ton battleships.

Of the 12,000,000,000 francs, the navy will get 6,000,000,000 francs during the five year period. A member of Minister of Navy William Bertrand's staf said the money would be used to lay down four additional 35,000 ton battleships which, with the two already under construction and the two to be laid down this year, would give France eight such warships.

Another important step to strengthen the national defense was taken when the cabinet approved reorganization of the superior air council, appointing Gen. Victor Vuillemin chief of the air force general staf. He will be directly under Minister of Air Guy Lachambre. Gen. Vuillemin, a noted world war flying officer, is 52 years old.

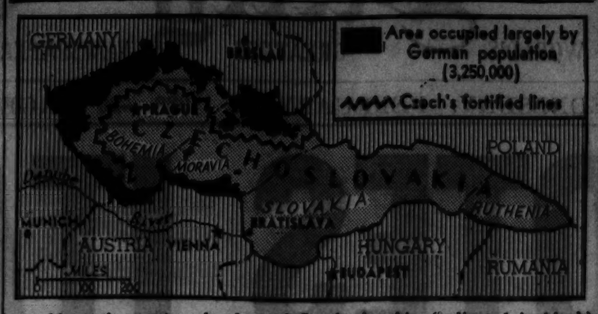
Czechs Ready to Fight Nazi Invasion



Along the western borders of Czechoslovakia (indicated in black) live 3,250,000 Germans who, it is alleged by the German Nazis, are persecuted by the Czech government. Hitler has announced his determination to secure "freedom" for these Germans. Czechoslovakia, preparing to fight a Nazi attack, has constructed along the inner edge of the German areas a line of fortifications (indicated by black jogged line). The Czechs have only light fortifications along the frontier of Austria, where Hitler recently secured for the Nazis a legal status.

CZECHS ANGERED AT THREAT GIVEN BY NAZI DEPUTY

Prague Fears Opening of Hitler's Drive.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 22.—Czechslovaks were indignant tonight over what they charged was a deliberate act of Nazi provocation in the Czech parliament here.

This act was a statement by Gustav May, a representative of the Sudeten German [Nazi] minority within Czechoslovakia's borders, in which he charged that the German minority was being persecuted and made a thinly veiled threat against the Czech government.

"We are sick and tired of being treated as mere objects of state policy," May said. "Go on persecuting us as you like. In the end you will have to repent it."

Fear Opening of Nazi Drive.

Czechs feared this might be the opening of the expected campaign to Nazify Czechoslovakia, which Reichsfuehrer Hitler openly threatened in his speech to the German reichstag in Berlin Sunday. There are 3,250,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia, the vast majority of which are followers of Konrad Henlein, Nazi leader. Hitler demands that these Germans be granted "autonomy."

The dangerous situation in which the Czechs are placed is perfectly clear to them, but their will is quite definitly to resist aggression by Germany, by force of arms if necessary.

Claim Fortifications Complete.

Czech military circles assert that the country's fortifications are now virtually complete. In event of an attack by Germany, the Sudeten area, where the majority of the German speaking population lives, would be abandoned as a no-man's land. The Czechoslovak "Maginot line" roughly parallels the language frontier.

The general staf reckons that even without allies the Czechs can hold their line about three months against Germany. Moreover, their definite assurances from France guarantee that violation of their frontier would automatically bring a French declaration of war against Germany, and finally, Czechoslovakia holds equally definite guarantees that Germany would be attacked by the soviet air fleet and that soviet planes would come to reinforce Czechoslovakia's in event of a Nazi attack.

The Czech frontier with Austria is only lightly fortified, since Austria has been regarded as a friend and a future ally. Should Austria's last defense against the Nazi flood collapse, the Czechs would take measures to protect this flank also.

HITLER WILL BLAME FOREIGN NATIONS FOR SLURS IN NEWSPAPERS

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The German press today said Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler has decided to hold foreign governments responsible for the good behavior of the press of their countries in all matters affecting Germany.

That is reported to be the meaning of the mysterious passage in Hitler's reichstag speech Sunday, in which after flaying certain rumors about the shakeup in the German government and army circulated in foreign capitals he announced:

"I am, therefore, no longer willing to tolerate without counteraction this unbridled method of continuous slander and insult to our country and our people. Henceforth we will answer and do that with Nazi thoroughness."

OCEAN PLANE OF YOUNG MUSSOLINI GIVEN TO BRAZIL

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 22.—Bruno Mussolini's plane, Ibrun, which he piloted here from Rome recently on a good will flight, was formally delivered to the Brazilian government today by Vicenzo Lojacano, Italian ambassador. Italy's gesture was a friendly act toward a sister Latin country, Lojacano said.

The other two planes in Mussolini's squadron are still here and it is believed Italy will try to sell them to the Brazilian government.

The official motive given for the flight was that it was to study the air routes from Rome to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires over which the new Rome-Buenos Aires air service will fly. Some quarters, however, linked the performance with the propaganda campaign Italy has been carrying on here.

BUDAPEST POLICE RAID NAZIS; 73 LEADERS JAILED

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Secret Nazi headquarters and meeting places were closed today by police making what was believed to be the first of a series of raids to suppress Hungarian Nazis. Authorities disclosed seventy-three Nazi leaders, including Maj. Francis Szalasy, had been arrested on charges of Nazi activity. They were accused of operating secretly under false names after a ministry of interior decree prohibited Nazi activity last April.

GERMANS EXPECT BRITAIN TO WINK AT NEW NAZI COUP

Hitler Ready for Drive on Czechoslovakia.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Nazis tonight expected an Anglo-German accord would follow on the heels of settlement of British and Italian differences in a move for pacification of Europe.

It was believed Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain would not allow Czechoslovakia, in whose direction German eyes have turned since Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler proclaimed protection of German minorities in central Europe, to be an obstacle to such an accord.

Feels Free to Use Pressure.

Germany thus was seen as feeling herself free to bring pressure upon the state which emerged as a republic at the end of the world war and which has almost 3,500,000 Germans in its population.

At least 80 per cent of the Germans there are regarded as pro-Nazi, with the percentage even greater in Bohemia—that part of Czechoslovakia bounded on three sides by Germany. In Bohemia there are 2,175,000 Germans, or about 33 per cent of the population.

Nazis were confident that by the time Hitler visited Premier Benito Mussolini in Rome next May the Sudeten Germans of Czechoslovakia would have much the same relation to Germany as Austria and the Free City of Danzig bear to the reich.

Expect Return of Colonies.

They also believed Germany again would possess the colonies she lost as the result of the world war.

An American who lives in Berlin and who is on close terms with the régime reported Robert Ley, Hitler's trade union commissioner, told him yesterday Germany expected to have all her former colonies back very soon if she would but hold out for them without compromise. Ley not only is head of the gigantic German labor front but also of the Nazi political organization.

Hitler was represented by him as certain that Chamberlain would be willing even to restore German colonies if thereby he could be assured the reich no longer would keep Europe in a state of tension.

Acts on Dictator's Plans.

Chamberlian, in his drive for negotiations with Italy over Anglo-Italian differences, was said by Germans to appear to be acting according to the plan Hitler and Mussolini agreed upon between themselves for the pacification of Europe when they conferred last September in Berlin.

The corner stone of that plan was an amicable arrangement with Great Britain effected first by one of the "axis" powers and then the other.

ENMITY OF HITLER TO BE 'REPAID IN KIND,' RUSSIAN PAPER SAYS

MOSCOW, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Pravda, the official communist newspaper, replied to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's reichstag speech today with the announcement the soviet union fully reciprocated his hostility. Pravda said the speech's more emphatic points "confirmed that the policy of German Fascism more than ever tends toward new aggressions, seizure of colonies, incitement to world war, and further absorption and oppression of smaller and weaker states."

As for relations with Germany "the soviet country never imposed close relations on anybody, and in any case relations with Nazi Germany seem to it to be a dismal necessity." Hitler's enmity toward bolshevism would "be repaid in kind," the paper said. "We know how to assume a hostile attitude. We will give it no quarter."

Hitler said Russia was the only state with which Nazi Germany had no desire to coöperate.

ICKES CALLS ON BRITAIN TO DRAW CLOSER TO U. S.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—It behooves Democratic nations to prove that Democracy will provide greater economic security than Fascism or Bolshevism, secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes said today in an address broadcast to the greater part of the British empire.

The secretary, who said he spoke as an individual, not as a representative of this government, inaugurated a series of broadcasts from America to Britain, arranged by the British broadcasting company.

NAZIS OPEN DRIVE FOR AUSTRIA BY SASSY OBEDIENCE

Hope to Expel Regime by Ridiculing It.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Feb. 22.—Nazis demonstrated today how they hope to undermine the Austrian government's authority and to effect Nazi dictation of the country by a policy of what might be termed impertinent obedience.

In answer to a radio appeal by Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Nazi minister of interior, to work quietly within the framework of the Austrian laws and to refrain from noisy demonstrations for the time being, the Nazis called off big street demonstrations planned for tonight.

Nazi Youths Disobey Order.

A group of several hundred Nazi school boys, led by slightly older leaders, however, did attempt to march to the opera house in defiance of the government's ban.

Police who were guarding the center of the city attempted to disperse them. The Nazis adopted a policy of passive resistance, which forced the police to make a number of arrests. Those arrested were released later.

The remainder of the crowd good naturedly allowed the police to herd them away from the center of the city, but kept marching in a crowd, saluting, singing, and shouting the forbidden "Heil, Hitler," but always ceasing for a few moments when police ordered them to be quiet.

Police Are Embarrassed.

The demonstration finally was dispersed when it became apparent that the demonstrators were heading for the former Nazi Brown House, now the Fatherland Front district headquarters. Three riot cars full of police dashed up. They were greeted with cries of "Heil, Schuschnigg," probably heard for the first time in the mouths of Austrian Nazis, and the crowd quietly dispersed.

The police obviously were embarrassed by these tactics, as well as by the extreme youth of the demonstrators. They were not sure whether they ought to be tough or not.

Several smaller groups of Nazis successfully used the same tactics at various points in the city, and it seems likely that they will continue to apply them unless Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg works out some counter-strategy which will avoid the twin pitfalls of harshness and ridiculousness.

Orders Four Weeks of Peace.

Seyss-Inquart's speech, which was rebroadcast several times, was interesting. In addressing the country he used a German expression, "Volksgenossen," meaning members of the German blood brotherhood—the first time the expression ever was used by an Austrian minister.

He appealed to the Austrian Nazis to suspend street demonstrations for the next four weeks, causing many to wonder what change would occur after that. It seems likely, therefore, that no violent disturbances will take place in Austria in the near future, but it was clear that a clever campaign to discredit Schuschnigg's authority by making the government look foolish is under way.

One of the government's answers to this campaign was a veiled appeal to former socialists and workmen generally to rally to the support of Schuschnigg so as to maintain Austria's independence. Petitions were drawn up under official direction expressing the determination of workers to fight to the end for a free Austria. These petitions were posted in all union headquarters. Workers were urged to sign them and the results of this unofficial plebiscite will be published.

Carol Prepares Self to Be Dictator; Deny He Was Slain

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 22.—(AP)—King Carol of Rumania, who promulgated a new constitution Sunday placing greater powers in his own hands, received several cabinet members today to inform himself about details of the economic and agricultural life of the country. Foreign reports that he had been attacked or assassinated were described as fantastic inventions by persons close to the monarch. Assurances were given that he was in the best of health.

Individual Freedom in Home for Women

LADIES PRESERVE INDIVIDUALITY IN OLD FOLKS' HOME

Companionship, Freedom and Privacy Prized.

Chicago Homes

Chicago has many charitable and semi-charitable institutions which provide homes for unfortunates and aged persons. Many of the organizations which operate these homes are of admirable character, though their work is little known to the public at large. It is the purpose of The Tribune, through articles to be published from time to time, to acquaint its readers with the workings of these institutions. This is the first of the series.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

These are the reasons one elderly lady considers herself lucky to have been accepted for life membership at the Old People's home of Chicago.

"And," she added, adjusting a pearl earring, "we're treated like individuals. We buy our own clothing, so of course we wear what we like. We go where we please, have guests when we wish, and best of all, we have no worries."

Choose to Stay in Neighborhood.

These, then, are the considerations that have led 700 women in the last seventy years to forego the quiet pastoral surroundings of various other homes for the aged and prefer to spend their last years in the neglected tenement neighborhood that crowds the 4700 block on Vincennes avenue.

For since the south side's bon-ton neighborhood gave way to ramshackle houses, overcrowded and uncared for, the old ladies have had frequent tests of their devotion to their home. Many, out for an evening stroll, have become familiar with the tactics of pickpockets and purse snatchers. Several have been struck by speeding automobiles, and left to lie on the streets

In consequence, the women have learned to clutch their belongings more firmly, and to look in both directions before they cross streets. The evening strolls go on.

Oldest of Its Kind in City.

The Old People's home is the oldest such institution in Chicago. It was founded in 1868 by a group of churchwomen of St. Paul's Universalist church, who established their first refuge for aged impoverished women at 39th street and Indiana avenue. Later the home was heavily endowed by James Patten, the wheat king, and several other Chicago philanthropists. Their one provision was that the beneficiaries should be allowed to feel as much independence and individuality as possible. In addition, said the patrons, the members must be encouraged to retain ther most important possession—self-respect.

Mrs. Natalie Duff, good humored director of the home, has learned how to fulfill the provisions of the bequest. She has a few simple rules that she believes do much to preserve personal integrity and independence.

Treated as Individuals.

Each member of her group has a private room, which she cleans and keeps in order herself. There is no inspection of its neatness. No attempt is made to weld the group of 148 women into one large family. They are individuals, and treated as such. If Mrs. Jones wishes to eat with her friends at their table, that is arranged. If she wishes to invite them to her room for afternoon tea or cards, she does. If she wears old lace and velvet gowns to breakfast—well, why shouldn't she?

There are no rules for coming and going, except that the old ladies are warned for their own good not to stay out too late. Mrs. Duff has found that some of them need this counsel.

"Times and old ladies," she says, "have changed. I remember thirty years ago when members of the home came here to die. Today's ladies come here to live. They are afraid of nothing but loneliness, and there is little chance for that."

Admission Fee Is $500.

Each woman pays $500 admission to the Old People's home, and whatever money she possesses in excess of that amount she turns over to the home's board of trustees. They open an account in her name in their trust department. From this money the member receives not more than $20 per month. There is no restriction as to how the money shall be spent, but it usually goes for clothing, marcel waves, and car fare.

If a member has no money beyond the initial fee she receives a small amount each month for incidental expenses, and her clothing is given her by the home. She is allowed to select it in privacy to avoid embarrassment under Mrs. Duff's supervision. No member knows anything of the finances of her friends. Equality might be added to the reasons for the long waiting list at the Old People's home.

Seize Ex-Convict; Charge He's Slick One Man Forgery Gang

John McGarvey.

An efficient gang of forgers has its quota of specialists. Usually the nucleus consists of a penman who writes other folks' signatures; a burglar who steals checks from business firms for the penman to write on, and a pusher or two. The pusher is the man who cashes the checks.

If the police opinion is correct John McGarvey, 60 years old, ex-convict, now locked up at the detective bureau, is a one man forgery gang all by himself. In November alone, it is charged, he obtained more than $9,500 by forging and passing checks on two Chicago business firms.

The first of these companies was the Meter Service corporation, 236 North Clark street. Several checks were stolen from a book there on Nov. 3 and were filled out for varying amounts on the company's own safety machine. Some canceled checks to guide McGarvey the penman also were taken, perhaps by McGarvey the burglar.

Reaps $5,360 Harvest.

The forged checks, for a total of $5,360, were cashed through the National Builders bank, although most of them were presented first at telegraph company offices, where the pusher usually purchased money orders to be sent to a Roy Barnes in Peoria, Springfield, or Indianapolis. Two of the checks were cashed at the bank windows.

McGarvey is said to have obtained $4,185 from the Northern Trust company in November, using checks drawn against the account of the Weeks Manifold Printing company, 154 West Erie street, and supposedly signed by S. S. Weeks, president. McGarvey has been identified as the man who collected the money under the alias Harry G. Wilson.

He was arrested several days ago at Ohio and State streets by Detectives John Murphy and Benjamin Ryan. Records show that McGarvey was sentenced to Joliet penitentiary in 1931 for forgery and conspiracy.

She Aids in Capture

He was paroled in 1934 and discharged from parole in 1935.

Second Forger Held.

Another artful forger under arrest at the bureau is John Malone, 58 years old, who has been battling against the police for 30 years. He was sent to the Iowa penitentiary for robbery in 1908 and was returned in 1912 for parole violation. He was arrested frequently in the succeeding years and was sent to Joliet for burglary in 1926. He served eight years there.

Malone began his operations by opening accounts in the Terminal and the Upper Avenue banks. For a time his deposits were all in good money. Then he put through checks drawn against the account of Chester A. Cook at the Lake Shore bank. These were found to be forgeries and the officials of the Terminal and Upper avenue banks were warned.

Monday when he went to the Upper Avenue bank to attempt withdrawal of $400 he was closely watched. When a young woman teller, Miss Lucille Norris, 2423 Lunt avenue, signaled the police Malone was seized. In a raid on his flat at 11 East Chestnut street the police found equipment for the tracing of signatures. Malone, unlike McGarvey, who is a free hand forger, had to trace the false signatures.

NAZI PAPER BRANDS SUBMARINE PASTOR AS DEVOID OF HONOR

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The only public mention here to date of the trial of the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, Confessional [Evangelical Lutheran] pastor, appeared today in the Schwarzes Korps, official organ of the black shirted Hitler elite guard. The paper referred to the world war submarine commander, who is accused of actions inimical to the Nazi state, as a man wholly devoid of honor.

"Foreign Germans bear the damage of his behavior," the paper said. "The foreign success of his neighborly love for Jews and traitors destroys his last claim to be regarded as a man of honor, whatever he may have been in the past."

BRITISH ENVOY, WALES' BUDDY, KILLED IN RACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Hugh Lloyd Thomas, minister in the British embassy in Paris and a close friend of the duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII. of Great Britain, was killed today. His horse, Periwinkle II., fell at the last fence in a steeplechase at Derby and Thomas was thrown on his head. His neck was broken.

Thomas, who was 49 years old, spent seven years as secretary to the duke of Windsor when the duke was prince of Wales. They remained close friends during and after Edward's abdication, and Thomas attended the duke's wedding to Mrs. Wallis Warfield last June at Cannes, France, despite the frowns of British officialdom.

As a diplomat Thomas had served in Turkey, Egypt and Italy. He was considered one of the best amateur riders in Great Britain and entered today's steeplechase as part of his training for the Grand National steeplechase on March 25. He expected to ride his horse Royal Mail, which won that difficult race last year.

BRITISH AND IRISH PREMIERS TALK PEACE AT LUNCH

LONDON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain and Eamon de Valera of Ireland met at luncheon today, thus informally resuming their contact seeking an Anglo-Irish accord. Britain's political crisis, however, again caused postponement of formal negotiations.

Chamberlain, confronted by a labor motion of censure in the house of commons, had to cancel a scheduled conference with the Irish leader, who arrived in London Saturday for conversations originally set to begin yesterday.

These conversations were to be a resumption of those suspended Jan. 9 to permit experts to work out details of a possible accord on trade and defense questions.

JEWS ORDERED OUT OF GERMAN LETHER INDUSTRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Elimination of Jews from the German lether industry is the latest move in the systematic Nazi campaign to apply the "Aryan principle" to business and gradually expel Jews from all branches of German trade and industry.

An organization was formed to carry out the "Aryanization." It is to be known as the "Publicity Association for the German Lether Trade" and will have headquarters in Munich. Membership is limited to Aryan lether manufacturers and traders.

Members of the new association may buy and sell only Aryan wares, which must bear a special mark of the Aryan trade. A similar mark was introduced recently in the textile industry.

MAGELLAN CROSS MARK OF OLDEST PHILIPPINE TOWN

Cebu Explorer's Landing Place in 1521.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD SHIP TJINEGARA—[By air mail.]—From Manila there are two alternative routes open to the traveler circling the world going west—north through Siberia, or south by way of India.

Arrow locates Cebu landing place of Magellan.

In either case transportation difficulties are encountered, weather conditions affect the flying clipper service going north to Hongkong and China; other troubles interfere with boat schedules.

Taking the southern route it is necessary to have the French, Dutch, and British consulates add their visas or approval to a passport. A British visa to Hongkong is not good for entrance in other British possessions.

Sailing Time a Gamble.

After a reservation has been made on a steamer and the ticket purchased at the office, the agent will give notice direct to the passenger of the time of sailing and the pier from which departure is made.

Steamers in the orient sail anywhere from a few minutes ahead of schedule to eight hours late—it is advisable to play safe and be aboard at least half an hour early. The S. S. Tjinegara left the pier exactly on the minute.

The traveler must be always on guard against different types of racketeers. In Manila I was confronted at the last minute with bills that had been paid—the messenger proved to be bogus and the bills forged.

The ship employés add gayety to the farewells by tossing much colored confetti from the different decks to the wharf. Several small sharks are observed swimming to the surface, picking up waste from the steamer.

Manila's Lights Pretty Sight.

Sailing out of Manila bay at midnight, one gets a pretty view of the shoreline—electric lights completely surround it, most of them on the Manila side, of course.

The Tjinegara is a small steamer carrying mostly steerage passengers and freight between Japan, China and Java. There are on board twenty women and twenty-one men traveling first class. The cabins are too small for comfort. Lounge space is limited to one room sixty by twenty feet forward and a small sport deck in the rear. The swimming pool is a canvas tub ten by twenty feet. There is no orchestra or amusement aboard.

The boat heads southeast between many small islands varying in size and altitude. All are covered with heavy vegetation in many shades of green. Many cocoanut groves are visible on some. A light rain comes down for two hours during the afternoon while the sun shines brightly—it is called liquid sunshine. Many rainbows appear.

Cebu, a Memory of Magellan.

We reach Cebu, on the island of the same name and about 400 miles from Manila, at six o'clock the second morning. Every one goes ashore during the five hours that are needed to unload and load freight.

Cebu, a city of 85,000, is the capital of Cebu province [1,867 square miles] and the oldest town in the Philippine Islands. It was here that the explorer Magellan landed in 1521. His grave is on Mactan Island, just across the strait. A cross erected by him still stands in the center of Cebu, enclosed by a circular grille twenty feet across and fifteen feet high. Candles burn continuously at the bottom of the cross. The candle man keeps his dog inside the fence.

Cebu has many schools and churches. A high school athletic competition is in progress downtown. Three different cheering sections, about 200 students in each one and dressed in flashy school colors, are around the sports field.

City Market Spotless.

The city market is the cleanest seen in the Philippine Islands. Being commented on, a woman clerk replies that visitors must not see a dirty shop.

A drive around town takes one past the leper colony. If the guard is in good humor he will let visitors in. The 1,000 inmates appear to be in the best of spirits. The houses are all clean and comfortable. People committed to the colony follow their own trades. The place is supported by the government, but every one has to work if able—many are not. Raising vegetables and pork, washing, carpenter work, knitting, all are done by inmates.

All kinds of flowers offer cheerfulness to the grounds. The viola hedge of blue, pink, and white is gorgeous.

On the way back to the boat, island politics is discussed with a native. Asked if the natives want independence he replies:

Historic Spot in Philippines

HEAD HUNTERS KILL FOUR OF A FAMILY IN PHILIPPINE OUTBREAK

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The fierce head hunting Ilongot tribesmen were reported to have slaughtered four members of a family in Nueva Ecija province today.

Authorities said a forthcoming Ilongot wedding probably inspired the head hunting expedition. They said the parents of Ilongot brides usually ask the bridegroom to bring in Christian heads before the wedding to demonstrate his bravery and courage. Soldiers were ordered out to track down the head hunters.

The Ilongots have been exceptionally active in recent months, coming down out of the mountains to behead two fishermen and attack other Christians. Authorities said the tribesmen resented the encroachment of Christian Filipino settlers on lowlands where Ilongot families had lived for hundreds of years.

BETTER FACULTY FOR YALE, AIM OF NEW PRESIDENT

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Yale must have a "strengthened faculty" so that it may capture the "ideal opportunity for bringing to a common ground the teaching enthusiasm of the faculty and the learning capacity of the undergraduate," President Charles Seymour said today.

It was his first address at a general meeting of graduates of the university. About 1,200 of them were assembled at a luncheon on the twenty-fifth alumni day program.

The new Yale administration is concentrating on the undergraduate faculty, he said. For the three upper classes the new colleges have provided cultural and social values that have exceeded the hopes of the university executives, he said.

SABATH SEEKING APPLICANT FOR NAVAL ACADEMY

Although there is an appointment to the Naval academy open in the 5th congressional district, no applications have been made from the district, Congressman Adolph J. Sabath said yesterday. He has had plenty of applications from other areas, he added, but would prefer to name a candidate from his own district.

The congressman pointed out that the appointment must be made before March 4 so the applicant can compete in the final examinations on April 20. The pay of a midshipman is $780 a year, sufficient to meet all requirements.

Mr. Sabath urged that any young men from his district who feel qualified should communicate with his Chicago office at 10 South La Salle street.

ARKANSAS TOWN, SAFE 29 YEARS, IN FLOOD PERIL

Fulton, Ark., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The raging waters of Red river reached a record crest of 35.7 feet here early tonight, lapped at the top of the levee that has kept floods away for twenty-nine years, and threatened to inundate the town before morning. Many townspeople left with their belongings.

A levee broke three miles south of here today and added the threat of water backing into the town. Two children drowned when trapped in their farm home.

While some residents evacuated, others hastily carried their household goods and valuables to second stories and prepared to take up residence there if the levee went out.

Fulton, one of the oldest towns in Arkansas and once a prosperous river shipping point, has a population of 393.

SPANISH ARMS TRADE BOOMS; FORTUNES MADE

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT THE FRENCH-SPANISH FRONTIER, Feb. 22.—How Spain's civil war has been making many people rich for the last twenty months is disclosed by an investigation in frontier towns and ports. In many cases fortunes have been made. Big profits are made in three ways:

FIRST—Through the clandestine sale of arms and munitions, which nominally is banned by the international nonintervention agreement.

SECOND—Through risky blockade running by ships, often British registered, carrying coal, oil, and non-contraband supplies.

16 Passes Cross Mountains.

Sixteen passes cross the Pyrenees from France to Spain. Nine are on the rebel side and seven on the loyalist side. Three railroads cross into loyalist Spain and one into area occupied by the rebels.

Virtually no freight traffic crosses from France into rebel Spain at Hendaye, but at Cerbere, Portbou, and Puigcerda railway sidings are congested with freight cars. Reports which could not be confirmed indicated that many of these freight cars, as well as heavy trucks which cross at other passes, are loaded with arms and munitions for loyalist Spain.

This traffic does not represent official French assistance to the loyalists. So far as is possible, it is controlled. The traffic is clandestine, and carried on by newly organized companies eager to get some of the big profits offered by the Spanish government for munitions and arms. One company specializing in this traffic is reported to be known as "Comptoir d'Approvisionnement," with headquarters near Port Vendres.

Payment Made in Various Ways.

In recent weeks cannon, armored cars, machine guns, rifles, and motor trucks for war usage have been supplied to Barcelona clandestinely by this and other organizations. Payment is made sometimes in gold and sometimes in exchange for pictures, art objects, oil, and wine.

Russian shipments to loyalist Spain, it is reported, are consigned to Marseilles, France, and sent from there overland to Spain to avoid the close watch which the rebel fleet and air force is keeping along the coast.

In addition to this traffic, big money also is being made by shippers of fuel and oil into loyalist Spain. Barcelona authorities are willing to pay a high price for a cargo of Welsh coal, and British shippers who risk running their boats into loyalist Spain's ports are reaping big profits. Trade of this kind also is profitable with the rebel side through ports on the Atlantic, where there virtually is no risk because the loyalist fleet does not dare, at the moment, the risk of coming out on the high seas.

Smuggling a Thriving Business.

The third big source of profit is smuggling. This goes on through the mountain passes. San Sebastian is full of smuggled French liquors, whisky and gin.

At Bourgmadam, an impoverished French town opposite Puigcerda, nearly every store has a large supply of Paris perfumes, some of them selling for as high as $20 a bottle, and which certainly are not bought by the French natives. Smuggled across into Spain, however, they bring big profits.

An international bridge separates Bourgmadam from Puigcerda. At each end stand French gendarmes and Spanish carabineers. Under their eyes considerable trade in food supplies and produce goes on, the French going down to the middle of the bridge and passing the goods to Spaniards from the other side.

Cerbere Is Congested.

Cerbere is especially congested with freight cars for Spain. The trains run regularly, as they also do across the Puigcerda line. Trucks carrying fruit and oil from Valencia and south Spain also come through.

Gen. Francisco Franco's peseta [rebel] is worth more in France than is the loyalist peseta. Franco's peseta has, however, lost some of its value since the loyalists captured Teruel two months ago. One hundred Franco pesetas will now buy 168 French francs. Before the loss of Teruel they bought 190 francs. For 100 loyalist pesetas exchange offices on the frontier will pay only sixty-two francs.

Another traffic which the French police are watching closely along the frontier is the fabrication of false passports, which are sold to Spaniards wanting to get out of Spain.

Other intrigues among the host of Spanish refugees who live in towns all along the border from Bayonne to Perpignan keep the French police busy. The biggest affair recently was the arrest of the Marques Antonio de Portago at Saint-Jean-de-Luz. The marquis once was an agent of Franco in London. He is still in a Bayonne prison, charged with plotting to kidnap and carry back into Spain several Spaniards hostile to Franco's cause. He denies the charge.

Arrested also in the same affair was a man named Neila, who was once police chief at Santander and was known as the "the butcher of Santander." The French police thought they were on the trail of an arms plot in connection with this affair. They said they had discovered the presence of an arms dump at Vera, just across the frontier below Hendaye.

Seize 2 Robbers as Suspects in Slaying of Exiled Dentist

Two robbers who have held up at least five persons in the last two weeks on the west side were captured last night at California and Ogden avenues and are regarded as suspects in the killing of Dr. Max Bernhard Sammet, German dentist. Dr. Sammet was found shot to death Sunday at the entrance to an abandoned building at 229 South Paulina street.

The men held are Terence Monahan, 23 years old, 1311 Adams street, and Ray Miller, 35 years old, 1128 North Clark street. Their latest robbery victim, George Pilat, 4747 South Western avenue, had been thrust into their car and was being taken south in California avenue when his cries for help attracted the attention of Park Policemen Kenneth Fossler and James O'Neil, who made the arrests.

Both Are Armed.

Both robbers were carrying .32 caliber pistols, similar to the one with which Dr. Sammet was killed. Further, three of their victims told the police they had been kidnaped by the pair and taken to abandoned farmhouses in which they were left tied up. The same methods, the police believe, were used by Sammet's killers.

From Dr. Harry M. Seldin, a dentist of Peekskill, N. Y., the police learned yesterday the soures of some at least of Sammet's income. Dr. Seldin said he had sent the German money because he wished to aid him in his studies at the University of Illinois college of dentistry. He said that Sammet's funds in Germany had been tied up by the Nazi government because he was a Jew. Sammet had told friends here that he left Germany because of the anti-Semitic campaign there.

Tells Desire to Help.

Dr. Seldin said he met Dr. Sammet when the latter came to this country and was interested in him in a professional way. Dr. Seldin said he wanted to help his colleague get a start in this country, and therefore sent him funds.

The police are holding another suspect, Harry Burns, 59 years old, 1729 Ellen place, a paroled convict. He was carrying a .32 caliber pistol when he was seized Sunday night.

Dr. Sammet spent Saturday evening—his last night alive—with Miss Edna Anderson, 28 years old, 4736 North Kildare avenue, an X-ray technician at the Illinois Research hospital. They went to a movie in the loop, then to dinner and later to her home. When they parted at 11:30 p. m. Miss Anderson gave the dentist street car directions to his home.

Mrs. Inge Sammet, the dentist's widow, has been working in a dental laboratory in New York, where her husband planned to start a practice after completing his work in Chicago. Last night she was planning to come to Chicago.

MOSCOW ANNOUNCES INTENTION TO WAGE POISON GAS WARFARE

MOSCOW, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Commissar of War Klementi E. Voroshilov, declaring soviet Russia was more exposed than any other country to the danger of war, said today the Red army was ready to use poison gas.

"We cannot restrict our chemical detachments to anti-gas defense," he asserted at a public meeting on the eve of the army's 20th anniversary.

"Because Fascist countries violated the 1925 convention on the use of gas in warfare, we were forced to train chemical troops. If the enemy spreads gas behind our frontiers, we will pour bucketsful of poison gas on the heads of those gentlemen."

Be Extra Careful about
STUBBORN COLDS
Relieve Their Misery this PROVED Way

TOO often, the cold that "hangs on" is a result of neglect . . . and neglect is always risky. Be extra careful of a stubborn cold, of course. But the safest course is to be careful of all colds. Don't experiment. Relieve their misery this doubly proved way.

Here's What To Do: It's best to stay in bed and get lots of rest. Eat lightly, drink plenty of water, and keep elimination regular. And use Vicks VapoRub without delay

VapoRub has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.

No Long Waiting for Relief to Begin...

VapoRub is direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no stomach upsets. Just massage it on throat, chest, and back. Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

Relief starts almost at once. You begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by body warmth, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm, eases irritation and coughing, helps break local congestion. And long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps right on working.

NOTE: If there is much irritation and coughing, or the air-passages feel clogged with heavy mucus or phlegm, even stronger vapor action is helpful. Pour boiling water in a bowl, melt a teaspoonful of VapoRub in it, and inhale the steaming vapors for several minutes.

JAPAN MOVES FOR SHOWDOWN WITH MOSCOW

Tokio Angered as Russia Clears Border Zone.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 23.—[Wednesday.]—Relations between soviet Russia and Japan are rapidly growing more tense as a result of further expulsions of Japanese subjects by the Russians, on the one hand, and the arraignment of the captain of a soviet ship yesterday at the port of Hakodate by Japan, on the other.

Japan is awaiting a reply to a stiff protest to Moscow against what was termed high handed action against Koreans n border areas. Koreans are Japanese subjects. Dispatches from Moscow said the soviet government was preparing a strong protest against the detention of the ship.

Baron Asks Showdown.

In the upper house of the diet Baron Tomoichi Iwakura of the Koseikai party demanded a showdown with Russia. Citing the arrests of Japanese employés of Japanese owned petroleum and coal companies on Sakhalin Island and what he termed unlawful seizures of Japanese property by soviet officals, Iwakura said Japan has stood about enough coercion and oppression from the Russians. Such flagrant violations of Japanese rights, despite contracts and treaty rights, cannot be permitted to continue, he said.

Members of the upper house were understood to be taking a strong attitude and, it was reported, will demand a fundamental solution. Depending on developments, it was expected that joint action will be taken by all parties.

Disquieting reports reached Tokio from Corea and Harbin, Manchukuo. A dispatch from Seoul, Corea, said Russians were clearing the Russian-Corean border of all residents.

Move Extends to Persia.

It was reported that the Russians not only are forcing all Coreans in Maritime province to clear out, but that Russians and Buriats also are being forced back from the border a distance of thirty kilometers [about eighteen miles].

The border also, it was reported, was being cleared of all inhabitants with the exception of Russian soldiers, all the way from Corea on the eastern extremity to Afghanistan and Persia in the south.

The Russians cleared their border with Poland, Latvia and Finland on the west some time ago. Three million persons were said already to have been removed from the border regions. Revolts were reported in several places.

Capt. Semionov Politakov of the Russian ship Guznet Sutrov, of 2,900 tons, who was arrested yesterday, was brought before a district court at Hakodate and charged with entering Japanese territorial waters without a permit and also violating the military secret protection law. Passengers on the ship were reported to include several soviet agents.

JAPS PUSH NEAR RIVER

SHANGHAI, Feb 23 [Wednesday]. — (AP) — Japanese columns driving southward toward the Lunghai railway were reported today to have made important gains at several points near the north bank of the Yellow river.

In Honan province one column drove southwest from Sinsiang and occupied Wuchih and Hwaiking, which are 50 miles northeast of Loyang and only a few miles north of the river.

Japanese warplanes reconnoitered Loyang and bombed Chinese troops at Kunghsien, to the east. Several British escaped injury in the coal mining towns of Tsiaotso and Liho, north of the Yellow river, during a Japanese bombardment which preceded capture of the towns.

May Try to Ford River.

It was believed the Japanese planned to cross the river at historic Menghsien ford, which the Chinese have used for more than 2,000 years, and strike the Lunghai line at Loyang. Other troops already had reached the river to the east of them, opposite Kaifeng, but were being held up by Chinese on the south bank.

Japanese troops also advanced toward the southwest from Tsining, Shantung province city.

They were said to have taken Klasiang, fifteen miles west of Tsining, and to be moving along a highway toward Kuyeh and Hotsen with the intention of striking the Lunghai at Lanfeng, twenty-five miles east of Kaifeng.

Make Gains Along Yangtze.

Meanwhile, a Japanese naval flotilla pushed up the Yangtze river, carrying the spearhead of the Japanese advance on that front to within thirty miles of Anking, capital of Anhwei province.

This advance, made in the face of heavy machine gun fire from the river banks, carried the Japanese some sixty-five miles up the river beyond Wuhu, which was captured by them early in December.

A Japanese naval spokesman at Shanghai announced that the steamship Anovathi, flying the Greek flag had been detained pending investigation of its transfer from Chinese to Greek ownership. Japanese naval troops boarded the vessel off Wenchow Feb. 14 and escorted it to Shanghai. Paul Yannoulatos, owner of the ship and acting Greek consul, protested to the Japanese.

Driver Loses Life; Five Coaches Leave Tracks.

One man was killed and twenty-seven were injured yesterday afternoon when a fast St. Louis-Chicago train of the Wabash railroad crashed into a truck at Depot avenue in the village of Worth and was wrecked. The baggage car overturned and five coaches in which nearly a hundred passengers were riding left the rails.

Frank Gregson, 40 years old, 7849 South Ashland avenue, driver of the truck, was the man killed. He had been employed for ten years by the Peerless Paper company, 1381 Grand avenue.

Among the injured were seven members of Hal Kemp's orchestra, which plays in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. Maxine Gray, 22 years old, vocalist, and Bruce Milligan, 26, saxophone player, suffered serious hurts. At the Passavant hospital it was said Miss Gray had a head injury and numerous bruises and cuts. Milligan was internally injured.

Train Behind Schedule.

The train, a limited that makes no stops between Decatur and Chicago, was due here at 1:45 p. m., but was about twenty minutes late. It was, according to the conductor, traveling at only forty miles an hour when it hit the truck. Passengers estimated the speed higher.

Gregson was northbound in Depot avenue, which runs parallel to and a block east of Harlem avenue. Apparently he failed to see either the train, coming from the southwest, or the flash of a warning signal at the crossing. The body of the truck was hurled down an embankment into Wabash avenue [near 110th street]. Gregson was thrown against a flat car standing on a switch track and was killed instantly. The chassis of the truck was carried a hundred yards up the track.

Although the locomotive stayed on the rails the baggage car and the day coach, three Pullman cars, and a combined club and dining car that completed the makeup of the train left the rails at once and began bumping over the ties. They stopped only when the baggage car turned on its side and the coaches listed to an angle of about 45 degrees.

Some Knocked Unconscious.

The injured, some of whom were unconscious, were taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital, Evergreen Park, and St. Bernard's hospital, Chicago. Nearly all were permitted to go home when it was found their injuries were not critical. Wabash officials sent a special train, on which were several physicians and nurses, from Chicago to aid in the rescue work.

The Kemp orchestra had filled an engagement at a college dance in St. Louis on Monday. With four members missing, it took up its work at the hotel last night.

FAST TRAIN KILLS TWO OF CERMAK'S KIN ON CROSSING

Stephen Cermak of Braidwood, Ill., a cousin of Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago, who was assassinated in 1933, and his son, Richard, 10 years old, were killed yesterday when the truckload of coal they were driving back from a mine was struck by a Chicago and Alton passenger train on Route 113, twenty miles south of Joliet. Stephen Cermak was 40 years old. The truck was hit by the Ann Rutledge, new speed train of the Alton road.

Philip Peterson, 5 years old, of 2328 Hastings avenue, Evanston, was killed yesterday and his grandmother, Mrs. Roy Fox of Williamsport, Ind., injured when the car driven by Mrs. Fox's husband overturned north of Danville, Ill. Mr. Fox and the boy's mother, Mrs. A. V. Peterson, were not injured. The boy's father is an auditor for the North Western railroad.

Injured Saturday when his automobile collided with a truck near Monee, in Will county, Charles W. Hangerman, 59 years old, of 4876 North Ashland avenue, died last night in St. James' hospital, Chicago Heights. His wife, Mary, 52 years old, is also in the hospital, cut and bruised as a result of the crash. Joliet state highway police who investigated released the truck driver, John Gerheart, 42 years old, of Mount Vernon.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 146 persons had been killed in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 120 were killed in Chicago, where 2,494 were injured in the same period.

Danger in Auto Travel at Night

An analysis of Illinois' 1937 automobile deaths indicates that a mile of motor travel at night is 5.7 times as likely to result in death as is the same travel in daylight. As this chart shows, 65.6 per cent of the 1937 death toll was during hours of darkness when streets and highways were carrying only a third as much trafic as in daytime.

THREE IN YOUNG GANG IDENTIFIED AS CAR ROBBERS

7 Seized in 2 Gunfights; One Slain.

Three of eight youths who started a career of crime last week were identified last night as the trio that walked into R. A. Long's garage at 4051 Drexel boulevard Sunday night and drove out with three sedans. The three and four others were captured by police after two wild chases through southwest side streets and the eighth boy was slain by Berwyn police.

The dead youth was Irvin Gable, 18 years old, of 517 Root street, who died of a bullet wound caused by a police rifle. When the car in which he was riding finally was halted Gable still was living. He died in a Berwyn hospital.

Seven Appear at Showup.

Those who appeared at the police showup last night identified themselves as Albert Bailey, 17, of 526 West 41st street; Frank Rose, 18, of 6922 South Marshfield avenue; Charles Tonsovic, 18, of 517 Root street; Henry Reinbold, 17, of 3719 Wallace street; William Creagh, 19, of 3642 Wallace street; Herbert Rabe, 16, of 533 West 40th place, and George Doll, 16, of 443 West 43rd street.

Creagh, Rabe and Doll were arrested Monday after a chase in Wentworth avenue from 39th to 46th street, but not until police had fired a number of shots, one of which ripped through Rabe's hat. Creagh was armed with a revolver.

Chase Starts at Jewelry Store.

Early yesterday Gresham police became suspicious about a group of boys standing in front of a jewelry store near 94th street and Vanderpoel avenue. When they approached five youths entered an automobile and fled, the squad in pursuit.

For 16 miles police kept up the chase in 95th street, Wood street, and Archer avenue into Palos park forest preserve. Oaklawn police had joined the chase, but the fugitive car was lost, despite more than 50 shots fired at it.

A short time later a Berwyn squad that had received a radio warning to watch for the youths sighted the car at 39th street and Harlem avenue. They fired time and again during a three mile chase without stopping the car. Finally a rifle was fired twice and the fugitive car came to a stop after two blocks.

Admit More Than 25 Robberies.

Bailey, Rose, Tonsovic, Rainbold, and Gable were in the car, Gable in a dying condition.

Shortly after their arrest the youths admitted twenty-five or more robberies, but could not be certain of the exact number. Last night Lester Hargrave, attendant at a gasoline station at 3024 South Halsted street, identified Rose as the driver of a car containing several youths who robbed him of 14 gallons of gasoline and $2.61 early yesterday morning.

The youths admitted they were planning to rob the jewelry store because Rose wanted a wrist watch for his girl friend. All talked freely, except Creagh who was sentenced to the Bridewell and fined $1 and costs for automobile theft in 1934. The others had no police records.

BOARDING HOUSE GUNMAN REACHES END OF HIS ROPE

Sergt. James Condon and his squad were the first to reach Martin Matteo, 49 years old, last night after he was stabbed and shot in the shoulder in front of 2338 Grand avenue. Taken to St. Mary's hospital, Matteo named as his assailant, Valentino Pariso, 52, a fellow boarder at 2241 Race avenue.

On arrival there the policemen looked through a window and saw Pariso preparing their welcome with two shotguns, a revolver, three hunting knives, and a barricade of furniture. They went to the rear of the house.

Hearing them, Pariso piled some of his chairs and tables against the back door. While he was thus occupied, Sergt. Condon returned to the front, broke a window, crawled in, and captured Pariso before he could use his arsenal.

Reports Milk Consumption Is Nearly Half '29 Volume

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Roscoe E. Little of Chicago, executive secretary of the International Association of Milk Dealers, declared today before a joint convention of the Texas Ice Cream Manufacturers' association and Texas Milk Dealers' association that the consumption of milk has fallen to nearly one-half of its 1929 volume. Salesmanship in the industry was blamed by Little for the decrease.

HIGHWAY TOLL GAINS, BUT ALSO SAFE MILEAGE

Gas Consumption Shows Gain in 1937.

BY HAL FOUST.

While there were 5.4 per cent more persons killed by motor cars in Illinois in 1937 than in 1936, there were more miles of automobile travel without an accident last year than in any year since 1930. The Illinois highway department made this report yesterday on completing its study of the 1937 toll of 2,595 dead and 46,723 injured. The deaths were the highest in the state's history, but so was gasoline consumption, the measurement of motor mileage.

Fourth of Drivers Drinking.

The hazards of alcohol and of darkness were conspicuous in this analysis. The state received reports on the conditions of 772 of the drivers involved in these accidents. More than a fourth of these, 194, had been drinking. There were fifty-five others who were fatigued or had fallen asleep. As a basis for reckoning relative risks, it was noted that twenty-three had been blinded by headlights.

The reports told of the presence or absence of daylight in 3,233 accidents. Of these mishaps, 1,498 happened in daylight, 189 in dusk, and 1,546 at night. Although only a fourth of the car mileage is traveled at night the dark hours took 492 of the 818 lives lost in the accidents in which data on illumination were available.

Pedestrians Held at Fault.

Pedestrians were blamed in 428 of 818 fatal mishaps and in 1,156 of 2,524 crashes involving personal injuries to one or more persons.

Of the drivers involved in the year's toll there were 3,866 men and 237 women. Men drive many more miles than women, but there is no information on how much more.

Senate Votes Relief Funds to Aid Fertilizer Projects

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The senate adopted today an amendment by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Prog., Wis.] to the relief appropriation bill which would permit use of the relief money for WPA projects which produce material for fertilizer. The amendment would permit resumption of lime crushing projects in Wisconsin.

JAMES GIVES UP LIFE ON ROLLING WAVE FOR SOFT BERTH ASHORE

Working on a tugboat, in the opinion of James Bleaing, had two disadvantages. Whenever the waves grew high the tug pitched and rolled and James grew seasick. And whenever the tug was working it was tooting its whistle. What with his tummy and his ears being assailed so frequently he grew fed up with the whole thing.

James, who is 28 years old, quit the job on Monday and by 9 o'clock that night had found the peace and quiet he was seeking in the home of Arnold Schwinn, a bicycle manufacturer, at 2128 Humboldt boulevard. He broke in through a rear window. There was no one at home [Mr. Schwinn is in Florida]. There were no waves, no whistles.

Grateful to fortune, he raided the refrigerator and dined heavily. Then he found liquor and wines, and, having fortified himself with these, retired to one of Mr. Schwinn's beds.

James was still snoring blissfully at 5:30 p. m. yesterday when employés of Mr. Schwinn, who by chance had learned that a window was broken, came to repair it. They turned the ex-sailor over to the Shakespeare avenue police.

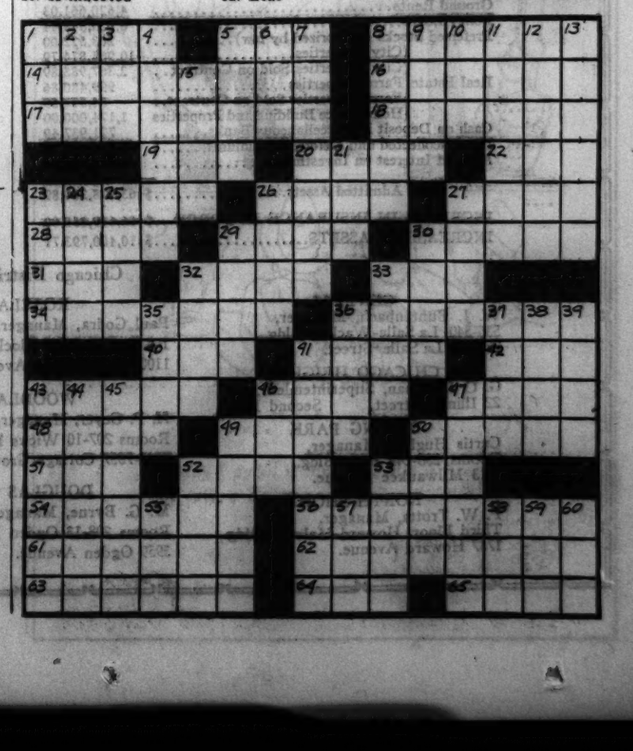
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



FOREIGN CRISIS SWINGS U. S. TO ISOLATION PLAN

Mortal Blow Is Dealt to Roosevelt Quarantine.

Hitler of Germany and Mussolini, they were speedily disillusioned by the evidence of repudiation of the President's Chicago speech by the American people. It became clear that the American people were willing to spend billions for defense but not a cent for policing the world.

Now the British government has thrown overboard the policy of international quarantine of offending nations and is proceeding to make a deal with one of the dictators. Mr. Roosevelt finds himself pretty generally deserted on the world policing proposition, while the league of nations, representing the same principle, has suffered a shock from which it may never recover.

Borah Analyzes Situation.

Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho] expressed the view today that Britain, despairing of American help against Hitler and Mussolini, is now trying to drive a wedge between the two dictators.

"It seems to me," the senator said, "that Great Britain has finally made up her mind that she cannot depend upon the United States for military or diplomatic assistance and that, as a result, she has undertaken to make friends where she can.

"I am convinced that for a time the British public was developing the idea of coöperating closely with the United States, and especially of some working agreement with us as regards the Pacific.

"But in the last 30 to 60 days, I believe that the British government, at least, has come to the conclusion that an arrangement with the United States is impossible because the American people won't allow it. I think that the results of this decision are now visible in Downing street.

Explains British Purpose.

"Chamberlain has decided to seek an agreement with Italy, despite the opposition of Eden. The purpose behind this British move, undoubtedly, is to drive a wedge between Germany and Italy.

"The only real dispute between Germany and Great Britain is over the former German colonies which Germany is insisting she must have back. That is a primary element in Hitler's program, and I am convinced that sooner or later she will get them back because they were originally hers. They were taken away from her by sheer force.

"Naturally Britain will try to hold on to the colonies as long as she can. That is why she is now seeking an agreement with Italy, because if she succeeds it will drive Italy and Germany apart, and Germany will be weakened or at least delayed in her efforts to regain the colonies."

Navy Bill to Be Speeded.

With the end of public hearings on the administration's $1,000,000,000 naval construction program in sight the house committee on naval affairs expects to report the bill, practically as recommended by President Roosevelt, either before the end of this week or at the beginning of next week. Every effort will be made to speed up action, and some leaders forecast its passage by the house within the next week or ten days.

Every ship, combatant, and auxiliary asked by the President will be provided for in the bill. It will occasion little surprise if it also carries funds for several auxiliaries recommended by Admiral W. D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, which are not provided in the bill now pending before the committee.

The bill also may include a provision for the establishment of additional naval bases, mainly in the Pacific, at least one to be in Alaska. Representative Carl Vinson [D., Ga.] chairman of the committee, announced today that the question of more bases will be taken up in executive session before the bill is reported to the house.

Claims Fortune

OLGA ZAHAROFF.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—A brown-haired girl, a student at Boston university, has revealed what may be the first true story of the life of the late Sir Basil Zaharoff, European munitions maker, known as one of the richest men in the world.

The girl, Miss Olga Kuzmechna Zaharoff, 19 years old, is the grandniece of the famous mystery man. She says he was a Russian of aristocratic birth and she claims he left her half his fortune, estimated at 500 million dollars in a will which since has vanished.

Miss Zaharoff told of sitting in the high walled garden of the munition maker's estate in Paris playing checkers with him in 1930. At that time he promised her the fabulous Monte Carlo casino when she was 18 years old. Four months before she reached this age, Sir Basil died.

She says Sir Basil was born in Odessa, Russia, the son of Gen. Stephen Zaharoff. His mother was a Greek.

PRESIDENT TALKS WITH KENNEDY ON FOREIGN POLICIES

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt conferred this afternoon with Joseph P. Kennedy, newly appointed ambassador to Great Britain, to plot America's course in world affairs to meet the swift moving developments of last week-end.

No comment was made by either the President or Kennedy as to the policies the administration's two fisted trouble shooter will pursue at the Court of St. James. The shifting international alignments were regarded of vital importance to the mission Kennedy hopes to accomplish abroad.

He was selected for the diplomatic hot spot to negotiate a reciprocal trade treaty with Great Britain and to establish some basis for resumption of war debt payments by the empire. He will sail for England at noon tomorrow.

TELETYPE LINK FOR NORTH SHORE POLICE PLANNED

Plans for linking the police of north shore towns from Evanston to Kenosha by a teletype system were laid yesterday at a meeting of police chiefs in the North Shore hotel, Evanston. Methods of financing the system will be discussed at another meeting in Lake Forest March 9.

The system, which would extend to communities some miles west of the shore, would make possible an effective blockade in case of a major crime, according to Chief William O. Freeman of Evanston. Other communities represented were Lake Forest, Lincolnwood, Glenview, Highland Park, Lake Bluff, North Chicago, Waukegan, Morton Grove, Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Niles Center, and Kenosha. The Cook county highway police and Lake county sheriff's office also were represented.

FOUR DISABLED SHIPS TOSSED BY STORMS ON NORTH ATLANTIC

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Four disabled freighters tossed about on the gale whipped North Atlantic tonight.

The 1,200 ton British motorship Lycia and the 2,357 ton Norwegian freighter Victo reported they were in trouble after earlier advices had told of difficulties encountered by the Latvian freighter Everhope and the American cargo vessel Azalea City.

The Lycia was beset by engine trouble 750 miles east of Bermuda. The Victo was wallowing in heavy seas near the Azores after losing its propeller. The Azalea City was in distress 1,000 miles off Halifax. The Everhope lost its steering gear 300 miles off Cape Race, Newfoundland.

WEBSTER HALL, N. Y. LANDMARK, BURNS; TWO DIE

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Two men were killed early today in a spectacular fire which destroyed the interior of Webster hall, at 119 East 11th street, a landmark for Greenwich villagers and famous for its numerous balls and brawls.

Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, wearing his big black hat, arrived on the scene three hours after discovery of the fire, and watched the firemen.

The body of Thomas Burke, 49 years old, a watchman, was found on a cot in his basement living quarters in the hall. Several hours later the firemen found the body of Henry J. Dugan, about 55 years old, head porter for the hall, in a kitchen in the rear of the first floor. One fireman, Harold Malone of engine company 33, was injured.

RELIGION VALUED BY WASHINGTON AS AID TO NATION

Law That Rules in Heart, Ford Executive Says.

National welfare and religious principle are inseparable, William J. Cameron, Ford Motor company executive, told an audience of 900 last night at the annual Wheaton college banquet in the Stevens hotel.

Both George Washington and Abraham Lincoln knew the importance of religion to patriotism, Mr. Cameron said.

"The idea that religion and patriotism belong together is not so antiquated as it may seem," he continued. "The dictator in Europe finds it a very modern fact. He knows that if patriotism is to be harnessed to antisocial purposes, or a people bereft of individual right and dignity, religion first must be severed from its side.

Law That Rules Is in Heart.

"Washington and Lincoln knew of no law or force that could produce and maintain good citizenship, for the law that really rules men is written in the heart—and if that law be a righteous law, policed by enlightened conscience, made gladly acceptable by the full consent of an enlightened mind—that law, creative of social order and progress, has its roots in what we call religion."

Washington's birthday also brought from two members of the senate foreign relations committee who were in Chicago the assertion that world events necessitate an expanded national defense to insure peace for America. They are Key Pittman [D., Nev.], the committee chairman, and James Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.].

"The United States government," he said, "will double the proposed appropriation for the navy."

Declines to Amplify.

The senator declined to amplify this statement. President Roosevelt, in his special message to congress last month, submitted a national defense program, which includes an 800 million dollar long range naval building plan.

Senator Lewis, in a Washington birthday address before the Chicago Bar association, said that adequate preparedness is the surest guarantee of peace.

"Let our people now recall," said Senator Lewis, "that had the United States been prepared with a navy in the opening of the world war, England would never have seized our ships carrying food and supplies to noncombatants and submitted us to the humiliation of having our ships searched and impressed in her harbors. Nor would Germany have attacked our ships of commerce with submarines.

Would Have Avoided War.

"Had we at that time possessed needed defense on land and protection on seas we never would have been drawn into the world war.

"Since we see nations of the world continue to multiply their preparation for new wars, the United States must know that in the rightful pursuit of its commercial and industrial privilege on the seas and in the fields of trade, our government cannot surrender under impossible neutrality, its natural right. Yet the enjoyment of these rights can be the cause of assaults. All must see it is necessary that we have navy and aerial construction to guard our international rights and to obstruct the advance of foes over our shores."

Four chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution united with the Illinois Society of the Sons of the American Revolution last night in a Washington's birthday dinner in the Orrington hotel in Evanston. Judge John P. McGoorty spoke.

There were 28 candidates filed for county commissioner from the city and eleven who filed for commissioner from the county towns. There were five Horner-Courtney candidates among those who filed for country town commissionerships.

TRACE KINSHIP TO A TEACHER OF WASHINGTON

Clinton, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ira Tuggle and her brother, Henry Enos of Clinton, recalled today on the anniversary of George Washington's birth that they are direct descendants of Elijah Williams, one of Washington's school teachers.

Elijah Williams began teaching in 1734 when 16 years old and followed that profession as long as he lived. He taught school near Bridges Creek, Va., and many prominent families attended his school, among them the Bledsoes, Balls, Henrys, Wests, Ormsbys, and Washingtons.

George Washington spent four years at Williams' school as is proved by this quotation from the Life of Washington by Morris H. Hancock: "Having no longer the benefit of a father's instructions at home, George was sent to reside with Augustine Washington at Bridges Creek and enjoy the benefit of a superior school in that neighborhood by a Mr. Williams."

SEATTLE SWINGS TO RIGHT, VOTE IN PRIMARY SHOWS

Conservative Runs Away from Radical Rivals.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—As a result of yesterday's municipal primary it was apparent today that this city, long beset by labor difficulties and known for years as a hotbed of radicalism, has taken a swing to the right.

Arthur B. Langlie.

Mayoralty candidates of both the Committee for Industrial Organization and the American Federation of Labor were snowed under by the tremendous vote given Arthur B. Langlie, ultra-conservative.

Complete unofficial returns gave Langlie 50,389 votes to 27,263 for Lieut. Gov. Victor A. Meyers, who had the support of the C. I. O. and other left-wing groups, and 21,369 to Mayor John F. Dore, seeking reëlection with support of the A. F. of L.

Langlie, a member of the city council, had no organization backing, although he had been indorsed in previous campaigns by the New Order of Cincinnatus, a good government group. He appealed for an end to labor strife and for economy in city government. Meyers will be Langlie's opponent in the runoff election on March 8.

Political observers today felt that Meyers polled almost his full strength in the primaries. Votes of the candidates in fourth and fifth places, totaling more than 18,000, are known to be conservative votes and are expected to go to Langlie in the runoff. The Dore vote may be divided, observers said, but Langlie is likely to get the bulk of it, due to the better feeling between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O.

William L. Norton, who finished in fourth place, with 10,508 votes, is a city councilman who once was a policeman and now an ordained minister.

CAPITAL PAYS HONOR TO THE MEMORY OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Washington's birthday was celebrated in the nation's capitol and its vicinity with speeches, memorial services, pilgrimages to Mount Vernon and the reading in both houses of congress of Washington's farewell address.

The day's exercises were started with the raising of flags representing the forty-eight states at the Washington monument, followed by the placing of the President's wreath at the base of the monument. Wreaths representing other government agencies then were added.

VOTERS LEAGUE REPORT PRAISES REP. ADAMOWSKI

The Legislative Voters league yesterday made public a part of its annual report on members of the legislature dealing with State Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski, whose renomination is being opposed by the regular Democratic organization in his district.

"During the 1937 session," read this text, "Mr. Adamowski, by his sound judgment, fighting ability and tireless capacity for work, added to the enviable reputation he had previously made as a legislator. At the age of 31 he has a position of outstanding distinction and usefulness at Springfield."

The report listed several important bills Adamowski supported but it did not mention his opposition to the Ward-Schnackenberg parole reform bills. Adamowski led the opposition which killed the Ward bill and voted against the Schnackenberg bill which was passed but was vetoed by Gov. Horner.

CORRUPTER

By CALEB

TO a young man there was pointed out some time ago a distinguished looking old gentleman in Chicago. For several years the young man caught glimpses of the gentleman—and idealized him.

Ultimately, because he was in a position to patronize a firm owned by the distinguished old person, the young man was called to the important man's office.

There, after brief preliminaries, the older man said, "I have checked and found out what your firm is paying you. It is not enough. If you will give my organization the lion's share of your purchases, I will increase your pay out of my own pocket by fifty per cent . . . Now don't be hesitant. There is nothing wrong with that. It is my own money and I can do as I please with it."

The young man was dumfounded. He found his hero—a prominent man—a corrupter and a cheater, one who would deal from the bottom of the deck. He was a man of low principles, who would win business, not in the open sunshine of above-board dealing, but in the back halls of disreputable secrecy.

There is much of reciprocity in business. A great deal of it is honorable and legitimate. At the other extreme is a reciprocity in which the rewards of "exchange" find their ways into pockets which have not earned them, and which accept them illegitimately.

Not all efforts of vendors to win favor are as openly corrupt as this. Sometimes it is difficult indeed for men and women to see the thin dividing line between legitimate favors granted and illegitimate influences exerted. In our own affairs we attempt to eliminate all possibility of misjudgment.

Therefore, our buyers, in the aggregate and individually, do not seek or accept personal favors of any kind from our suppliers. In saying this, we do not brag of honesty. That everyone should be honest goes without saying. That a firm with our background is honest is a natural expectation. But we are proud that our ethics are largely a matter of quiet assumption and not of imposed, well policed rules.

PRESIDENT GETS $75,000 BY SALE OF PRESS NOTES

Liberty to Publish Data Hitherto Withheld.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, it was learned today, has made another deal to sell the by-products of his high office for a large sum of money.

On top of the announcement of publication of the Roosevelt state papers and speeches in five volumes and the newspaper syndication of prefaces thereto, which alone is to yield $100,000 or more, comes the information that the President has sold the notes of his press conferences to Liberty magazine.

For one article embodying the verbatim notes of some of his interviews by the press and for two other articles containing excerpts from the prefaces to the five volume work, Liberty is reported to be paying the President $75,000.

Creates Stir in Capital.

Considerable of a stir in official Washington has been caused by the action of the President in capitalizing his position for private gain and eyebrows have been raised even higher by the disclosure of his sale of the press conference notes taken by Mr. Roosevelt's stenographer, Henry M. Kannee.

The stenographic records of the President's press conferences never have been available to members of the press. Throughout the Roosevelt administration none of the newspaper men has had the privilege of consulting these records after a conference. Frequently newspaper men have sought this means of checking up, or of refreshing their minds as to some fact or accuracy of the President's answers so as to reassure themselves before writing their stories, but always they have been denied the privilege.

Held His Private Property.

This policy has been based on the assumption that the press conferences and the stenographic record of them are the President's personal property. The conferences are held by the President's permission and are not provided by law. Whenever the President insists he has been misquoted, he has the records as evidence, but the reporter who is accused of misquoting has no record to fall back upon.

The press conferences are attended by never less than a hundred newspaper men. The President never is to be quoted unless he gives permission to do so, and he frequently talks "off the record," which means that even what he says is not to be attributed to him in any way. Mr. Kannee sits at the President's left at these conferences.

Boys and girls who had a Washington's birthday holiday from school yesterday discovered when they got up that they had something to go with it—snow. And so they went sledding and tobogganing, and made snow men, and fought snow battles. Late in the day the snow turned to slush, making walking and driving difficult. C. A. Donnel, the weather man, said today probably would be unsettled with little change in temperature.

WPA WILL MAKE SURVEY TO GUIDE CHICAGO TRAFIC

A citywide trafic survey has been approved by Washington officials as a Work Progress administration project for Chicago. Pedestrian and vehicular movements are to be described and tabulated at 4,000 street intersections and at all railroad grade crossings. H. K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA director, said yesterday that 415 men and 123 women from the relief rolls will be employed. The data they assemble will be used by the city as a guide for future street improvements and for bettering the trafic control systems.

CONFIRM STORY OF SPANKING FOR M'NUTT'S PILOT

Air Officer Transferred as Punishment.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The inside story of the cause celebré which has all Washington gossiping—the punishment of Col. Davenport Johnson for piloting a plane which had High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt of the Philippines as a passenger—was revealed today.

From an unimpeachable source, it was learned that President Roosevelt personally approved the transfer of Col. Johnson from his post as commander of Hamilton field, California, one of the finest and most modern in the country, to Chanute field, at Rantoul, Ill., where the buildings and equipment are approaching dilapidation. Commandant at the California field, Col. Johnson will rank second at the Illinois field.

Slap at McNutt Ambitions.

Thus were confirmed the persistent rumors that the transfer of the colonel was a White House slap at McNutt whose friends have started a boom for him as Democratic nominee in 1940 for the presidency. Mr. Roosevelt was not consulted by these enthusiasts and is said to be irked thereby.

McNutt prevailed upon Col. Johnson to fly him and his executive assistant, Wayne Coy, from San Francisco to Denver to attend a political gathering. A wire was sent to Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staf, asking for permission to make the flight, but the answer was slow in coming and McNutt, impatient, told the pilot that he would assume all responsibility. After the plane had left Hamilton field, Gen. Craig's answer came through. It was a curt refusal of permission.

Orders Johnson's Transfer.

When Gen. Craig, a stickler for discipline, learned that the flight had been made against orders, he ordered Col. Johnson transferred. Thus far, the incident was without political significance. Gen. Craig was merely punishing an officer for what he regarded as a breach of discipline.

When the order came to Secretary of War Harry Woodring, however, he immediately saw that the transfer might be given a political interpretation because McNutt was involved. Moreover, the secretary is a friend of McNutt and sought to help him avoid an incident which would be seized upon as an administration criticism of his presidential aspirations.

With the thought of holding up the transfer, the secretary of war went to the White House and explained the situation to Mr. Roosevelt. After cogitating, the President told Woodring: "Let it go through."

Minton Tries to Aid Him.

Meanwhile, friends of Col. Johnson continued their efforts to help him. Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.] said he had been assured by Woodring that the matter would remain unchanged for the present.

Officially, war department representatives expressed amazement at the rumors about the transfer.

The capital awaited McNutt's arrival tomorrow. A large crew of Indiana boosters of the fomer governor were making preparations to give him a rousing reception. McNutt will be paraded at a festival in the Mayflower hotel to which 4,000 invitations have been issued.

McNutt will be besieged with queries about the Johnson incident. His explanation in Indiana yesterday was that all arrangements for the flight were made by Maj. Gen. George Simonds, commander of the 9th Corps area. He said he didn't meet Johnson until he boarded the plane. If this version is correct and Col. Johnson was only acting under orders from Maj. Gen. Simonds, observers here wonder why the colonel, and not the general, was punished.

Explanation by Gen. Simonds.

An explanation of this point came tonight from Gen. Simonds in San Francisco who confirmed Commissioner McNutt's statement that he applied to Simonds for air transport. The general admitted, however, that it was Col. Johnson who made the arrangements.

"McNutt made the request of me," said Gen. Simonds, "and my staf transmitted to Col. Johnson the request for the use of one of his planes, since specifically Hamilton field is exempt from my command.

"At first, Col. Johnson didn't know if a plane was available, then we were informed it was all fixed up. As a matter of fact, I drove McNutt over to Hamilton field in the morning myself."

INQUIRY REVEALS C. I. O. PADDING OF DETROIT RELIEF

Police Uncover Earnings Hidden by Reports.

BY WILL O'NEIL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—John L. Lewis' followers were accused today of deliberate misrepresentation in supplying information upon which relief funds were given to persons apparently not entitled to city aid.

The charges were made as a dozen squads of city policemen investigated the Detroit relief scandal uncovered by Mayor Richard W. Reading. The mayor ordered the unusual police action in his campaign to rid the local relief system of frauds.

By a unique arrangement with the relief administration, members of the United Automobile Workers of America have been permitted to investigate and approve the cases of persons applying for relief. It is estimated the union has handled 9,000 such cases.

Unionize Relief Workers.

At the same time this important component of Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization has been trying to organize relief workers into a union. It has been reported that social workers who belong to the U. A. W. A. have favored union members in relief disbursements in an effort to help the C. I. O. group with its unionization plans.

Evidence of irregularities in cases in which the U. A. W. A. recommended relief were revealed today as police prepared to take the results of the first phase of their investigation before the Detroit welfare commission tomorrow.

Investigators said it did not appear reasonable that the union members unintentionally could have made as many errors as were found in the cases they handled.

"We found that the U. A. W. A. supplied wrong information in 175 of the 300 cases we have investigated so far," said Sergt. Harry Mikuliak, who, with Inspector George Hertel, is in charge of the police inquiry.

Refuted by Pay Roll Records.

"In most of these cases we found that the union reported applicants earned far less during the three months prior to their petition for relief than was shown by pay roll records of the factories where they were employed. The importance of this information is that a man who has been paid well for some time shouldn't need relief immediately after he is laid off."

In one case recommended for relief, the union stated that the applicant earned $347 in his last three months of employment and that his final pay check of $5.23 was received on Dec. 3. Police learned that the man earned $497 in the three months and that he received his last check of $18.46 on Jan. 20.

Another such case was that of a man the U. A. W. A. reported had earned $175 in the three months prior and was paid off with a check of $9.10 on Jan. 6. Investigators found the man actually earned $658 and his last pay was $36.80, received on Dec. 31.

In the case of still another man recommended by the union for city aid, the applicant received a pay check of $16.95 three days after he was given relief.

Buck was to arrive for the ceremony by plane from the west coat, but bad weather forced him to take a train from Kansas City to Westfield.

TELLS BUSINESS HUNT FOR DAVEY AT SENATE QUIZ

Columbus, O., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—A witness before the Ohio senate committee investigating purported contributions to the 1934 campaign fund of Gov. Martin L. Davey said today he talked with Wendell Willkie, New York utilities executive, about doing business with the Davey Tree Expert company.

The witness is Lee Bradley, an asphalt salesman, who faces a perjury charge filed by the governor because of his previous testimony that he arranged for automobile manufacturers to contribute to Davey's campaign.

DEMAND SEAMEN BE CHECKED IN UNRULY ACTIONS

Insubordination, Strikes Harass Owners.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Ship owners along the Atlantic seaboard are demanding that stern measures be imposed to prevent indiscriminate strikes and insubordination by sailors as the basis for building up the ailing American merchant marine.

The operators declare that no one will deny the right of the seamen to bargain collectively for more pay and better working conditions, but insist that the maritime unions under the leadership of radical agitators have gone beyond all bounds in a campaign of terrorism. The seamen, they charge, are reckless of lives and property.

Opinion has not crystalized yet on the proposal of Joseph P. Kennedy, former chairman of the maritime commission, now ambassador to England, that labor disputes in the blue water industry be referred to a mediation board similar to that provided in the railway labor act.

Oppose Political Rule.

Officials of the lines, however, emphatically agree that if Washington sets up any machinery it should not become the political organizing agency for any one labor group such as the National Labor Relations board, generally regarded as an instrument of John L. Lewis' Committee of Industrial Organization.

Approving of the maritime commission's summing up of the situation, the Maritime Association of the Port of New York said recently it would be useless and impossible to construct additional American tonnage unless and until the morale and discipline of maritime labor is brought back within the realms of reasons.

Calls Conditions Disgraceful.

In its annual report the commission pronounced conditions in the American merchant marine disgraceful and said it was only a question of time before disgusted shippers and worried travelers would turn to the vessels of competitors. Appearing before the senate commerce and labor committees last week, Kennedy revealed that the merchant marine had been plagued by 451 labor tieups involving 40,000 seamen during the first ten months of 1937.

An official of one American line said no amount of subsidization of the American merchant marine by the government would do any good so long as agitators were given free rein in controversies.

The ship owners are particularly incensed at strikes or demonstrations staged after ships have embarked on voyages. They contend the sacredness of ships' articles is at stake in such cases and that the merchant marine cannot function if crews are not held strictly accountable for the safe and undisturbed progress of ships after leaving home ports.

Fall River Line Closed.

A case in point which was cited by the operators was that of the historical Fall River Line. This steamship line plying along the New England coast was forced out of business recently by a wave of strikes and quickie sitdowns. Another example of the breakdown of discipline given is the Algic case in which fourteen seamen were convicted of mutiny in Baltimore several months ago.

The Algic, a government owned ship, met with trouble last July when it crew refused to sail unless its officers joined the Engineers Beneficial association and the Masters, Mates and Pilots' association, affiliated with the C. I. O. after the ship finally sailed, its southward voyage was marked by more sitdowns, desertions, one slaying and a drowning in an attempt to jump ship. At Montevideo the crew joined in with a stevedore strike.

The stories of passengers about the drunkenness, incivility and misconduct of the crew of the President Hoover when the Dollar liner was stranded near Formosa recently are called evidence of the morale of the seamen. Passengers, whose wants are served by the stewards, came into contact with members of the deck and engine crew for the first time.

Avoid harsh laxatives. Instead, do this, every morning upon arising:

Squeeze the juice of a lemon into a tall glass full of cold or warm water. Into another glass, put half a teaspoonful of ordinary baking soda (bicarbonate). Pour back and forth, and drink when foaming subsides.

Make this a daily health habit. See how you benefit, right from the start.

HITLER'S DEMANDS.

Hitler's speech was in the bad taste for which allowance can be made as coming from an Austrian noncommissioned officer. His principal demands are entirely reasonable, including the colonies grabbed by the allies in the treaty of Versailles and a square deal for Germans separated from the fatherland through the hoggishness of other European powers.

To obtain satisfaction of these demands Hitler has found it necessary to form Japanese and Italian alliances and they involve him in commitments as to Spain and Manchukuo which are less defensible. But the primary fault is not his.

There is indeed hope that when Germany has been freed from the oppression stipulated in the peace and imposed so long as the allies had the power to clamp it down, the people of Germany will no longer find it necessary to be welded together under a tyrannous form of government which they have accepted as a protection against other oppressive nations.

There is nothing in the European situation which requires any action on our part. Europe made its own peace with the conquered. This is what it is.

THE ISSUE IN INDIANA.

Senator Van Nuys of Indiana, having been marked for retirement by the Democratic machine of the state, with the approval of Washington, refuses to coöperate. He proposes to appeal the decision to the people. Loyal Americans throughout the nation and regardless of party will hope he wins his case.

For his case is a strong one from the viewpoint of loyal Americanism. Senator Van Nuys is marked for sacrifice because he had the courage to oppose the destruction of the independence of the Supreme court, and eventually of all federal courts, through the court packing proposal. It was an act of the highest courage and devotion to the public weal. No more important issue has been raised in the nation's history than this and Senator Van Nuys did not shirk it. He took his political life in his hands and made the patriot's choice.

The issue Senator Van Nuys met is the issue now before the people of Indiana. It transcends party. Senator Van Nuys has been through h's political life a loyal Democrat and he was never more loyal to true democracy than when he opposed a proposal which would have destroyed the American form of government. On that issue Democrats and Republicans can and should stand as one.

Can the Democratic bosses in Indiana, instigated and supported by the higher powers in Washington, retire Senator Van Nuys as punishment for his loyalty to American liberty and democracy? We doubt it. They can bring their great power to bear upon this loyal citizen. But it is the people who will give the decision.

CANAL BOAT POLICY.

While the subject may seem of minor importance to many, THE TRIBUNE believes that there is a very large principle involved in the bill now being considered by the committee on interstate and foreign commerce of the house of representatives that would limit railway freight trains to a maximum of seventy cars. The record that is being compiled consists of petty arguments as to whether or not long trains are dangerous. Nothing of a convincing nature is being produced by either side. Hidden by this smoke screen is another question—shall strangulation by law continually be added to the processes of evolution to outmode our railways?

A parallel is available for the study of the committee. Forty years ago railway train divisions were approximately 100 miles or "one day's work" long. That measured the serviceability of the locomotive and the average speed of the times. As everybody thought that the roads had reached maximum efficiency, the railways offered their employés a scheme whereby 100 miles' service would equal one day's work, designed to assist in maintaining schedules.

Twenty years later the automobile was perfected and the bus, truck, and airplane followed in rapid sequence. The tempo of transportation was accelerated, and the railways found their leisurely schedules unpopular. They responded with lightweight passenger trains and Diesel electric engines that will run across the continent without servicing. Train divisions have been increased to 250, 400, and even 500 miles.

But this is not enough, as the railways well know. To compete with the airplane, they would initiate nonstop schedules between large centers of population were the expense not suicidal. It would be necessary to carry five train crews for a run of 500 miles that could easily be negotiated in eight hours. In the nonstop run from Denver to A Century of Progress, the railway was forced to provide accommodation for a number of deadheading employés because the train was running at the rate of "nine hours' work per hour."

What is true of speed is also true of flexibility. While railway box cars increased in size during the monopolistic period, the present tendency is in the reverse direction. There is an insistent demand for smaller containers and compartment cars because the truckload has become a unit of purchase. It is probable, and certainly desirable, that the railways will develop a shorter vehicle that can be adapted to both railway and highway service. While this mutation is taking place, congress considers a law that would freeze the present clumsy equipment dimensions.

The motoring public, which includes all of us, does not wish to have the freight service of the country driven to the highways by inflated freight rates. The members of the house committee should realize this and not emulate the lawmakers of another century who tried to stem evolution by providing that train lengths and speeds must be held down to canal boat standards.

EDUCATION UNDER THE ROOSEVELT DEPRESSION.

The Association of American Colleges has appealed to congress for relief from existing tax laws. The association is composed of nearly 600 privately financed educational institutions. Universities and colleges of this character provide a large part of the higher education available in this country and are responsible for an even larger portion of the research into new fields of knowledge. All of this service is performed without a penny of direct subsidy from the taxpayers. What the students do not pay in tuition is met from endowments and other gifts.

Because of the low interest rates now prevailing, income from endowment funds, even those which came through the depression intact, is considerably less than it was a few years ago. The demands on the private institutions are expanding. But new gifts which must be obtained if the standards of the colleges are to be maintained are few and far between. President William P. Jacobs of Presbyterian college, official spokesman for the association, has compiled figures to show that in a decade the new gifts to endowment have declined by no less than 52 per cent.

Existing tax laws go far to explain this situation. Of necessity, the donors of large sums are persons possessed of sizable incomes. These incomes are now taxed so heavily that relatively little is left for philanthropy. The government permits the donor to deduct from income no more than 15 per cent in the form of contributions to charity. At the same time, the taxes on estates have been pushed so high that wealthy men are under great pressure to keep very large sums on hand in cash or its equivalent in order to meet the death duties and thus protect their heirs and their businesses from the ruin of enforced liquidation. Funds which might have gone to the colleges are now taken by the tax collector or reserved for him.

In these circumstances it is remarkable that the decline in gifts has been no greater. Undoubtedly the habit of philanthropy accounts for the continuance of a certain amount of giving even in the face of existing obstacles, but that habit is rapidly dying. Unless the tax laws are modified in the interest of the colleges, the quality or quantity of education available at the endowed schools will be lowered. That will mean, in turn, heavier enrollments at state supported schools with a resultant increase in the tax bills of the ordinary citizen.

Education, research, and the taxpayer all will pay a heavy price for a federal tax system which discourages philanthropy. The association of which President Jacobs is spokesman has prepared an amendment to the federal tax laws which would greatly increase the income of the colleges, it is believed, but would not reduce federal revenues by more than a few million dollars. The amendment deserves support.

HOODLUMISM IN VILNA.

Officers of the Vilna garrison in Poland, in full dress uniforms and decorations, have raided the premises of the newspaper Dziennik Vilenski and beat up its editorial staf so badly that they were removed to a hospital.

This was not the act of an impromptu mob. It was committed by men who are, by profession at least, guardians of the state and the peace and order the state is created to preserve. It was a lawless attack upon unarmed men and it raises the question whether the officer class in Poland has been invaded by hoodlums.

Certainly the Poles in America will not note this outbreak with satisfaction.

Editorial of the Day

BOOTSTRAP PROSPERITY.

[Peoria Journal-Transcript.]

It is not surprising that President Roosevelt has consented to ask congress for 200 to 300 million dollars for relief during the next five months. As the recession deepens and unemployment increases, the need for additional funds is apparent, notwithstanding there is already available to WPA 497 million dollars for use up to June 30. Nor is there any reasonable doubt that congress will vote the extra relief sought.

Group pressure on the executive is tremendous. "Liberals" of the left wing are asking for 500 million dollars; midwest mayors want 400 million dollars. If the President asks for 250 million dollars he probably will fancy he is adopting a conservative course, inasmuch as he has repeatedly stated that the federal government will not permit any one to starve.

Just why hundreds of millions of dollars should be needed to prevent starvation after five years of New Deal experimentation is not clear. Why should the richest country in the world be constantly terrorized by threats of starvation? The President, however, stolidly refuses to attribute the depression to New Deal policies or to government competition with private enterprise. His thesis is that when business fails to bridge the gap it is the duty of government to step in and save the people. Soon the people will be privileged to step in and save themselves from the ravages of government.

The American Institute of Public Opinion in a nation-wide sampling referendum reports that 63 per cent of the persons canvassed are opposed to increased government spending and that 37 per cent favor this method of getting out of the depression. Commenting on the referendum, Dr. Gallup, director of the institute, says, "An analysis of the comments from voters indicates that the majority oppose government spending for two main reasons: First, they say that a business recovery induced by that method would be artificial and impermanent. 'We tried spending before,' runs one typical comment, 'and when it eased up we had another slump.' A second reason advanced by the majority is that the tax burden must not be increased. 'More taxes,' declared one voter, a housewife, 'will postpone the prosperity we want.'"

Many citizens who do not approve the President's policies will sympathize with him in his present embarrassment. Powerful political blocs are demanding more money. Congressional primaries are in the offing. Confession of New Deal blunders at this time would be fatal. Pump priming at least produces the hectic flush of prosperity and might meet the political emergency even if it did not restore economic health.

Before the year is ended we shall know whether the people approve government extravagance and waste running into billions of dollars.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

MAURICE EVANS received glowing tributes from the critics and many curtain calls after his first night's performance of "King Richard II.," but another tribute was paid the universality of his art. The entire staf of the theater, including the doorman and checkroom employés, crowded in to watch his performance, and George (Knockout) Brown, former prize fighter and now taxi starter in front of the Grand, bought himself a seat and sat throughout the entire performance.

SO AM I.

Now you're in Kentucky,
Red birds and greening grass—
Now you're in Atlanta
With daffodils to pass.

Now you're by the ocean,
Still palms against the sky,
Close your eyes a moment
And see, dear, so am I.

Lila Terry.

NEW HOPE for the young man too shy to handle matters himself—the sign Ruth Stein reports on a Lawrence avenue florist's shop—"Weddings Arranged."

THEN THERE was this personal in the Berwyn paper relayed by Agnes Van Curo: Weddings complete $7, includes doctor's and minister's fee, blood tests, health and marriage certificates. By a retired physician-minister.

Eternal Feminine.

The most touching big city sight of the month—the lone cleaning woman Marge Paselk saw through the lighted windows of a hat factory near the loop last Saturday night, wearing her apron, her broom and pail parked nearby, trying on the hats, most of them with long flowing veils.

ALONG THE DES PLAINES.

(From the kitchen window.)

My garden is a drawing room, done overnight in white, where various furred and feathered guests are gathered. Freshly blown snow has draped the shrubbery with lace and tufted white lilacs into lovely flower. From drifts of bloom on hawthorns snow petals fall casually to earth.

Beside the window, with black cap pulled well about his ears, sits a hungry chickadee. His animated little wife in the cherry tree awaits his signal to approach the buffet breakfast on the window shelf. Less timid than the others, the tufted titmouse family of five with light rufous sides and cunning dark crests are already dining there.

From the oak a wary cardinal cheers and, gaining courage with each cheer, flits closer by degrees until the wild crabapple tree is reached. Its boughs provide a landing place where nuthatches, cardinals, chickadees, and titmice may perch and crack their sunflower seeds.

Contemplating a swooping attack on doughnut crumbs below, a great bluejay is unperturbed by a silvery gray and two red squirrels endeavoring to frighten him away by loud incessant scolding.

A while ago the straggler flicker came. He seemed bewildered by the cold. Agreeable throaty notes of starlings and the bright twitterings of sparrows fill the air. Some juncos are in the sumac, the lame starling and a lone robin on the cleared garden path. A cottontail scampers across it, forest bound. The tracks of a pheasant wind in and out among the shrubbery.

All live in the wood beyond, but when the first snow fell they came for food; I coaxed them to the window and now I have them—on relief.

Beatrice Phelps.

Anthony Eden Speaking Perhaps?

This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England,
. . . . . .
This land of such dear souls, this dear, dear land,
Dear for her reputation throughout the world,
Is now leased out, I die pronouncing it . . .
England, with inky blots and rotten parchment bonds;
That England that was wont to conquer others.
Hath made a shameful conquest of itself,
Ah, would the scandal vanish with my life,
And happy then were my ensuing death.

Cook's Query.

A graduate of normal college, who was unable to get a job teaching, is acting as cook in a North Damen avenue home. As she was preparing spareribs for dinner she inquired, "Shall I bake these with the convex or concave side up?"

INTERESTING to long-time Chicago residents are the physical changes that take place in the city within their memories—practically before their eyes. Ashland boulevard is an example. It is now known as Labor row to a large percentage of the population, since one labor union after another has bought property along the boulevard between Van Buren and Washington streets, starting with the Machinists' society purchase of the old Illinois club at 113 South Ashland in 1917. Yet citizens now living can remember when the vicinity was the home of the Kentucky colony before Prairie avenue became the fashionable residence district. The late Henry Honoré and A. C. Badger lived there; the old family home of Carter H. Harrison was at Ashland and Jackson. Mr. Harrison remembers the time when his father called in a German to make two barrels of echtes sauerkraut from cabbages grown in their truck garden and recalls the making of two barrels of currant and one of gooseberry wine from berries grown on their property.

The Coal Teamsters, the Milk Wagon Drivers, the Bakery Wagon Drivers, the Teamsters' Council hall, the Women's Trade Union league are all in the vicinity where once were hospitable mansions and green lawns. The Street Car Men's hall and the Electrical Workers' Labor temple also are located in the district.

APOPLEXY OR HEMORRHAGE IN THE BRAIN.

WHEN a vessel breaks within the skull, blood escapes, pressure on the soft parts results, and there is more or less destruction of brain substance. The accident usually is sudden and dramatic. Unconsciousness may come quickly or deepen with each passing moment. Breathing as a rule is noisy and irregular.

Cerebral hemorrhage, or apoplexy, offers many difficulties as to diagnosis, and it is necessary that a true interpretation of symptoms be made promptly. For example, a blow on the head may not cause a fracture of the skull. Nevertheless, the brain itself may be severely torn or bruised, and hemorrhage may follow. If the bleeding is beneath the outer layer of the meninges [membranes covering the brain], blood may spread rapidly with signs of compression. Four or five weeks later paralysis may come on. This is the reason why we pay so much attention to such complaints as recurring headache, irritability, lack of concentration, which may appear a few weeks after a skull injury.

Apoplexy seldom is encountered in a person under 40, although syphilis may so damage the arteries that a rupture or break may occur at a somewhat earlier period. These vessels give way because they are weakened by disease. This fact, coupled with increased blood pressure—which places a greater strain on the walls of the conduits—supplies the explanation.

To illustrate: Persons with chronic Bright's disease [inflammation of the kidneys], or those whose arteries have been impaired through the absorption of some toxin, are likely to be affected. Overexertion, anger, or any situation that may increase temporarily the congestion of blood to the upper part of the body may be a precipitating factor.

Occasionally the onset is slow, ushered in by a severe attack of vomiting, with subsequent partial loss of consciousness. But more often than not the catastrophe is unexpected. If standing, the patient will sink to the floor, perfectly relaxed. The face is flushed and the temperature, which at first falls a degree or two below normal, within twenty-four hours generally will rise to about 101 degrees F.

Bystanders can be useful before the physician arrives, if they have enough foresight to loosen the collar or any constricting band about the neck so as to give freedom for breathing. The victim should be placed in a horizontal position, with the face down so that the tongue will not fall backward into the throat. If an ice bag is at hand, it may be applied to the head. The feet and lower portion of the body should be wrapped in available clothing so as to retain body heat. If the patient is pale and can swallow, a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia will provide a quick restorative.

The question which every member of the family will ask is, "What will be the outcome?"

If deep unconsciousness lasts more than twenty-four hours, the prospect is unfavorable, particularly if pallor remains and the temperature continues to rise. On the other hand, if mental alertness is fairly well preserved, even though paralysis exists and the fever stays around 100 degrees for a few days, we may be hopeful of improvement with some recovery of muscular power.

The important thing is to put the individual on a type of management which will forestall another mishap of similar character. For a time, at least, the diet should be liquid or soft. Attention to the bowels will be required and good body hygiene must be emphasized. Massage and electrical stimulation are most helpful for paralyzed muscles. Tub or tank bathing, especially in salt water, will aid in regaining active movements.

It is, however, far wiser to avoid damaging infections and high blood pressure, thus lessening the danger of these episodes. To bed with fevers and enough vacations and exercise to repair body wastes must be the rule. A plethora of food is an additional load, requiring unwaranted effort on the part of the circulation.

ABOUT AORTITIS.

B. S. writes:

1. What is aortitis, and why does the aorta become inflamed?
2. Is it serious? Curable? What is the general treatment prescribed?
3. What causes sudden shudders and goose flesh?
4. I am taking theelin. Will this help any? I am 35 years old.
5. Is there a possibility of sudden death from aortitis?

REPLY.

1. Inflammation of the aorta, the main channel which carries arterial blood from the heart. Syphilis is a common cause. There are others, however.
2. Reasonably so. The condition requires careful management and a search is made for the causative factor in order to reduce further damage to the walls of this important tube.
3. Chilling or disturbance of the nervous system. Fear is sometimes responsible.
4. Theelin is the female sex hormone and it is used for menstrual disturbances, etc. It has no direct effect on the aorta.
5. The usual effect is stretching of the walls of the pipe with some signs of pressure. Sudden death from this cause alone is not common.

TREATING SYPHILIS.

H. H. writes: If heat at 107 degrees F. can arrest the ravages of paresis by destroying the spirochete which is "extremely sensitive to heat," as is asserted, why cannot heat treatment be given for all kinds of syphilis?

REPLY.

Fever therapy is a heroic measure attended with an element of danger. Some experiments tend to show that the treatment is not nearly as effective in the acute periods of the disease. Arsenic, bismuth, and mercury are the remedies of choice in the earlier stages.

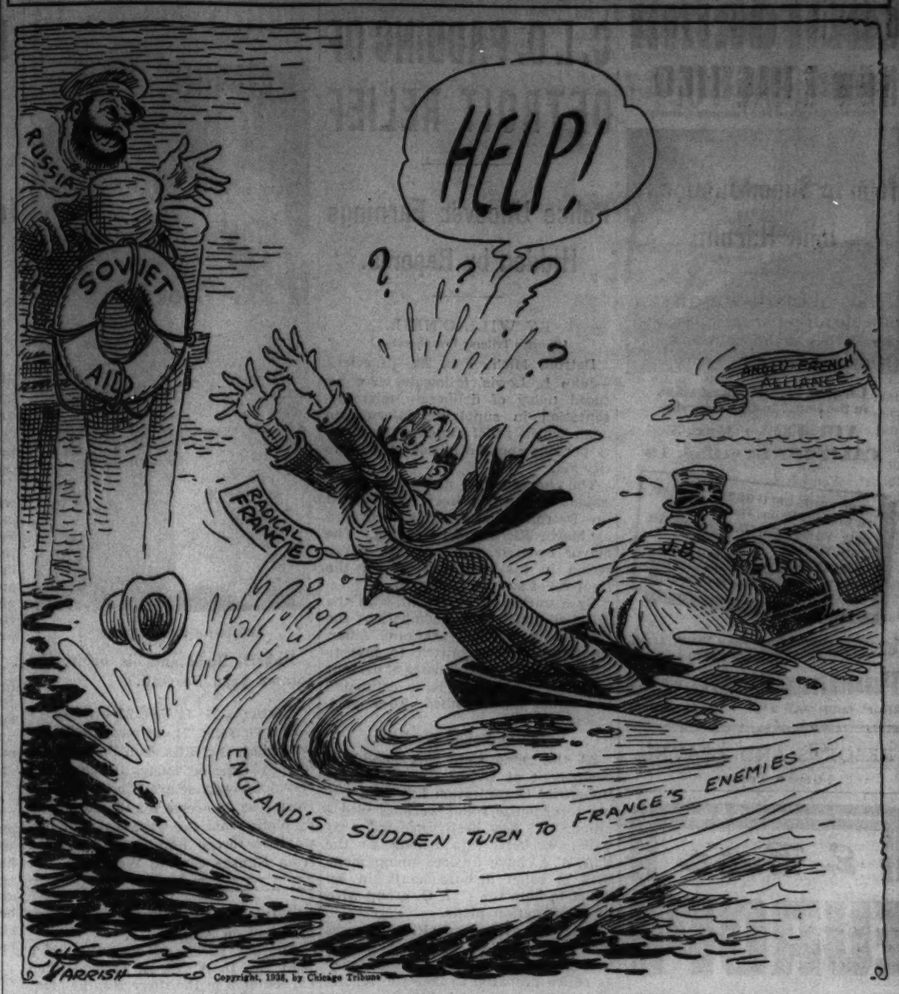
CAUSES OF DROOLING.

G. O. writes: What causes an adult to drool, usually early in the morning, just before awakening?

REPLY.

Drooling is likely to appear from any irritation within the mouth which reflexly stimulates an increased flow of saliva. Some persons will notice this phenomenon on wearing artificial dentures [false teeth]. Indigestion is a factor; likewise, certain nervous states. Good hygiene of the mouth is the first step toward recovery. Have your dentist make a careful inspection of your teeth.

THE LOGICAL RESORT



From Across the Sea

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—British film historians declare that scores of early Charlie Chaplin films now in circulation are fakes, and that a dozen genuine "old Chaplins," prized by collectors as movie antiques, have vanished.

The fakes are photographic copies of genuine early Keystone comedies of the Roscoe Arbuckle, Mabel Normand, Ford Sterling, and Mack Sennett era.

But cuts, rearrangements, and added mechanical shots have been made in some of these old films and they have been farmed out under new titles as original Chaplin features.

The British Film institute is seeking to clear up the problem, but the difficulties of tracing and classifying these pre-war movies are increased by the fact that no two authorities seem to agree as to the number of Chaplin films made by the Keystone company in 1914, and most of them differ as to which was the first.

"All the trouble is due to the fact that in the early days films were sold outright instead of being rented or hired out, as they are now," an official of the institute stated.

"This made it easy for dupers to manufacture duplicates of films they had just bought.

"The Chaplin films had a ready-made market, and consequently they were favorite subjects of the duper.

"To cover his tracks the duper habitually gave his copy a new title. In this way the problem of Chaplin's early films has become enveloped in confusion.

"Nearly a hundred titles are on record and up to the present there has been no way of distinguishing originals from fakes. The British Film institute is now clearing up the mystery. Page by page the trade papers of the day have been searched for evidence, and the issue date and original title of every Chaplin film have been extracted.

"About three dozen of the earliest Chaplins are still in the catalogs of renters and film libraries, but at least a dozen are missing."

STREET REPAIRS.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—[Friend of the People.]—I wrote you some time ago asking when the streets on the east side of the Milwaukee railroad tracks in Edgebrook Manor will be paved by the WPA, as the streets on the west side of the tracks were paved almost two years ago. We, the residents, were told two years ago that our streets would be paved by the WPA and that the money had been appropriated for it. Please place this letter in the hands of the proper authorities for consideration.

In connection with the above, every possible effort will be made by this office to have the WPA include these streets in the program for the coming year, and we have been advised by them that action can be expected here in the near future, weather conditions permitting.

MARRIAGE ILLEGAL.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1936 a young couple obtained a license and were married in Illinois. Later the husband told the wife that he had been previously married in Oklahoma, and that to his knowledge his first wife had not as yet obtained a divorce.

1. If the first wife should obtain a divorce would the second marriage be legal?
2. Would it be necessary to secure another license and [3] have another ceremony after the divorce was obtained in order to make the second marriage legal?

H. B. T.

1. Not unless a new ceremoney is performed.
2. We cannot determine without additional facts whether a new license would be necessary. The present law imposes a time limit on licenses, but the old law did not.

WIFE BEATEN IN PUBLIC.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—It happened on the front platform of a Broadway street car, in the loop Friday afternoon. The man was tall and robust, the woman small and sickly looking. She had evidently forgotten to bring along her week's wages to her master, as she did not have it when he asked for it. After ten minutes of abuse he kicked her twice and then struck her in the face with his fist.

I am elderly and just out of a hospital, and unfortunately could not hand out the beating the case called for. But an attempt to get the five other men present to take action proved useless. Splendid examples of American manhood! And also, how about the whipping post for wife-beaters in Illinois?

THE FREE EMPLOYMENT SERVICE.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—It seems advisable to amplify a statement which appeared in your column Feb. 14 with reference to the relation of the Illinois state employment service with private employment agencies.

The writer may not be informed regarding the relations which the state employment service maintains with other placement agencies. It coöperates extensively with those nonfee charging agencies which are members of the council of social agencies by reporting openings for which no sufficiently well qualified applicants are available. As this arrangement is reciprocal, the state employment service receives openings from the coöperating agencies under the same circumstances. Agencies which charge fees for jobs are not included in this arrangement.

DELINQUENT TAXES.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Would it be asking too much of the two latest self-appointed authorities on delinquent tax collections, Mr. Clayton F. Smith and Mr. John O. Rees, to try and explain to the people of Chicago how much of the millions in delinquent taxes are on vacant subdivisions that were originally assessed at four or five times the actual value? Furthermore, the special assessments were at least twice what they should have been. I expect 75 per cent of this vacant property which is probably 75 per cent of the delinquent property, to go back to cow pasture.

Do not put too much blame on the tax collection agencies. I was one of the delinquent suckers who finally woke up to the fact that I had a dead horse on my hands; so why pay more stable rent? Let the man who owned the stable clean up the mess. JUST A TAXPAYER.

THAT STORY NEEDED NO TOUTING.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—I read the coming announcements heralding the arrival of Mei-Mei. I tuned in and heard the railroad station welcoming broadcast. I saw the pictures in the newspapers and read the descriptions anent the baby giant panda. I benefited greatly getting the full results of words, words, and words. But nowhere did I read or hear a word of the maddeningly busy press agent who must have engineered this whole show. Has he been obscured under a pile of clippings without the energy to identify himself so that a word of merit may be hung on him! ANNE TARG.

GOLD.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—It was interesting to read your comment on the United States government and its so-called monopolistic gold policy. It seems to me several things might have been added to complete the picture and serve to enlighten rather than confuse your readers.

You say the government is buying, and has bought up all the world's production of new gold and part of the stocks of old gold for the last three years. In the first place, I object to your everlasting effort to separate the United States government from the people of the United States. When, as you say, the United States government is buying gold, that means that the American people are buying gold. Now let us see how they do it and why they do it.

When gold is shipped and consigned to an American bank the consigner is credited at that bank with the value of the gold received. The treasury then, according to its policy, takes over the gold and reimburses the bank by opening an equivalent credit to the bank's account. It is enabled to do this by borrowing from the banks to provide such credit.

The purpose of all this is the promotion of the sale of American goods abroad. The foreign buyer is attracted to our markets by our depreciated money. He is also a seller and would like to exchange with us at least enough of his goods to pay for what he buys from us. This he finds he cannot do; that there is a balance of trade against him. The American people are fully aware of this situation, and a great many even seem to favor it. You remember how Landon Republicans looked with disfavor on reciprocal trade agreements. We, therefore, agree to take the foreigner's gold in lieu of goods, and we are taking it on the best terms we can get. The treasury does the rest.

You say "our handling of gold is very bad." It is not our handling of gold that is bad, but our handling of foreign trade. The present administration deserves credit for the efforts made to expand our foreign markets. I believe we are very close now to a balance. Obviously the only way to reverse the trend of gold to this country is to increase our imports. It is no secret that as a nation approaches a balance in trade with other nations it is promoting its own material interests. RAY O. CHAPMAN.

HORSE AND BUGGY STANDARDS.

Millington, Ill., Feb. 18.—The President says his idea of a price level is that of 1926. This date is six years previous to the advent of his New Deal.

The New Deal promised that we were going ahead and said that no one wanted to go back to "horse and buggy days," but 1909-1914 were the very peak of those days.

I read where the farm act contains 62,000 words, the oft repeated quotation therein, "as the secretary may determine," constituting nearly 1,000 of those words. That sounds like the joker in the old lightning rod contract of "horse and buggy days." H. B. FARMER.

SANE-OR-INSANE BANDIT TO FACE NEW TRIAL TODAY

Hope to Speed Justice for John Harbut.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

The first move to speed justice for John Harbut, notorious gunman who escaped a penitentiary sentence for forty robberies in 1933 by being declared insane, is to be made today when he is arraigned before Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington in the Criminal court on a new gun robbery charge. Special Prosecutor Robert Wright said he would ask that Harbut's case be placed on the trial call immediately and that he be sent to trial before the week is over, either before a jury or a judge.

Chief Justice Harrington agreed to coöperate in as speedy a disposition of the case as the law allows. If Harbut appears without an attorney, as it was indicated yesterday he would do, Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach will be named to defend him.

Defender Plans Conference.

Bachrach said if he is appointed to defend Harbut for robbing Miss Wanda Dziewitz, 21 years old, 963 Milwaukee avenue, and William Pryz, 23 years old, 924 Noble street, last Friday night, he will confer with his client to determine if he is able to coöperate with his counsel. If the conference is successful the attorney indicated, he will not move for any insanity proceeding. At the time he committed his latest crime, Harbut posed as Paul Harrison, the mad hammer slayer who was recaptured several days ago after his escape from the state hospital for the criminal insane at Chester.

"Harbut has been calm and peaceful ever since his arrest," said the police at the Racine avenue station where he is being held pending his transfer to the county jail today. "Of course you can never tell when he might decide to pull some more nut stuff again to attempt to avoid punishment."

Freed from Hospital.

Harbut was sent to the Chester hospital in 1933 after Dr. Harry R. Hoffman of the Criminal court behavior clinic submitted his findings of traumatic psychosis [insanity due to injury] to a jury, which found Harbut insane. In 1936 Harbut was found sane by Dr. Paul Schroeder, state criminologist, and Dr. H. Douglas Singer, state alienist, and was sent back to Cook county. Dr. Hoffman reëxamined him then and agreed with the recovery report of the state alienists, and a new jury on the basis of these reports found Harbut sane.

On the basis of precedents established by ancient English common law, which hold that an insane person cannot be held responsible and accountable for his crimes, the state's attorney's office dropped the other robbery charges that were pending against Harbut when it was ruled that he was insane.

Prosecutors and judges agreed yesterday that, lacking a specific statute to cover rare cases like Harbut's, nothing can be done toward the punishment of insane criminals after they regain sanity. The old common law protects infants and others who are unable to distinguish between right and wrong from prosecution for acts that, committed by sane persons, would be crimes.

The case of Attorney David Y. Patlak, who was accused of swindling many clients by manipulation of mortgage renewal money, was cited by Assistant State's Attorney John Gallagher as a typical example.

Patlak was found insane by a jury on Jan. 12, 1934, under circumstances similar to those in Harbut's case. Dr. Hoffman in that case returned a report of dementia praecox with auditory and visual hallucinations, due to an advanced case of diabetes. After treatment at Chester under a diabetic diet, Patlak improved, the alienist reported, and he was declared sane at a new jury hearing on Jan. 15, 1935.

Freed by Supreme Court.

The state's attorney's office put Patlak to trial on the theory that although insane when the jury was impaneled on Jan. 12, 1934, he was sane when he committed his crimes a few months before. A jury found him guilty and he was ordered to the penitentiary. The decision was appealed to the Supreme court, where it was reversed, and Patlak was freed.

"The burden devolves on the state to prove beyond a reasonable doubt, that the defendant could distinguish and choose between right and wrong of his acts," the decision read. The court held the state did not prove this fact and could not under the testimony.

The Chicago crime commission indicated that at its next meeting the subject of insanity laws applying to crime will be discussed. The theory of the insanity law, however, is so deeply imebedded in Supreme court decisions that several lawyers said they doubted that it could be changed.

BLOOD STAINS FOUND IN MISSING TEACHER'S CAR ARE BEING TESTED

Carbondale, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Analysis of the blood found on a raincoat belonging to Arno Bratten, former principal of the township high school at Marion, Ill., who has been missing mysteriously for eight days, was being made here today.

Arno Bratten.

The coat was found covering blood spots in Bratten's automobile, which had been abandoned here. It was believed the car was left here last Thursday, three days after Bratten last was seen by his family when he left home Monday night to attend a political meeting in Marion.

It was learned today that a few hours before Bratten disappeared he obtained the address of one of his former pupils, Paul J. Grady, who now lives at 562 Washington boulevard, Glencoe, Ill., and said he planned to visit him. However, Mr. Grady said that Bratten, who was his instructor twenty years ago, never had been to his house.

BAT MURDER QUIZ BARES FIXING OF LAUNDRY PRICES

Prosecutor Opens Inquiry Into New Scheme.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Investigation of the murder of Lloyd Rourke, laundry delivery man, on Feb. 10 has disclosed a new "stabilizing" and price fixing movement in the Chicago laundry trade, Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant to State's Attorney Courtney, said yesterday.

As its investigation of the Rourke case progresses Courtney's staf intends to seek further details of the new laundry organization, known as the Commercial Laundry Institute, Crowley declared. Prominent in the affairs of the institute is Attorney Morris I. Kaplan, a leading figure in the so-called racket conspiracy trial in 1934, which involved widespread terrorism and attempted price fixing in the laundry and other industries. Kaplan and all the other defendants were acquitted in that case.

Seek to Link Strike and Murder.

Rourke was slugged with a baseball bat as he was delivering laundry to the Fairfax hotel, 1369 Hyde Park boulevard. He died without regaining consciousness. The laundry he was delivering had been done at the Del Prado hotel, 5307 Hyde Park boulevard, which at the time was being picketed by the Trades and Crafts council in an attempt to unionize its employés.

Because of other incidents of violence in connection with the strike at the Del Prado, investigators of the Rourke killing have sought ties between the strike and the murder. Courtney limited picketing at the hotel, declaring that, while some of the unions affiliated with the Trades and Crafts council were legitimate organizations, the council itself was dominated by hoodlums who had little, if any, previous connection with the labor movement.

In the course of the investigation, however, it was learned that a short time before the Rourke murder the Fairfax had taken its laundry business away from a commercial laundry and sent it to the Del Prado, which does contract work for other hotels. The action was taken, it was reported, after the laundry which had been doing the work had raised its prices. This drew attention to the latest attempt to organize the laundry owners of the city.

Most of Trade from Hotels.

Membership in the Commercial Laundry institute is confined to laundries which do a substantial percentage of flat work—sheets, towels, table linen, etc. The hotels of the city which do not run their own laundries furnish almost all of this work.

A laundry man who belongs to the institute expressed surprise that it should even be suspected that the switching of the laundry work by the Fairfax should be connected with the Rourke case. "Stabilization" of prices on flat work, he said, is to be sought by legal action under the so-called fair trade practice act recently passed by the Illinois legislature.

Highly competitive conditions, the member said, have in the last few years taken all of the profit out of flat work. Some laundries bid for work at rates as low as 1½ cents a pound, whereas their costs for the work, properly figured, approach 3 cents a pound, he asserted.

The flat work operators during the last year had an informal organization known as the Flat Work club, which sought to stop price cutting. Out of the Flat Work club grew the Commercial Laundry institute, incorporated in recent months.

Gets $1,000 a Month.

Attorney Kaplan, the laundry man asserted, was at first reluctant to take part in the enterprise, but eventually consented to act as an adviser to the institute for two months at $1,000 a month, out of which he was to furnish a field secretary. The laundry man also said he had been informed that the charter of the institute had been submitted to the state's attorney and approved by him.

"That's ridiculous," commented Crowley. "In the first place Mr. Courtney would not pass on such a matter because it is not his function to do so. In the second place, I'm reasonably certain that it was not submitted to him."

As the laundry owner explained it, the procedure of the institute will be to determine laundry costs on flat work by test runs now being made, and then employ auditors to make periodical inspections of the books of members. If a member is found doing work below the cost as determined by the institute, the organization will seek to restrain him by an injunction sought under the fair trade practice act.

Earlier Attempt to "Stabilize."

Attorney Kaplan is a specialist in trade association law. The 1934 trial grew out of previous attempts to "stabilize" prices in the laundry, dry cleaning, linen supply, and carbonated beverage industries in the city.

It was charged at the trial that Al Capone, Murray Humphreys, and other gangsters were paid large sums to "police" different industries, and that labor unions coöperated with trade associations by calling strikes against individual businesses which cut prices.

STATE OWES LAWYER 25 PCT. OF UNCLAIMED 16 MILLION DOLLARS

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Dauphin county court ruled today that Michael Edelman, a Philadelphia lawyer who reported to the state unclaimed money totaling 16 million dollars—mostly in corporation treasuries—was entitled to one-fourth of the amount the state collects. Under Pennsylvania law an informer is entitled to 25 per cent of unclaimed money that reverts to the state after a certain number of years as a result of information furnished by the informer, who must prosecute and prove the money is due the state.

START REVISING STATE LAWS ON CITIES, VILLAGES

The municipal code commission, created by the legislature at its last session, held its first meeting yesterday in the office of its chairman, State Senator Thomas E. Keane, 221 North La Salle street. The commission's task is to revise and codify all state laws affecting cities, villages, and incorporated towns. Its recommendations will be submitted to the general assembly next January.

Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago] was named to head a committee which will work on a revision of the laws as they apply to Chicago. Charles P. Edwards, city attorney of Aurora, heads the committee which will consider the municipal code problems of the downstate cities. Senator George C. Dixon [R., Dixon], co-sponsor with Senator Keane of the resolution creating the commission, was elected its secretary.

Trafic on the new feeder bus line in Ogden avenue between Lincoln and Union parks has increased 23 per cent since it was opened five weeks ago. Officials of the Chicago Surface lines, which operate the buses, reported yesterday that an average of 4,700 passengers now ride each week day, compared with 3,800 in the first few days. About half of the riders are transfer passengers.

The trafic gain has required the use of nine instead of the original seven buses. The interval between buses has been reduced from 4½ minutes to less than 4 minutes in the rush hours. The line provides a cut-off for riders from the near north side to the west side, saving as much as 15 minutes by eliminating a trip through the loop.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

The New Farm Law

Article III.

Feb. 22, 1938.

LOANS provided in the agricultural adjustment act of 1938 are said to be for the purpose of helping farmers to obtain, as nearly as practicable, parity prices for corn and certain other commodities by establishing prices at artificially high levels. No corn loans will be made under the new farm law before next November.

The federal government's Commodity Credit corporation is directed to make loans on corn available when the November crop estimate is in excess of a normal year's domestic consumption and exports, or when the price of corn on Nov. 15 is below 75 per cent of parity. The rate of loan per bushel will range from 52 to 75 per cent of parity, varying with the supply.

Two roads are open to corn growers. They may become coöperators by planting the crops and following the practices approved by the government. In this case they would collect government checks under the law and be eligible to receive federal corn loans.

Refusal to Co-operate.

They may refuse to coöperate and be free to increase their acreage of corn. Farmers who take this route would hope to make more money through the sales of their increased production at the higher price levels, offsetting the government check paid for coöperating on the soil program.

Coöperating farmers in the commercial corn producing area will be able to borrow the full rate offered. Noncoöperators, or those who do not meet the law's requirements, in the commercial sections, will be eligible for loans only when there is a market quota in effect. The loan to noncoöperators, however, will be only on corn stored under the market quota seal, and the rate will be limited to 60 per cent of the rate applied to loans made to coöperators.

Loans are to be made to coöperators outside the commercial area, but they will be limited to 75 per cent of the rate on loans to coöperators within the commercial corn zone.

Maximum Loan Rate.

The maximum loan rate of 75 per cent of parity would be applied if the corn crop does not exceed the normal supply and the farm price is below 75 per cent of parity. In this case, with parity price at the present level of approximately 84 cents a bushel, the farmer could borrow about 63 cents a bushel. This would be 15 to 18 cents a bushel above the present farm price of good corn in Illinois.

The actual loan rate, however, would depend upon the size of the crop—the larger the crop, the smaller the loan. If the crop is 25 per cent or more above a normal year's domestic consumption and exports, then the farmer's loan would be at the minimum rate of 52 per cent of parity, or, in this case, 46 cents a bushel.

Critics fear that if the loans do result in boosting the price of corn above the price which would be paid under the operations of the law of supply and demand, this would invite increases in production, temporarily build up burdensome surpluses, invite competing imports, restrict exports, and lead to government losses on the money loaned to farmers.

KEMP AND BAND TO GO ON AIR IN TELEPATHY SHOW

Extra Sensory Experience to Be Told Sunday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Hal Kemp, who with his band was aboard the train wrecked at Worth yesterday will drop in on that telepathy show at CBS next Sunday evening to relate an unusual experience in the realm of extra sensory perception. He is to direct his orchestra in a few bars each of a waltz, a tango, and a foxtrot and listeners will be invited to "receive" them by mental telepathy and report their results.

Ever since he has been at the Drake hotel from the first of the month we have been trying to get in tune, extra sensory speaking, with Kemp. But it has been a failure. We will be glad when he gets back on the air again with his slick music.

Kay Kyser, who like Kemp is a North Carolina boy, is making good handsomely through his sponsored Musical Klass show. Last evening this Mutual attraction was expanded from 45 minutes to a full hour. And it's reported the sponsor wants to move the campus from Chicago to New York at the end of next month.

There isn't anything to those stories that Mickey Mouse is going off the air. Listeners like the show, the sponsor likes it, Walt Disney likes it, Mickey likes it, and Donald Duck is having the time of his life. He wouldn't think of giving up that chance to say, "This is the National Broadcasting company" each Sunday afternoon. Sponsor is thinking, however, of an additional show, a serial titled "Career Woman," by Ted Sherdeman, formerly director of Lights Out. If signed this show will come from Hollywood, too.

Bob Trendler is taking over Harold Stokes' programs while he vacations in Tampa, Fla. . . . Burr E. Lee Jr., who was awarded a Tribune medal for efficiency in the Evanston High school R. O. T. C. is a son of radio actor Burr Lee of The Court of Missing Heirs and other programs.

Arch Oboler passed on this note about Irving Reis who formerly produced the serious Columbia Workshop dramas. Reis went to Paramount Studios in Hollywood recently and his first assignment was to write some comedy material for Fibber McGee's next movie. Incidentally Don Quinn, who writes the McGee air series, used to illustrate articles Oboler wrote a few years back for magazines. . . . Dr. Harry Hagen on his True or False program on Mutual Monday evening asked a Yale student whose face adorns a $10,000 bill. The Yaleman had the right answer, Salmon Chase. Mr. Chase was Lincoln's secretary of the treasury, in case you have forgotten. . . . Never do Lincoln's birthday or Washington's pass without a lot of jesting about them on the air in the poorest of taste. Worst we heard this year, which concerned Washington, was on the Burns and Allen show.

CHICAGOAN WINS $25,000 PRIZE IN PUZZLE CONTEST

The first thing Gerson Ecker, 4½ years old, wanted to know yesterday was whether he could have that new toy now. His father, Bernard J. Ecker, 4404 North Winchester avenue, had promised it to him if his prize was more than $100.

Gerson got the toy. His father won third grand prize of $25,000 in the second Old Gold puzzle contest and received a check for that amount yesterday from representatives of P. Lorillard & Co., sponsors of the contest. Ecker is part owner of the Knox Advertising service at 360 North Michigan avenue.

S. M. Van Sant Jr., a $35 a week clerk in Boston, Mass., won first prize of $100,000. Second prize of $50,000 went to Miss Henrietta D. Bruns, a stenographer at the Thomas A. Edison company factory in West Orange, N. J.

Engineer, Who Saw Birth of Union Pacific, Is Dead

British Tweeds Create Stir in Fashion World

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The fine British tweeds and wools you've dreamed about—colors that are irresistibly new, streamlines that are young, crisp, and snappy—make new street outfits a big event of early spring. This is authentic English stuff, the fabrics exceptionally beautiful; all scratchy textures absent and with all stiffness and bulk also missing. These tweeds will appeal to the comfort demanding customers.

Two piece outfits are as numerous and as smartly styled as the three piece combines. Crushed raspberry in watery shades take the spotlight and huge checks give the soft luscious tones a good run for popularity. These and the newest suedes are the finds of spring.

There's one cashmere duet that should get into circulation immediately; it's a small check design in beige and coffee brown with a pinkish cast. That sounds rather complicated, but the tweed feels like heavy satin and is warm enough to see you through a subzero cold spell without complaint.

Checked dull blue and deep raspberry red checked wool, with the checks a good three inches square, make a jacket for a pinkish tweed skirt. Another jacket is made of similar colors in striped effect with the front vest using the stripes in cross formation. This is teamed with a plain tweed skirt.

A three piece outfit has a stunning swagger topcoat of reddish mixture to be worn over a two piece suit of rust red or copper tone. Self covered buttons march up the front of the fitted and belted jacket.

The colored suede outfits that will compete for your last penny include star sapphire blues and gold tones that are especially attractive. The suedes also are made by English designers.

Fashion photograph. . . . What toddlers will wear this spring. A sturdy outfit from a children's fashion show. Striped cotton knit material is used for the short sleeve round neck pullover. The shorts are of plain knitted material in copen blue. Other colors are available.

Old Fashioned Dancing Gains Favor in City

BY JUDITH CASS.

OLD fashioned country dancing is being revived by a group of young people who meet on Wednesday nights in the gymnasium of the Girls' Latin school. There, with the assistance of a prompter and a pianist, the dancers make the windows rattle with hearty jigs, reels, quadrilles, and hornpipes.

The two dozen who are learning the Portland Fancy, the plain quadrille, the steamboat waltz, and other steps have not revived either the clothing or the conventional behavior of several generations ago when "country" dancing was a favorite recreation.

Stiff collar, tie, vest, and coat are not the things to wear for anything so energetic as country dancing, and present day "gents" generally are prepared to strip to open necked shirts. Their feminine companions dance more comfortably—but not any more lightly—than maids of two hundred years ago, in present day circular, short-skirted frocks.

Some of the etiquet of the ballroom of former days still is observed in country dancing, but other rules have been suspended. It no longer is necessary for a gentleman desiring to meet a lady respectfully to ask the prompter to introduce them. Nor do present day gentlemen feel they must ask a husband's permission before dancing with his wife.

Informal Air Features Parties.

Indeed, at present day public country dancing, as long as a stranger is sober and decent in his behavior, no girl need refuse him a dance. Any girl who knows the dances and swings it in a lusty manner need not worry about being a wallflower, for it makes no difference whether she is young or old, slim or fat, as long as she can keep time.

Besides, there is constant interchanging of partners, and one is never left with the same person all evening. Some of the dances end with every one joining hands in one big circle around the hall. The prompter calls a grand right and left, followed by "All turn partners and promenade the hall." The confusion of finding one's wife or partner resulting from this mixup always puts every one in good humor.

Among those who have been asked to dance at the Dutch treat parties at the school are Miss Virginia and Miss Barbara Hobart, the Roger D. Shaws, the Roland K. Smiths, Miss Frances Bell, Miss Ruth Fisher, Miss Betsy and Miss Sue Ballard, and the latter's fiancé, Stewart Boal; Miss Margaret Wilder, and several bachelors, David Yerkes, "Bob" Jones of Boston and Donough Prince, who share bachelor quarters in Astor street; Gilbert Osgood, and Frank Fowle and Edward Rhetts, who share bachelor quarters with some other young men in Dearborn parkway.

Mr. Rhetts, whose home is in Detroit, roomed in Washington with Mr. Fowle until a year ago when both young men came to Chicago, and it is the former who started this revival of country dancing.

Keep Guest List to Multiples of Eight.

Just who attends these dances each Wednesday at the school is uncertain because some, like Miss Barbara Hobart and Miss Sue Ballard, have gone out of town. Then, too, the number of dancers must be kept to 24 or 32, so there will be an even number of eights for the various figures.

Dancing was a popular amusement of the early Yankees, despite the number of nondancing, noncard playing New Englanders who claim popular

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Exit of a Star

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 22.—"May I have your autograph, Miss Swanson?"

"We want you to indorse this, Miss Swanson." "Yes, Miss Swanson." "Yes, Miss Swanson." "Yes, Miss Swanson." Gloria Swanson in "Zaza" cracking records at New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Denver.

Gloria Swanson: farewell to films.

Swanson in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," hailed by industry. Swanson's footprints in Grauman's Chinese theater forecourt. Swanson, in "Madame Sans Gene" cracking the box office records she hung up in her last picture. "Yes, Miss Swanson." "Yes, Miss Swanson." "Yes, Miss Swanson."

Last night, however, Gloria Swanson loaded her furniture and trunks on a coastwise vessel bound for New York. Hollywood, which had acclaimed her so loudly, had bidden a curt farewell. For this is the way that the movies take care of their great names.

If there is sentiment in Hollywood it is in the pens of those who write about it. Actually, it is a fairly cold blooded business.

There are a lot of kids at the moment who are enjoying just a slice of the popularity which once belonged to Gloria Swanson. I see them daily—Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Joel McCrea, Olivia De Havilland, Anita Louise, Andrea Leeds, Ray Bolger.

It is unfortunate that all of them could not have been at the dock as stevedores loaded the personal belongings of Gloria Swanson aboard the boat. The whine of the crane seemed to be chanting over and over: "Put it in the bank—put it in the bank—put it in the bank."

Sure, it's a swell life—photographers, newspaper men, eager crowds, applause, deference. But let these youngsters remember that one day, a boat will slide up to the dock and stevedores will load their trunks and furniture aboard for their exit from Hollywood. For though they first propose a toast in milk and honey, the movie makers also have a cocktail of vinegar, to speed you on your way.

It's the same course in every business. Produce, or get out. The natural law is the survival of the fittest, and the devil take the hindmost. But I have always had a sick feeling at the pit of my stomach to see this work out, particularly in the case of those who have ridden so high, because it's only when you've gone so high that you feel the drop. So, glass in hand, let's drink a toast to Gloria Swanson of the industry.

To all the youngsters of Hollywood let the lesson sink home. Put it in the bank! No performer was so well beloved as Marie Dressler. The footprints she implanted in the forecourt of Grauman's Chinese theater, as a permanent record of her passage through Hollywood, have been hidden from view—because they moved the box office forward and erected it on the slab of concrete which carried her name and footprints. There is not much sentiment in any business.

This community, world melting pot, might be likened to a violin string that responds to every bow-stroke of the mad fiddlers of Europe. Resignation of Anthony Eden plunged the British actors here into a blue funk comparable to that which gripped them at the abdication of King Edward.

Trans-Atlantic telephones were crowded with calls, Britons calling London to learn if they were to report for duty with their regiments.

The town hasn't witnessed such drama since the present duke of Windsor made history with his "At Long Last" renunciation. Clark Gable recalled it yesterday for on that day, Gable and Myrna Loy were making "Parnell," and there were a score of British actors in the cast.

"I never saw anything like it," said Gable. "Men sat down on the set, tears streaming over their makeup. Others collapsed on chairs and buried their heads in their hands, too overcome by emotion to talk. It must be a great country to inspire a love so deep as that."

Highly placed Britishers, who talked to London from Hollywood, said that the real story of Eden's resignation is this: That Eden had urged England and France to issue a grim ultimatum to Hitler and Mussolini, with the understanding that if the ultimatum were disobeyed, war should be declared immediately.

Eden, they say, believed that Hitler and Mussolini must be crushed now or never. English diplomacy failed to agree with this idea. So Eden resigned. The diplomatic poker game will prove whether or not Eden was right or wrong.

Irving Berlin on the "Alexander's Ragtime Band" set at 20th Century Fox watching Alice Faye singing to the imaginary tunes of a band including Tyrone Power, Don Ameche, and Jack Haley in a San Francisco café. Tyrone is the leader, a violinist; Ameche is the pianist, Haley is at the drums. "What's the name of the band?" I asked Ameche. "Just call it the Clover Club Rascals of Rhythm," he suggested.

This will be Irving Berlin's last picture for some time. He was telling Joe Schenck today that he can't get the feel of Broadway out of his blood; wants to go back and write a musical for Sam H. Harris.

"New Yorkers are all alike," says Schenck, who is a New Yorker and should know; "they'd rather click on Broadway than on any other street in the world. And don't know that I can blame 'em."

Good Morning!

"Everybody Sing" is very gay, very amusing, very tuneful! Its story is an ingratiating blend of farce comedy that pulls tears as well as chuckles.

Clever little Judy Garland is the heroine, but she has a close runner-upper in Fanny Brice, who keeps the audiences happy. Then there's Allan Jones, who has developed a most delightful screen personality. And Billie Burke. And Reginald Owen—and other likable and able players. Nice cast, who get all there is to get out of the neat plot material.

Judy is the child of stage struck parents. Expelled from boarding school because she puts "swing" into Mendelssohn classics, she returns home to find everything haywire. ". . . Mother and father are at outs over mother's new leading man, with whom she rehearses at all hours all over the house.

Sister is taking singing lessons and not going far with them. In love with her is the handsome chef who sings nights in the Café Nappo. . . . Miss Brice is the maid and general family guardian, who "stopped asking for my wages ten years ago." As for the chef, he finances the kitchen, making note of amounts loaned to the family in a little book. . . . Plain nuts—everybody!

It's a rocky road from school to the goal of headliner in a musical show, but with the aid of Allan Jones [chef who graduates into a producer] and Fanny Brice, who—well, never mind!—Judy makes the grade. And so and so. . . .

Little Miss Garland, completely sure of herself at all times, makes Judy Bellaire a highly interesting young person. She has a number of arresting scenes. One you'll have a hard time forgetting is that where Mr. Jones tells her she MUST go back to her parents. I cried a bit right there. . . .

The picture is cleverly rounded out, its musical and ensemble numbers easing in naturally and effectively. Mr. Jones sings several songs thrillingly, and Judy and Fanny tell you some things to music in great style. Direction—the best.

U. of I. Men Students Ask 2 Dormitories for Urbana Campus

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Representatives of 5,000 University of Illinois students who do not belong to fraternities took action tonight in favor of the construction of dormitories and for the establishment of a low cost restaurant and a coöperative book exchange.

Edgar Barton of Springfield, president of the senior class of the Independent Student association and of the Student Senate, presided at the meeting attended by several hundred students at which action was taken.

The meeting favored reports of two committees, one which condemned so-called tenement housing on the campus and calling upon the university to construct several dormitories.

The housing report adopted at the meeting proposes construction of two dormitories to take care of about 450 students at a rental of $35 a month.

Young Field Is Engaged to Joanne Bass

Boston, Mass., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The engagement of Miss Joanne Bass, daughter of former Gov. and Mrs. Robert P. Bass of New Hampshire, to Marshall Field Jr., now a senior at Harvard, was confirmed by close friends of the young couple today. Formal announcement of the engagement is expected this spring.

Asked if rumors of their engagement were true, both Mr. Field and Miss Bass said today that they were engaged, but that the formal announcement was to be deferred because they had known each other for so short a time.

"We are making no secret of the fact that we are to be married," said Mr. Field, "but we are not making the announcement yet, nor have we set the date for the announcement."

The romance is of fairly recent origin, the couple having met about two months ago at one of the numerous debutante balls at Boston, where the stag line is drawn chiefly from among Harvard students. Miss Bass has been spending the winter in Boston at 31 Marlborough street.

One of five children, Miss Bass is a member of the Boston Junior league and is wealthy in her own right, having been one of the heirs of her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird of Boston and Walpole, Mass., widow of a wealthy carpet manufacturer. Her father served as governor of New Hampshire from 1911 to 1918, and is known for his interest in social work projects.

Miss Bass' older sister, Edith, was married in 1933 to Frank Adair Bensal of Baltimore, gentleman jocky and steeplechase rider, and Joanne Bass was her sister's maid of honor.

Young Mr. Field, who has taken an active part in the Hasty Pudding shows at Harvard, is a son of Mrs. Diego Suarez by her former marriage to the grandson of Marshall Field of Chicago.

GUNHAMMERED GOLD

By Luke Short

[Copyright: 1938: By Frederick Dilley Glidden.]

SYNOPSIS.

Abe McCandless, who framed Poco St. Vrain and made him an outlaw, owns a gold mine on a mountain peak. Two insurance agents, sent to bring down the gold, are murdered by two different bands of outlaws. Two-Way Hornbeck, leader of one band, persuades Poco to pose as one of the agents. At the mountain camp Poco finds Rapey Cardowan, killer gunman, posing as the other agent. Shayne, the mine manager, has a lovely daughter, Kate. Cardowan crowds Poco off the cliff and takes the gold. He joins forces with Two-Way. Posing as prospectors they are given an army escort to Rincon. Meanwhile Kate helps rescue Poco. He confesses his identity and promises to recover the gold to save her father from blame. In Rincon Poco saves the life of a stranger, Van. He tricks Two-Way and Cardowan into admitting they put the gold on a stagecoach. Poco rides off after the coach. Two-Way, double-crossing Cardowan, promises McCandless to lead a posse to St. Vrain and the gold. But Cardowan learns the hotel clerk has the gold which was put off the coach and rides off with it, also kidnaping Kate Shayne. The posse catch up with Poco on the coach. When they find no gold McCandless turns on Two-Way. In an exchange of gunfire both are killed. The mob returns to the hotel with Poco, and when they find Cardowan and the gold gone, turn on Poco. The stranger, Van, appears and announces himself a United States marshal. When the mob turns on him he and Poco take refuge in the sheriff's office. Harry, the stagecoach driver, and a girl called Steamboat give the two a chance to escape through the roof.

INSTALMENT XXXIII.

A WOMAN'S SACRIFICE.

Poco pulled the rope through and crawled over to Van and handed him the note, then took a rifle and began a sparse fire.

Van read the note and motioned Poco down.

"A trick," Van said. "Read it."

"That's no trick. I know her."

Poco indicated the ammunition. "I'm the prisoner, law-man. But if you ever want me to stand trial, or live to see me, then you better take it. We can't hold out long at this rate."

"She says they'll fire the place soon. There's talk of it."

"And once we're driven into the jail, we'll never saw through that roof. It's double tinned."

Van only stared at him and said nothing. Then he looked at the frugal heap of ammunition, which, along with what was in their belts, would have to last them till help came. Two concerted rushes, which were almost sure to come when the town was fully awakened and alert to the thrill of a man-hunt and had augmented the numbers of the posse, would use it all up. He had seen enough of mobs to fear them, and he knew that his marshal's badge would count for less than nothing.

He said, "You know her, you say?"

"She's a good girl, a friend to me. That stage driver is a friend of hers, or she couldn't offer us this."

"So much of a friend she'd turn a bunch of gunnies loose on me."

"Listen," Poco said slowly. "If you liked some one, would you rather see them tried and jailed or cut down by a mob?"

"They'd find out," Van said. "When we don't shoot, they'll take a pasear over here and see why."

"Not for an hour or so. In their place would you risk it?"

Van said suddenly. "We'll go. I think I'm a better man than you are, son. I'll show you."

Poco, standing on the table, used the brace and bit to bore four holes at the points of a square, which he joined with a sawed line. Twenty minutes' work and a square of the roof dropped down into his hands. It left an opening large enough to climb through.

Again Poco obeyed and Van placed a chair on the table. Then he climbed up on the chair, straightened up suddenly and appeared to Steamboat on the roof with a gun in hand, pointed toward her.

She said gravely, "All right. I'm unarmed. Come on."

"Lie down," she whispered.

Poco appeared in the opening and hoisted himself through. He lay down by Steamboat and said, "Good girl, Steamboat. Thanks."

Van watched them a second, then he said to Steamboat. "You really like him?"

She only nodded.

Van said stubbornly, "I'm running this. If she wants you alive, let her do it. I'm obliged to her, but it's only half a job she offered."

"I was going down when you left," Steamboat said coldly. "I don't need a tin star and a gun to rawhide me into this, Mister."

Poco said quietly. "You send her down there, Van, and I'll stand up and give myself up. Take your choice."

Van inched his gun over till it covered Poco. "You try it and you'll live five seconds less than you would if you reached the roof-edge."

"Go on," Steamboat said. "I can take care of myself, Poco."

She told them that Harry would pull the stage up beside the end building of the block just as soon as he, standing in the stable door, saw their signal from the roof.

Then she turned to Poco and smiled crookedly. "You're a right hombre, Poco. I'm paying back my debts."

She leaned over and kissed him. Then before he could stop her, she crawled down through the hole.

Van said, "Go ahead of me."

There, below and across the way, lounging in the wide door of the stable, was Harry, smoking a cigaret and talking with the stable attendant. He turned and vanished inside.

In another minute, the empty stage thundered through the door arch and swung out into the street and crossed it, pulling even with the end building, a saddle shop. Suddenly, the brakes screamed on and Harry pulled the stage in close to the building.

"You first," he said, pointing with the gun.

Poco crept down to the eave, looked around, saw no one, then dropped to the top of the stage. He looked up.

"Get inside," Van ordered from the eave.

Poco dropped to the ground between the stage and the building, opened the door and climbed in. There, on the back seat, lay a single-action Colt .45, just waiting to be picked up. Poco scooped it up with one hand, sat down in the corner and wedged the gun under him. He was smiling when Van swung in and sat in the opposite corner and hunkered down. Then they waited for interminable minutes until they heard a man trotting toward them.

Harry did not even look inside as he swung up on the wheel hub, waved to a stable attendant, climbed up on the seat and whipped the horses into motion. Smoothly, the stage rolled out of town and the horses settled down to the light pull.

Harry did not drive fast because it would have attracted notice. Poco, sitting relaxed in the seat, was thinking of him, and of Steamboat too. The thought of her back there alone, fighting off that saloon riff-raff so he could escape, was intolerable. But the thought of Kate Shayne traveling with that killer of a Cardowan was more intolerable.

He knew with absolute certainty that Cardowan was heading for the railroad, because there was no other way he could elude inevitable pursuit and still keep the gold. Six hours headstart, with a bare fifty miles to the railroad, would work out nicely for him. And once aboard the train, he was gone for good.

Select Clothes Fitting Your Wardrobe Needs, Advises Diva

"A singer facing her concert audience has to solve the same clothes problems as does the average woman who must make a few frocks serve several purposes," says Mme. Vina Bovy, brilliant Belgian soprano.

"For the two hours or more that a singer is before her audience," Mme. Bovy explains, "she has to be as pleasing to the eye as possible, lest she be confronted with a vast sea of faces, all with closed eyes! Thus, choosing a gown for a concert appearance is one of the most difficult problems which a woman artist has to solve.

"Similarly, the average woman is presented with much the same difficulty," Mme. Bovy points out, "the difference being that whereas a singer must choose a dress which will be as attractive at the end of a concert as at the beginning, most women must choose several dresses which will be as attractive at the end of the season as at the beginning."

For her appearance with Toscanini, the Metropolitan diva chose white lace. "White, because it offers effective contrast to the black of the orchestra musicians' suits, and because I believe that, for formal occasions, white always is correct. And I choose lace," Mme. Bovy continues, "because lace is more than ordinarily flattering, and because its pattern makes it continually interesting to the eye."

Most women, in choosing their clothes, select them with the immediate need in mind, according to Mme. Bovy. "Do not think of one occasion only when you buy a dress," the prima donna suggests. "Even if it should be for a dinner party tomorrow night, look ahead and make sure that the dress will fit in with your own particular style picture. Will you be able to make use of it again and again? Will you enjoy wearing it as much next week? Does the dress' attraction for you lie in its lines or its trimmings? These all are questions which every woman should ask herself before saying the fateful words 'I'll take it.'"

Mme. Bovy is a firm believer in what is called the "basic dress." "A well designed frock, with simple, adaptable, and becoming lines, is a sound style investment," she says. "First of all, it will probably last you for more than one season. Secondly, it can be made to serve so many purposes by merely switching your accessories around.

"And color is the best clothes magic of all!" claims Mme. Bovy. "The shops now are showing such delectable shades that surely they will succeed in winning most women away from the good old blacks, browns and navy blues.

"For example," Mme. Bovy suggests, "take that black crêpe of yours of which you are so tired, and add a pimento red suede belt, with a matching suede calot or beret. Voila! You have an attractive new ensemble. Color can do for your clothes what lipstick does for your face. It is the tonic for weary outfits."

Develop Some Interests, Get Confidence

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A woeful amount of time is lost to people because they worry about their inability to do things.

In Milton Wright's invaluable new book, "Managing Yourself" [Whittlesey House], we get a point of view on this theme that is helpful. Says Wright:

"See to it that you have no time to waste in worrying about your inability. This is done by providing yourself with a schedule of things to think about. Inactivity encourages an attitude of inferiority; continuous activity generates confidence.

"See to it that you keep busy. Keep your thoughts occupied with the business in hand and not with yourself. What you keep busy at is of no consequence as far as developing confidence is concerned. It may be collecting stamps, planning advertising campaigns, studying psychology, analyzing the credit standing of customers, learning astronomy, redesigning a piece of machinery, doing crossword puzzles, interviewing candidates for a job, dictating letters, writing speeches, paring down expenses."

Preferably, we are told by our authority, we should do something purposeful. With an object in view, a goal to be reached, each little accomplishment you make toward the desired end will add a little to your thrill of achievement, to your confidence in your ability. It's well, too, Wright suggests, that the tasks are those in which you take a real interest, for then your attention will be kept from flagging. It will be easier to keep busy. And, of course, the tasks set yourself should be things that you are able to do. If you set yourself impossibilities, Wright reminds you, you invite failure and discouragement. However, he thinks these decisions are incidental. The main thing is to keep busy, for which you can't rely on your feelings at the moment. You can't say: "I will keep busy today" and then expect that you will hold to your resolution without something very definite to keep you busy.

In other words, the day should be planned, every hour of it, and if you are inclined to brood, to vacillate, to give way weakly to others, to doubt your own judgment, to shirk, to loaf, then every minute of the day should have its activity provided in advance. Give yourself no time to assume an attitude of inferiority. Be so occupied with the task there is no time for thinking about self.

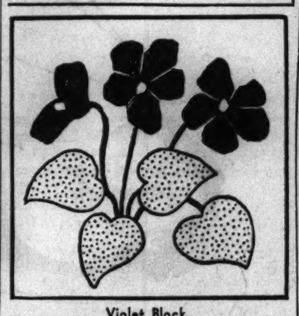
Delicate Violet Blossoms Adorn Applique Quilt



Violet Block.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

For the individual whose preference is for orchid and green, the "Violet Block" is one of the most ideal applique patterns which could be selected for a coverlet. The dainty flower petals are stitched in outline to add depth and shadow to the blooms, while the green of the leaves may be obtained by careful and persistent shopping for fabrics. The entire coverlet is composed of applique blocks set together with three inch bands of white material between blocks, and surrounded by a three inch white border and a half inch bias binding. The finished coverlet measures 90 by 104½ inches.

thought today. During the revolutionary days every one danced in New England, even the ministers. All over New England taverns vied with each other for the dancers' favor, and some of the larger farmhouses had ballrooms. Dances were held in the kitchens in more modest homes.

Invitations to these junkets, or heelburners, as they sometimes were called, were issued casually. In one New Hampshire town, according to Beth Tolman and Ralph Page in their "The Country Dance Book," some one would call "Junket, Junket" from the steps of the general store. Later it became the custom to print junket invitations on the backs of playing cards, which were blank in those days, and slip the cards under neighbors' doors.

Dancing parties frequently were interrupted by practical jokers who would put something smelly in the stove, thereby routing the merrymakers until the hall had been aired. This was a regular happening at election day balls and victory dances, when the backers of the losing candidate would get revenge.

Sir Robert Holland, an authority on India, is to be the speaker at a luncheon meeting of the English-Speaking union today at the Union League club. "India—Its Relation to the Present Crisis in Asia" is the subject of Sir Robert's talk.

The visitor spent last night at International house, at the University of Chicago. Seated with him at the speakers' table today will be Dr. Ernest B. Price, head of International house, and Mrs. Price. James S. Oates Jr., vice president of the union, will preside at the luncheon in the absence of the president, Samuel M. Rinaker, who, with Mrs. Rinaker, is in California.

Lewis Bernays, British consul general, and Mrs. Bernays, will be host and hostess at a special table for Miss Marie Kane, who is a representative of the Empire exhibition to be held next summer in Scotland.

Others at the speakers' table will be the Charles S. Deweys, the Harley F. MacNairs, and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson.

Mrs. William Hubbard, the Alan Dixons, the John J. McDonoughs, Mrs. Sanger Brown, the Harry C. Holloways, Robert H. McCormick, the Winston Eltings, William C. Parke, and Mrs. Otho Ball have made reservations for the luncheon.

Three Performances of International Theater.

The hundreds who enjoy French plays as presented by the International theater, directed by Georges Cauuet, are looking forward to Friday night and Saturday afternoon and night, when the theater will give three performances of "Eugénie Grandet" at the Goodman Studio theater. The play, a four act drama by Albert Arrault, was scheduled for production during the first week in March, but the date was advanced.

The all-French cast will include Mme. Suzanne Noble in the title rôle and Mme. Jeanne Sorson as Eugénie's ailing mother. Mme. Elmina Blais will play Nanon, an old servant. M. Cauuet, Jules Duc, and Louis Rousseau are other players.

Most of the feminine players are familiar to members of Le Cercle Français and the Alliance Française and often take part in dramatic programs with those organizations. Mrs. Howard Linn and Mrs. Laird Bell are the only American women ever to have acted with the International theater.

"The Tariff Question" will be the subject at a meeting of the Chicago Junior league's foreign policy class at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Junior league clubrooms in the Drake hotel. Mrs. W. H. Spencer will lead the class. Mrs. Robert English, Miss Marion Gordon, Miss Lucy Harrison, Mrs. Roland K. Smith Jr., Miss Honor Merrell, and Countess Gloria Potocka will read reports.

Talk on Glass at Evanston League.

Tage Palm will talk on "Swedish Glass and Silverware" at a meeting of the Evanston Junior league at the Georgian hotel this morning at 11 o'clock. This will be the third in a series of five art lectures.

The library committeee of the Francis W. Parker school will give a book tea at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the school. Eleanor Block, exponent of the new school of the dance, and Irina Khrabroff, lecturer on Slavic art and culture, will be the special guests.

Miss Isabel W. Clayton, school librarian, and Miss Dorothy M. Blattner, assistant principal, will pour. Mrs. Herbert E. Hyde is chairman of the party, to which parents and friends are asked to bring donations of books for the library.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

Both mother and daughter will like this "suit" dress for spring days in town. It may be distinguished or dashingly youthful. Bolero costumes have become a "must" this season, and the style is not limited to the debutantes. Correctly designed, the bolero is universal, and we think the pattern today is suitable to all ages.

The matron's dress has both bolero and dress in the same fabric, a dark background print. Crisp white braid furnishes the dainty trim around neckline, bow, and sleeve cuffs.

The dress for younger women and girls creates the bodice in a print while the rest of the outfit is fashioned of a plain light shade. Around the neck is a "cowboy" collar, which ends in typical bowknot manner. Notice that the same print creates saucy cuffs on the long sleeves. At the slim waistband are jaunty buttons, and the bolero boasts two tiny pockets placed low.

Style No. 2079 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material, with 5½ yards of binding.

Through the Looking Glass

Our mail these days is filled with requests for information about a face powder that will film the skin smoothly and STAY ON. We have a little trouble convincing our correspondents that the way a face powder behaves depends pretty much on the condition of the skin to which it's applied. No face powder will cling to skin so parched it's glasslike in its dryness.

However, it just happens that right now there is a beauty bargain around town that should be looked into by all of you who are having face powder problems. This is one of those special boxes that comes to town but once a year. There is a generous box of very fine powder, but in addition to this there is also a generous bottle of cucumber lotion that makes an ideal base and conditions the skin as well. It's a buy, girls.

The powder isn't too light in weight, which means that it clings very well. But it isn't so heavy that it's obvious and inclined to cake on the skin. This powder isn't expensive, but one of the wealthiest women we know will use nothing else. It suits the normal or the dry skin to perfection. The scent of it is faint and attractive, the shades, nice natural ones, that match the skin tones.

The lotion is a creamy white one, easy to apply, that gives the skin just the amount of dewey moisture that makes it receptive to makeup and protects it against dryness. Its softening effect on very dry skin is instantaneous. Powder goes on ever so smoothly and clings for hours.

The lotion can even be used as a conditioner at other times—rubbed in after exposure to wind and cold or used as a quick cleanser. The combination of powder and lotion is just about unbeatable.

Cream of onion soup, hamburgers on toasted buns, and old-fashioned jelly tarts—how's that combination for an easy-to-cook dinner? With the corners filled out by a salad, a sliced pickle, and coffee, nobody is going to leave the table still hungry.

Pour some of the bottled catsup or mustard into a small serving dish if there is some one in the family who likes his hamburgers swimming in a spicy sauce. If they're made carefully they won't need any sauce, however.

Hamburgers on Toasted Buns
Carrot, Cabbage and Pineapple Salad in Lettuce Cups
Sliced Dill Pickle
Coffee

[Serves Four]
1½ cups thinly sliced onions
3 tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoons flour
4 cups milk, or milk and stock
Salt, pepper
Grated cheese [optional]

Brown the onions lightly in the melted butter, and stir in the flour. Add the milk and seasonings and let the soup simmer gently until the onions are tender. Serve with grated cheese if desired. Liquid drained from canned vegetables, soup stock, or bouillon may be used for part of the milk, if it is available.

HAMBURGER ON TOASTED BUN.

Season ground beef with salt, pepper, a little onion, if desired, and shape into patties. Brush with butter and broil or panfry until brown on each side and cooked through. Split buns, spread with butter, and toast on the buttered side only. Place a hamburger on one-half of each bun and place the other beside it on the dinner plate when serving.

OLD-FASHIONED JELLY TARTS

Make plain pie pastry and cut it into rounds and rings using a round cutter and a doughnut cutter. Bake until brown in 375 degree oven. Spread rounds with cream cheese and top with pastry ring. In the center of each ring place a spoonful of tart jelly. Pastry may be made with butter instead of with other shortening, if desired. The flavor usually is finer if butter is used.

Plain Pastry.
1 teaspoon salt
4 to 5 tablespoons cold water

Sift flour and salt and cut in shortening, using two knives or a pastry blender, until the mixture consists of coarse little pieces. Add cold water, a little at a time, until dough is moist enough to hold together. Roll out on a lightly floured board or pastry canvas. Pastry is more tender if it is very cold when mixed. If there is time, chill the dough in the refrigerator before rolling.

According to CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The hand I am submitting was dealt to me [South] and my wife, who is a much sounder and more conservative bidder than I, was in the North position. [Editor's note: What is this, treason? A few more admissions like this will give wives something to set their teeth into, with a consequence that is not hard to imagine!] I should appreciate your comment as to the correct bidding of such a layout, because I am by no means satisfied that my own bidding was logical.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	3 spades	Double	3 clubs
Pass	3 hearts	Pass	3 spades
Pass	7 spades	Pass	Pass
Pass

"The diamond king was opened. I ruffed, led a spade to the king, cashed the club ace, reëntered my hand by ruffing a diamond, ruffed my last heart, ruffed another diamond, and then, after drawing the spade queen, claimed the balance.

"Despite the success of the grand slam, however, I am not yet satisfied with my initial bid, although so unusual a hand necessitated either a force or a preëmptive bid, to my mind, and my thought was that by a forcing bid I could explore the possibilities of a slam to the best advantage. After my wife's response and my own mental discounting of West's double, the only question was whether I was justified in going after the grand slam directly, or whether I should have bid six and left it to my partner to raise, or pass. Knowing her conservatism I had small hope that she would do so, which is another reason that influenced my jumping the whole way.

"Yours truly,
"H. M. M., Medford, Mass."

I trust that my readers will not overlook the disparity between the opening and closing of my correspondent's letter. He started out by saying that his wife was a "much sounder and more conservative bidder" than himself. In closing, he merely let it go at "conservative." This, of course, is partly explained by his obvious struggle to justify his own bidding to himself, even though he is modest enough to ask for comments. Well, here they are:

South was fantastically lucky to find North with precisely the right cards! Admittedly, South's hand was a difficult one to bid, and it is quite possible that more logical bidding might not have reached the grand slam contract. South should have opened with three spades, and the development of the bidding then would depend to a large degree on West's action. If West doubles, North should redouble. If the defenders run to four diamonds, South should cue-bid in diamonds, showing first round control of that suit. And, after North gets that message, he can take a great deal of action. The great danger of opening a hand such as South's with a two bid is that partner may carry the bidding to an unmakable level, with honor tricks that cannot be used.

Obedience Is Concern to Young Parent

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Today we'll go on with a practical follow-up of our fundamental but general remarks about managing the young child [in Monday's and Tuesday's articles].

Obedience is one of the chief concerns of mothers of little boys and girls around the age of 2—of what we might call the runabout age; the age when the baby merges into the young child who can get about and climb, walk, run and talk [more or less], and use his hands.

It is right and logical that obedience should now loom large, because little children need so much directing. Gaining obedience, a mother can give her child the physical care he needs and the mental and emotional guidance, which in the early years are all tied up together more closely than at any other time. And in all this lies a mother's great opportunity.

With obedience ruling the day, "Time for lunch, honey," isn't the signal for resistance, but compliance. With obedience the order of things, "We've got to leave the snowman and go in and get ready for supper and Daddy," isn't the taking-off place for a tantrum. These are pleasant things ahead, compliance is taken for granted, and a habit of friendly cooperation is established. Mother and little son, or mother and little daughter, are no longer miles apart, as we said Monday, but are close, good friends; close in both interest and affection.

Now, revolutionize your idea of obedience. Instead of thinking of it as something due you; instead of thinking of it vaguely as something good for a child; instead of thinking of it as an end in itself, think rather of obedience as a tool which you need to help you guide and train your child for his own well being, and for the general harmony and happiness of the family he is part of.

"How to Gain Obedience Without Punishment" is the title of a booklet helpful to parents. It will be sent out on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

The Housewife

It's convenient to have a waste paper basket in the bathroom or dressing room, but both the round and square varieties take up a good deal of room in limited space and are apt to be kicked about and scratched. There's a charming new type, however, that solves this problem. It's semi-circular in front and flat across the back, so you can place it smack against the wall.

We saw these baskets painted white with a lovely design of water lilies in color as a decoration. They were made of wood. EDITH WEIGLE.

Ginster Sings Mahler Group with Symphony

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Ria Ginster, widely known in England and in continental Europe, is making her second visit to Chicago. Yesterday afternoon she appeared in Orchestra hall with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Frederick Stock conducting, to sing a Mahler group and an air from Mozart's "Elopement from the Seraglio."

Mme. Ginster knows her Mahler. She can project the sweet naïvete of "Rhine Legend" in a dewy and enchanting manner and deal most competently, too, with such brimmingly passionate things as the same composer's "Liebst du um Schönheit." She knows how to follow each turn of the lyrics, and succeeds in giving a listener the impression of direct, fervent, sincere singing.

And all this without violating any of the canons of her rather exacting art form. She can make a point without calling in the aid of exaggeration.

In the Mozart air Mme. Ginster sounded cold and hard. It was only in music of the direct, personal sort—in the Mahler group—that the singer's voice timbre became rich enough to play an important part in the expressive power of the whole.

For the purely orchestral items Mr. Stock scheduled the overture to Mozart's "Der Schauspieldirektor," the Franck symphony, and a quintet of Brahms' Hungarian dances in the Dvorak arrangement.

Sometimes one wonders whether the Chicago Symphony orchestra always flows along in quite the best manner, whether it sings. Occasionally the interest of brilliant tone colorings or striking dynamic effects mar the simple, inevitable flow which so much of the older music requires. And the Mozart had an uncharacteristic robustness.

Avers Church Must Choose Faith or Foes

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Willy nilly Christians are now being forced out of the twilight zone between faith and atheism because present day religious persecution is forcing this class of Christian to take a stand either for or against the Christian faith.

This summarizes views expressed yesterday by the Rev. Ralph H. Long, of New York, executive director of the National Lutheran council, as he spoke before the Lutheran Foreign Missions conference at the Atlantic hotel. Representatives of two-thirds of all Lutheran synods in the country were present.

Dr. Long referred to events in Russia, Germany, Italy, and Japan and declared that the frank anti-God movement in Russia and the secret trial of Pastor Martin Niemoeller in Berlin were incidents in a growing worldwide attack on religion. He predicted that conditions would become worse before improving. The Christian in every country, he said, is going to be put on the spot, be mocked, harassed or punished if he defends his principles arising from his faith.

"As we look over the whole world we cannot avoid the conclusion that there is something happening to religion," said Dr. Long. "It is not merely political, nor a new social order. The changes taking place strike down to the very depths of religion.

"We ought to rejoice that the day has come when the distinction between Christianity and the world is so marked that there is no neutral zone where so many so-called Christians may walk without being identified with one side or the other."

One of the immediate focal points of the growing warfare between faith and its lack is the rise of intense nationalisms, Dr. Long declared. He explained that Christianity does not recognize nations as such but is international in scope, and pointed both to Germany and Japan where the international spirit of Christianity is in conflict with nationalistic requirements.

BAKERY ARTIST MAKES CRUSTS AS EASY AS PIE

Reluctantly Gives 10 Hints to Housewives.

Mr. Peter Redler turned startled eyes on representatives of the press yesterday when they blandly asked him how you make good pie crust.

Mr. Redler, who is president of the Associated Bakers of America, believes such secrets should be guarded with one's life, just as they were in the days when rival bakers avoided one another's shops, lest they be suspected of snooping and be dealt with accordingly. Thus it was that he replied with some asperity:

"I do not know that I am authorized to answer such a question. Does an artist reveal the secret of how he mixes his paints?"

The Dark Mood Passes.

He then turned away, aloof, resting his gaze upon a 75 pound apple pie that is an exhibit of the bakers' convention at the Hotel Sherman. But suddenly the dark mood passed—artists' dark moods do—and Mr. Redler turned, smiling:

"Very well," he said, "I will give the lady readers a few hints—nothing much, of course; no trade secrets. The lady readers are our best customers." He sighed, shrugged dramatically, and began reluctantly, as though each of the ten hints were a drop of his life blood.

"Make the crust the day before baking and keep it in the ice box. Everything is in the handling of the dough; the best ingredients can be spoiled [a pitying grimace]. Mix the flour and shortening first; 12 ounces of shortening to a pound of flour. Do not rub the shortening in. Do not use a knife or it may be overworked.

Ah! The Light Touch.

"Use your hands. Employ a light touch, so that the shortening retains its identity. Make the mixture look like crumbs [a glad smile]. Add water; it's better than milk. Make a paste, not too stiff, and in rolling it out the next day use very little flour, being sure not to overwork the dough; roll it out just once."

Mr. Redler sighed again, but continued: "A baker has a feeling about pie dough." Here he worked his fingers expressively. "If he hasn't, he is lost. You ask if women ever make the perfect pie crust. I reply that some women make damn fine pies. But I add that they are few and far between!"

And while the artist was telling how to make pies, another artist was showing how to eat them. With his hands held behind his back, Stephen Busho, 13 years old, sat down to a table in the Hotel Sherman in competition with other newsboys, lowered his head to a plate of cherry pie, and came up first. And was his face red!

For His Services

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago was presented with an American flag last night by the National Order of the Purple Heart in a colorful ceremony at Mundelein college.

Representatives of the army, navy, and veterans' organizations witnessed the presentation, made in recognition of Bishop Sheil's distinguished services during the flu epidemic at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, where he was assigned during the war.

The honor was conferred by T. M. Thomson of St. Paul, national commander of the order. A flag was presented to the college by Miss Bree Kelly, only woman member of the order, a military organization founded by George Washington.

HUNT JEWELRY THIEVES.

POLITE ROBBER "GOT TO EAT," HE TELLS VICTIM

Charles F. Beezley Jr. entered the garage at the rear of his home at 301 North Elmwood avenue in Oak Park and started the motor of his car. As he was about to back it out the door opened. "Excuse me," said a stranger, pressing a gun against Beezley, "but I'll go with you if you don't mind." Beezley backed the machine out. "I hope I'm not crowding you," the gunman said solicitously.

He became really apologetic a little later when he ordered that Beezley stop the car. "Gee, mister, I really hate to do this," he said. "I've got to eat, though, and I'll leave your car nearby." He then took a $50 wrist watch and $2 cash, and after calling a regretful good-by drove away. But police have been unable to find the car.

OPERATIC SATIRE ON ROOSEVELT RULE CANCELED

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Performance of an operetta satirizing the Democratic national administration was canceled by the board of governors of Detroit's Fine Arts society today after a cast of sixty persons had been rehersing for two weeks.

A member of the board said its principal objection is against a chant paraphrasing the Lord's prayer, in a Supreme court scene in the second act, and that its members did not object for political reasons.

J. J. Jennings is president of the society, which had planned to present the operetta privately for its members at the Players' club on March 23.

ROY FINDS IT'S TRUE WHAT THEY SAY OF A WOMAN SCORNED

Roy, who's 29, made an engagement to meet Miss Kate Renna in the loop the night of Jan. 27—her evening off duty as a maid in the home of Louis C. Cohen at 6807 Lakewood avenue. He didn't keep the date, but while she was waiting for him and her employers were out, the Cohen home was robbed of $5,000 worth of jewelry, furs, and clothing.

Miss Renna didn't like it. She finally got so indignant that she told the police they'd better investigate Roy, who lives at 2302 Milwaukee avenue. They found he'd made a key from a wax impression and burglarized the Cohen home when he should have been taking Miss Renna to a movie.

Miss Mary E. Wien, 20 years old, a junior in Purdue university, won the national cherry pie baking contest in the Morrison hotel yesterday, and today will depart with her mother, Mrs. Iva Wien of West Lafayette, Ind., for Washington, D. C. They will be received by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt tomorrow noon at the White House. Champion pie bakers of eight states competed yesterday. Miss Wien received a $100 prize.

Toledo, O., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Esther A. Hand filed suit for divorce in Domestic Relations court here yesterday against Wilbur Hand, Toledo, now serving a 10 to 25 year sentence in Ohio penitentiary for participation in the $194,000 Galion, O., bank robbery in October, 1927.

PRESS THE CLUTCH

Here's right smart footwork for right smart starting in the cold: Down with your clutch pedal before you do anything else. Then your starter and battery don't turn the gears, but only the engine, which is just that much easier to do.

Now don't let up on the clutch, but pull out the choke (unless automatic) and then spin your starter, leaving ignition OFF.* After a few engine revolutions, switch on the ignition...And hark to the strong steady firing of your Special Winter Blend Conoco Bronze, which is certainly the sensible gasoline for quick starting.

Conoco Bronze always lets you do a cocksure "professional" job of starting. For that matter the way Conoco Bronze is specially winter-blended you could purposely give it the worst handling in the worst cold just for a test...and that's daring you! BY FRENCH LANE.

Boxers on Chicago's north and south sides advanced a step nearer their Golden Gloves championship battles in two lively sessions of fighting last night.

The north section tournament passed the semi-final round in Loyola university gymnasium in both the open and novice divisions. The titles in both divisions will be at stake in the fighting which opens in the same ring at 8 o'clock tonight.

On the south side the quarter-final round bouts were fought before a near capacity crowd in the White City arena. There will be semi-final round fighting there tonight with both open class and novice boxers in action. The final south side bouts tomorrow night will decide the makeup of the team in that section of the city.

Woods Tries, But Loses.

For a time last night Roy Woods of the Savoy Athletic club appeared to be on his way to a Golden Gloves championship in the lightweight division. Woods was paired against Mario Christopher of the C. Y. O. in Loyola university gymnasium.

He was dropped to his knees by one Christopher's rights early in the first round, but he was up in an instant and soon swarmed all over the C. Y. O. lad. He peppered Christopher with rights and lefts in the second. More than ever he seemed to be title bound.

But there was a third round to this struggle. Christopher rallied and soon had Woods wobbling. The referee stopped it to save Woods from further punishment.

Savior Canadeo of the C. Y. O., a star of former Tournaments of Champions but never a title holder, made his 1938 debut in a north side welterweight division bout with Enoch McClain of the Savoy A. C. He won the decision by a wide margin. Canadeo was a lightweight last year and was a member of the Green Bay, Wis., team.

Some Big Names Suffer.

Big names carried no dynamite out south. For instance, among the gladiators were one Thomas Jefferson, one J. P. Morgan, and one Bishop Johnson. The saddest part about the whole thing was that the Messrs. Jefferson and Morgan and the Bishop all were victims of knockout punches.

Twenty-eight bouts were contested in White City, every weight division except the light heavyweight being represented. Fifteen of the first twenty-

Near Capacity Crowd Is Expected in Garden.

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Another experiment in heavyweight pugilism will be conducted before more than $100,000 worth of box office trade in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. The experiment calls for Champion Joe Louis to encounter Nathan Mann, Connecticut challenger, in 15 rounds—or less—in defense of the world heavyweight title.

The novelty of the first indoor match in 18 years for boxing's most lucrative crown, plus the long-shot chance that something surprising may happen, has focussed interest on a bout that otherwise shapes up chiefly as a tuneup for the champion's forthcoming million-dollar date with Germany's Max Schmeling, in June.

Louis at 1 to 3 Odds.

Betting odds tonight remained more conservative than expert opinion. Broadway bookmakers held Louis at 1 to 3 to win, even money to score a knockout.

Mann may or may not extend Louis. The New Haven entry, at 22, has a record that indicates he is by no means a push-over. He may be slow, but he can punch. He has everything to gain and nothing much to lose by "shooting the works."

The consensus is that if Mann's handlers send him out rushing, in the hope of making right-hand connections early, he will most likely wind up on the floor in an early round.

If Mann, on the other hand, adopts shell-like tactics or shuns forcing gestures, the fight conceivably can go the distance, be very dull to watch, and prove once more that Louis is no Jesse Owens on his feet.

Louis Is Criticized.

Critics of the champion point out that two of his rivals within the last year, Bob Pastor and Tommy Farr, have gone the route without being knocked off their feet. Moreover, Louis is likely to be punch-rusty from his layoff of nearly six months. Soft living and lack of the incentive that spurred his meteoric early rise, say the head shakers, have taken their toll.

Nothwithstanding these angles, Louis has all essential advantages in any comparison with Mann. The champion is heavier, more experienced, and a harder hitter with either hand. Anxious,as he says he is, to brook no obstacle to a return bout with Schmeling this June, Louis figures to have as much incentive as necessary. He's protected, anyway, to the extent of a guaranteed return title match within sixty days, if Mann wins.

Advance Sale Is $70,000.

Louis and Mann will go direct from their training camps tomorrow morning to the Garden for the official weighing, scheduled at noon. The champion is expected to scale slightly over 200 pounds, Mann 190.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, with an advance sale of $70,000 today, predicted a near sellout. Of the 19,000 available seats in the Garden, 3,000 are unreserved and will be put on sale late tomorrow at $3. It is expected 5,000 or more rooters from Mann's home state will invade the Garden.

The main bout, slated for 9 p. m. Chicago time, will be broadcast over a WJZ-NBC network.

Lyons Signs for 16th Season with White Sox; 4 StillBalk

J. Louis Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, announced yesterday upon his return from Eagle River, Wis., that Ted Lyons, veteran pitcher, had signed for his sixteenth season with the club. Receipt of Lyons' contract reduced to four the unsigned members of the Sox. They are Zeke Bonura, Luke Sewell, Rip Radcliff, and Sugar Cain. The first squad of Sox are scheduled to leave for their Pasadena training camp next Tuesday.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

THE National Professional Football league at its meeting in Philadelphia last week-end adopted a resolution calculated to end the competition for players attending the various all-star pre-season games that followed the origin and promotion of this type of athletic entertainment by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in 1934. . . . It had become the practice of some of the sponsors presenting imitations of the Chicago game to sign players fresh from college ranks to exclusive contracts to play in this or that all-star game. . . . THE TRIBUNE never has been a party to any such arrangements. . . . No player in any Chicago all-star game has signed a contract to participate in THE TRIBUNE'S game on an exclusive basis or otherwise. . . . If the honor conferred on the players by the fans of the nation in selecting them to start the contest against the champions of the National Professional league isn't a sufficient inducement, this department is not disposed to use high pressure methods to urge them to do so. . . . Up to this time it is a matter of record that the nation's greatest players have considered their election to the All Stars' starting lineup one of the highest tributes the sport has to offer. . . . The 1938 game between the College All-Americans and Washington Redskins will be played at Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 31. . . . The resolution passed without a dissenting vote by the National Professional league on Saturday follows:

Resolved, That no member of the National Professional league shall in any manner, directly or indirectly, restrain or prohibit, by contract or otherwise, any player, if nominated, from participating as an all-star in any future CHICAGO TRIBUNE pre-season All-Star game, including all practice sessions preparatory thereto, provided said All-Star game is scheduled not later than the first day in September, but may be postponed not more than forty-eight hours due to inclement weather. No team in the National Professional league shall participate in any All-Star game when any player or players in such game have been prohibited from taking part or have refused to take part in the Chicago Tribune All-Star game without the consent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this resolution to be effective beginning in the 1939 season. The penalty for violation of this resolution shall be a fine not to exceed $5,000. Immediately upon the completion of the national poll THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will furnish to the president of the league a list of players who have been invited to participate in the game. The president of the league will furnish the club owners with a complete list of players immediately and the president will keep all club owners posted as to eligible players prior to the game.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Chicago's Blackhawks, who have been teetering on the edge of the cellar in the American division of the National Hocky league lately, tonight climbed back to something approaching firm footing by defeating the Montreal Maroons, 6 to 5, in the Forum. The victory gave the Chicagoans a two game hold on third place over the Detroit Red Wings, who were idle tonight.

The Hawks, however, have played two more games than Detroit. The Chicago team will meet the New York Rangers in Madison Square Garden, New York, on Thursday night, after which they will return to Chicago to meet the Rangers in the Stadium on Sunday night.

Thompson Leads Attack.

Paul Thompson, the Calgary farmer, who has led the Hawks in individual scoring throughout the season, kept pace with his own record tonight by collecting two goals and an assist.

The Maroons scored first in the opening period, Dave Trottier counting on assists by Cyclone Wentworth and Earl Robinson. A fight involving Mush March, Red Smith, and Jerry Shannon resulted in two minute penalties for all three, after which Thompson clicked on assists by Doc Romnes and John Gottselig.

A penalty to Art Wiebe of the Hawks at the outset of the second period gave the Maroons a chance and Russ Blinco made good on passes from Trottier and Baldy Northcott while the Chicago defense man was doing time. March, on a faceoff, passed to Gottselig and the latter slammed the puck home to tie the score at 2 to 2. Three minutes later Cully Dahlstrom fielded Earl Seibert's pass and made it 3 to 2 for the Hawks.

Lucky Maroon Goal.

The Maroons tied the count at 3-3 on a lucky goal. Blinco and Robinson maneuvered the puck to Shields, whose weak backhand shot from 25 feet out bounced through the defense and skipped over Goalie Mike Karakas' stick into the Chicago cage.

The Hawks took a 5 to 3 advantage early in the third period. Thompson passed from the corner to Romnes, who sent the disc into the Maroon cage, and two minutes later, Alex Levinsky came up from his defense post to bat home the fifth Chicago goal unassisted. Jimmy Ward narrowed the margin to 5-4 on a pass from Paul Runge, after which Thompson counted his second goal. Northcott and Blinco then collaborated to pass the puck to Robinson and the latter connected with 55 seconds left to play. Goalie Bill Beveridge then was taken from his post and six Maroon forwards came on the ice, but they couldn't make any impression on Karakas.

Derby Day Scenes at Santa Anita

Finish of the Santa Anita Derby with Stagehand coming in first, Dauber second, and Sun Egret third. Legal Light is getting home fourth and Sir Raleigh fifth. Although Stagehand's margin was a length and a half, it doesn't appear so great here because of the angle at which the photograph was taken.

Corbett Whips Apostoli; He's on Title Trail

The Fresno, Cal., veteran piled up a substantial lead in early rounds and went on to weather Apostoli's late barrage and emerge with five rounds on the plus side. Apostoli, a former San Francisco bellhop, who recently won from Marcel Thil of France and Middleweight Champion Freddie Steele, took two. Three were even.

Apostoli Is Favorite.

Apostoli, termed the uncrowned middleweight titlist by virtue of his victory over Steele, went into today's battle a 2½ to 1 favorite, although Corbett by no means was considered a setup. The latter, attempting a comeback to his former prestige, recently won from Dale Sparr, former navy champion, and Young Dick Foster, Berkeley, Cal.

Corbett Takes First Three Rounds.

Corbett built up a lead on cleaner punching. Long looping lefts to Apostoli's face gave Corbett the first round, and in the second and third he swarmed all over his younger opponent. Apostoli finally began getting to Corbett's body. Corbett stung Apostoli's jaw in the fourth and crossed with his right while the San Franciscan was waiting for an opening.

Corbett went on to take the fifth but Apostoli evened the sixth with right uppercuts and infighting. Jolting punches to the head won the seventh and eighth for the former bellhop. The ninth was even. The finale found both men boring in furiously.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22.—Stagehand, owned by Col. Maxwell Howard, wealthy sportsman and print paper manufacturer of Dayton, O., and trained by America's former jocky idol, Earl Sande, came from behind to win the $50,000 added Santa Anita Derby today.

A crowd of 45,000 watched Stagehand start a gallant rally at the head of the stretch and stood thrilled as he ran past one horse after another to race on to victory by a length and a half. Foxcatcher Farm stable's Dauber finished second and the favorite, Sun Egret, property of A. C. Compton of San Francisco, was third.

Westrope Rides Winner.

Stagehand, a son of the imported sire Sickle, ran the mile and an eighth in the fast time of 1:50 2-5. He was ridden by Jocky Jack Westrope. He paid $13.20 to win, $7.20 to place, and $4.20 to show. Dauber paid $10.50 to place and $5.60 to show. Sun Egret's show price was $3.

Dauber was coupled in the betting with his stablemate, the filly Roseretter. Sun Egret ran as an entry with Legal Light, a Maryland owned colt.

After a delay of six minutes at the post caused by Rommy, Sir Raleigh, and Return Check, the start, when the fifteen contestants finally were sent away, was good.

Ral Parr's Legal Light was the first to show in front, but by the time the field passed the stands and rounded the first turn, Sun Egret had cheered his backers by flying into the lead. Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Tiger, which quit badly in the late stage, was running second. Specify was third, King's Heir fourth, and Legal Light was running fifth. The others were strung out.

Sun Egret Holds Lead.

As they neared the end of the run down the back stretch Sun Egret still was showing in front. Jocky Shellhamer was riding him hard, however, to keep him in front of Specify and Sir Raleigh. Tiger apparently was out of it by this time.

Stagehand blazed toward the front on the lower bend, but he still was running sixth when they started down the stretch. Sun Egret was ahead, Specify had moved up tc second, Dauber was third, Legal Light fourth, and Sir Raleigh fifth.

Stagehand advanced with an electric rush. So did Dauber. The latter headed Sun Egret. Then Stagehand flew to the front. He was going easily when it ended.

The crowd was one of the most colorful ever to gather at a Pacific coast course. Most of Hollywood was there; political notables were on hand from every part of the country, and leading sportsmen from both the east and west mingled on the lawns. Perfect weather prevailed.

Sande's Biggest Triumph.

Col. Howard did not watch his colt race to the victory which netted him $42,340. He is spending the winter in Florida and will be represented in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap by Sceneshifter, a full brother to Stagehand.

Sande turned trainer several years ago, but this was the most important race for which he has stabled a winner.

The outcome substantiated the famous little trainer's prediction. Before the race, standing by his charge in the paddock, Sande said:

Betting on the race totaled $239,746, a record for the Derby and for the season. The day's handle of $1,370,807 on eight races also set a season's record.

DANNING, LEIBER SIGN; CASTLEMAN STILL A HOLDOUT

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants signed Harry Danning and Hank Leiber today. Catcher Danning will receive $10,000 this season, while Outfielder Leiber is believed to have signed for $9,000, both sizeable advances over their 1937 wages.

At the same time Terry announced he sent Pitcher Clyde Castleman another telegram giving him until tonight to report or be subject to a $25 fine for every day he is overdue. Adolfo Luque also was dispatched a cable and if Terry doesn't get a reply to it by Thursday he will sign another coach as soon as possible.

Andover High defeated Hillsdale, 27 to 19, and Coal Valley beat Atkinson, 36 to 29, at East Moline last night as play was started in the first of fifty-eight district tournaments in which 473 teams seeking the state prep basketball title are to compete. Others are to begin play tonight.

Only teams representing the smaller schools in the state are to compete this week, the winners and runners-up of the fifty-eight tournaments joining 400 schools in regional play next week.

Fifteen Sectional Meets Planned.

Finalists of the sixty regionals will advance to 15 sectional meets the week of March 7 for the right to join Chicago's city champion in the state finals at Champaign March 17-19.

Joliet's defending champions admittedly are not a threat to capture the title a second successive time. A team of newcomers—only one veteran is back from last year—Joliet has won ten games and lost eleven.

Title Contenders? Take Your Choice.

The number of favorites to displace the prison city titlists coincides with the number of fans making choices. The field is well marked with so-called dark horses. Many teams from small schools rank equally in favor with representatives of larger places.

No one section of the state has a stranglehold on topranking clubs. A few of the teams expected to go a long way are Carbondale, Collinsville, Wood River, and Olney in the south; Dundee, Moline, Rockford, York of Elmhurst, and Braidwood in the north; Quincy, Galesburg, and Canton in the west; Mattoon, Paris, and Oblong in the southeast; Pekin, Athens, Clinton, and Urbana in the east central section.

Cub Train Rolls Westward Toward Camp at Catalina

Emporia, Kas., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The touring Cubs still have a long way to go before they reach their training base at Catalina Island, but they already have one casualty aboard their train. He is Bob Lewis, the traveling secretary.

In the rush and bustle of the getaway from Chicago Lewis acquired a cold which attacked his vocal cords. The result is rather startling. Bob conducts all conversation in a bullfroggish croak and shifts at times to a mouselike squeak. If no improvement is noted soon he'll have to adopt the sign language.

Aside from Lewis' troubles, all is serene aboard the Cubs' train, with only the customary card games and Charley Grimm's stories to vary the monotony of watching the snow blanketed prairies. At each stop Grimm answers the same questions for the local newspaper correspondents. The advance squad is one man short of the expected total of eleven. Walter Kirby Higbe, the young pitcher brought up from Moline of the Three Eye league, saw the squad off but did not board the train. The lad was so worried over the condition of his wife, who is ill at Columbia, S. C., that he asked permission to return home until she showed improvement.

Bob Logan, southpaw pitcher from the Indianapolis club, and Bobby Mattick, infielder from Los Angeles, joined the squad at Kansas City. No more pickups will be made until the arrival at Los Angeles, when seven more will report for the boat ride to the island. The newcomers will be Newell Kimball, Tony Lazzeri, Steve Mesner, Tony York, Jim Asbel, Carl Reynolds, and Coach Roy Johnson.

Springers Set for Big Time in Chicagoland

BY BOB BECKER.

Springer spaniel fanciers in Chicagoland are planning a busy program of field trial activities for 1938, so that this breed of hunting dog ought to be much better known in the middlewest before the next hunting season has closed. B. F. Genty, an active member of the Central States Springer club, stated several days ago that his organization was working with the Michigan Springer club to boost the field trial game this fall.

Several dog fanciers in the Chicago area have added springers to their kennels. One of the newest kennel owners to enter the springer field is Conway Olmstead of Lake Forest. And there will be some outstanding new springers in the field trials this fall. Martin Hogan, Barrington, Ill., field dog authority and field trial judge, recently brought in several crackerjack dogs from the British Isles which have been bought by Chicago springer fanciers.

To Conduct Classes.

Charles S. Goodell, treasurer of the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial club of Illinois, announces that this club again will conduct a training class for members starting next month. This class has been one of the most successful and important features of the club's activities. Mr. Goodell writes:

"Our club plans to hold a 1938 training class for springer owners and their dogs. The first meeting will be in March, date to be announced later. A. P. Moecher, secretary, who has conducted the class in former years again will be in charge this season. At the first meeting he will outline the plans of the class for all prospective members. During this first meeting he also will put on a demonstration with his dog, Ch. Busy of Ashaba, so that members may see what is expected of a well trained dog.

Becker Renamed President.

"At our recent meeting you were again elected president of the club. Officers for 1938 are: Bob Becker, president; J. N. Svendsen, Chicago, vice president; A. P. Moecher, Aurora, secretary; C. S. Goodell, Downers Grove, treasurer, and E. J. Elting, Riverside, chairman of the Field Trial committee."

The training class which Mr. Goodell refers to has helped many a springer spaniel owner learn how to handle his dog for a field trial or for actual hunting. It starts in March and runs through the summer and early autumn. Any springer spaniel owner who wants to learn how to train his own dog for hunting and the fun of field trials should contact A. P. Moecher of Aurora direct about the training class.

The candidates who scored those spectacular first round knockouts to move on to tonight's semi-finals included Louis Jackson, Savoy A. C.; Joe Drennan, C. Y. O.; Sammy Consolo, 124th Field Artillery, and John Miller and Tom Gibson of the American Giants A. C. Miller is a middleweight, Gibson a welterweight, and the other three are lights.

The ticket sale for the Tournament of Champions, which opens on Monday night in the Chicago Stadium, went merrily along in Chicago yesterday.

Dixie Joins Big Parade.

The advance sale indicates that more out of town rooters are coming for this big three day carnival than ever before. As an example, a delegation of thirty enthusiastic fans will travel from Fort Worth, Tex., to cheer the boys from the Lone Star state when they go into action with Golden Gloves as their goals.

From Nashville and Memphis more than 100 rooters are coming to lend encouragement to the team from Dixie selected by the Nashville Daily Tennessean. Large delegations will come from all the cities in Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, Ohio, and Indiana that are sending teams to the tournament.

Pick Four More Teams.

Aside from the Chicago North section team, four additional out of town teams for the Tournament of Champions will be selected tonight. They will represent the Lafayette Journal-Courier, Wisconsin Rapids Tribune, the Michigan City Dispatch, and Radio Station WHO in Des Moines.

SPEARY LOOKS GOOD

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Bill Speary of Philadelphia, one of the best 112 pounders seen during three sessions of the Golden Gloves tournament of the Daily News A. A., emerged with seventy-one other amateurs as semi-finalists in the Hippodrome tonight.

The seventy-two survivors of the 317 entrants will compete in the semi-finals to be held Monday at Ridgewood and Tuesday in the Hippodrome. The survivors of that round will meet in the finals in Madison Square Garden on March 7.

We have collected a number of TRUE STORIES about the loyalty, intelligence and outstanding courage of dogs whose deeds have put them HEADS ABOVE THE CROWD. If you'd like a free copy of the illustrated "OLD QUAKER DOG BOOK" simply write, sending your name and address to The Old Quaker Inspector, Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

A True Story

The Only Real Sign of Spring is when our BOCK BEER Tastes Right

by RICHARD SEIBOLD, Meister Bräu Brewmaster

Taste our Springtime Pride

A BOCK BEER RICH and MELLOW

For hundreds of years folks have found a good Bock Beer has tonic effects in the spring

I know a lot of our friends look forward every year to the day when we bring out our Bock Beer. It seems each year more people realize what a fine drink this is.

Last fall, right at the height of the harvest season, we started getting ready a special treat for you to have this spring. We started selecting the choicest grains, the finest malt and hops, to go into our Bock Beer. Then we carefully tended and watched the brew all winter long.

Our Bock Beer is now ready—at the peak of its perfection. It is darker than a light beer and lighter than a dark beer. Made to give a refreshing lift to your spirits—a real spring tonic!

We bottle this Bock Beer just like our regular Meister Bräu, with Natural Draft Beer Carbonation created in the beer itself. You'll notice the absence of gassy bite. And you'll be delighted with the smoothness of this special brew—flavory and refreshing.

Please try this mellow, rich Bock Beer—made by a brewery that takes time enough to achieve perfection. Order Peter Hand's Bock Beer today—in the new steinie bottle, or in ½ gallons, or the ¼ gallon "Hospitality Size," or on draft.

YOUNG MAKES HIS BIG MOVE IN BIG TEN SCORING

Purdue Star Closing In on Illinois' Dehner.

Jewell Young, Purdue star and holder of the all-time Big Ten season's scoring record of 172 points, added 40 points to his total over the week-end to threaten the conference lead Pick Dehner of Illinois has held all season. Young brought his total to 126 points, seven less than Dehner has scored. He still has three games in which to increase his total, however, while Dehner has only two.

Dehner did not lag while Young was piling up his 40 points—20 at Wisconsin and 20 against Ohio State—but scored 12 points against Ohio Saturday night and added 13 as the Illini were losing to Chicago Monday night. Young's accuracy, plus the fact that he still has three games in which to play to Dehner's two, gives the Purdue star the edge, however.

Trailing Young are Hod Powell of Wisconsin, with 117 points, and Jimmy Hull of Ohio with 114 in ten games; Capt. John Townsend of Michigan with 107 in nine games, Ernie Andres of Indiana with 106 in nine games, and Ben Stephens of Iowa with 104 in ten games. A week ago only Dehner had scored more than 100 points.

THREE GERMANS SAIL TO RIDE IN STADIUM RACE

Four of Germany's outstanding six-day bicycle riders, on the basis of records in Europe in the last six years, will compete in Chicago's thirty-ninth international race which starts in the Stadium, March 13. Three of the riders will sail from Germany tomorrow on the Hamburg, arriving in New York next week.

They are Carl Goebel, Victor Rausch and Gustav Zims. They will be joined in New York by Ewald Wissel, well known to American fans. The quartet will come to Chicago late next week.

Goebel, who has won five races in Europe and recently finished first in two South American races, is the star of the invading trio. Rausch has won seven six day races and Zims four. Wissel was a member of a winning team in a Stadium race. It is not known as yet how these riders will be paired.

Torchy and Doug Peden, victors in the San Francisco race two weeks ago, are en route to Chicago. There trainer, Freddie White, is driving their car, while Torchy and Doug pedal behind the car for a hundred miles each day.

Time: :23, :47, 1:11 3-5, 1:37 4-5, 1:50 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Stagehand, $13.20 straight, $7.20 place, $4.20 show; Dauber, $10.80 place, $6.80 show; Sun Egret, $3.00 show. Winner, b. c., by Sickle-Stagecraft. Trainer, Earl Sands. Went to post at 6:26½. Off at 6:32. Start good. Won driving, place same.

STAGEHAND, well handled, was saved in the early running although moving some distance back of the leaders, then came fast on the outside to gain call upon in the stretch and catching SUN EGRET had enough left to hold LEGAL LIGHT. Latter, as usual, broke slowly and was outrun for the first half mile, then came fast in the stretch although losing ground and was gaining on the winner. SUN EGRET showed a turn of early speed and continuing with gameness after being pressed hotly close up. LEGAL LIGHT was unable to keep up with the early leaders but was making a game move in the stretch when he was caught in close quarters. SIR RALEIGH went evenly and had no real excuses. TIGER showed a good turn of early speed but became short. SPECIFY made a strong move after leaving the backstretch, but gradually dropped back when the real racing began. CAN'T WAIT was never a serious contender. The others were outclassed. ROMMY and SPECIFY were started from outside the stall gate, the latter because he drew outside position and ROMMY for his bad actions.

N. Y. AND LONDON STOCK TRADING DIFFERS WIDELY

The British securities market doesn't even bother to figure its total transactions daily, but some Wall streeters claim the total number of shares traded has greatly exceeded that in New York of late.

Contrasts between the two markets are striking. Members of the New York Stock exchange were pretty glum recently when a membership sold for $59,000, the lowest since 1918. [The last price was $67,000.]

Seats in London Cost $13,000.

But in London stock exchange memberships have never commanded more than a few thousand dollars. Recently the total cost for an outsider to become a member was little more than $13,000.

The New York exchange is studying a reduction in its 1,375 memberships. Chairman William O. Douglas of the Securities and Exchange commission recently suggested the exchange was trying to feed too many mouths. But the old British exchange, with 4,107 members, does not consider that too many.

How Methods Differ.

Buying and selling orders are poured into the floor of the exchange. Each buying order is matched with a selling order, each transaction printed on a stock ticker and reported over a network of wires throughout the country, and each transaction settled with payment and delivery of securities within 48 hours.

The Britishers don't print every transaction on a ticker. An "official list" of transactions is kept, but not very rigidly. It is not compulsory that each transaction be marked down on it. There is a quotation ticker system, but it reports merely representative prices from time to time to show which way the market is going. And transactions are settled up only twice a month.

But there are more profound differences. The public places its orders in London with brokers who act strictly as commission agents. They do not trade for themselves. They in turn buy from and sell to jobbers, who are in a sense wholesalers.

Two Prices Quoted.

The broker with an order goes to a jobber in the security and the jobber gives him two prices, one at which he will buy and a little higher price at which he will sell. The difference represents the jobber's "spread" and from it he makes his profit.

In a sense the jobber performs the function of the specialist in New York, who keeps a book showing the orders to buy and sell in his certain special issues and may trade for his own account to some extent to stabilize the market.

Still another distinction is that London brokers split commissions with banks and other financial institutions and may not maintain offices out of town. The result is a large part of their business comes through banks with their branches throughout the country.

New York Stock exchange members are not permitted to split commissions and the big American brokerage houses maintain their own branch office systems.

A further difference is the much larger number of issues traded in the British market. The last New York Stock exchange bulletin showed only 2,637 stocks and bonds listed. There are more than 5,000 issues on the London mart's official list and there are some 15,000 more in which transactions may be made.

The London exchange presents in effect a concentration of business divided in New York between the stock exchange, the curb exchange, and the over-the-counter market. In addition, as financial center of Europe, London has a large number of foreign issues. Many of the issues are of small companies.

SEC Studies Segregation.

The question of segregation of brokers doing a commission business with the public, from those buying and selling for their own account, along the lines of the English broker-jobber segregation, has been studied by the SEC, and almost unanimously opposed by stock exchange members.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

The Santa Fe road's new train, the El Capitan, moved out of the Dearborn station at 5:45 p. m. last night for its first cross country run of 39 hours 45 minutes to Los Angeles, Cal. It is the fastest all chair car train in the world, its schedule duplicating that of the Santa Fe's No. 1 extra fare train, the Super Chief. It will arrive in Los Angeles tomorrow morning.

Introduction of this high speed, low fare train is said to have aroused the interest of other railroads which are considering providing such service to supplement other types of travel.

Speed Limit 117 M. P. H.

Although an all chair train, the El Capitan is as modern as builders know how to make trains today. It consists of five lightweight stainless steel cars, constructed by the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company, and a Diesel electric locomotive housing two 900 horse power engines. The train's speed limit is 117 miles an hour.

Billed as a complete caravan for long distance travel, the El Capitan consists of two cars with reclining, revolving chairs, a combination baggage and dormitory chair car, a combination diner and lunch counter car, and a chair-observation car. One car is to be set aside for women and children. A registered nurse courier-hostess is part of the regular staf.

Most of Space Taken.

The El Capitan, on its departure from Chicago last night, had about two-thirds of its space for 186 passengers filled. Included was a party of about thirty-five railroad, newspaper, and magazine representatives from Chicago and the east.

The Santa Fe is putting two El Capitans in service to provide twice a week service each way between Chicago and Los Angeles—leaving here Tuesday and Saturday, and departing from Los Angeles on Tuesday and Friday. The El Capitans are two of thirteen streamlined trains being added to the Santa Fe's transcontinental fleet this spring.

U. S., BRITAIN URGED TO UNITE ON TRADE ILLS

A plea for coöperation between the people of the United States and Great Britain in a move toward a better world economy was voiced yesterday at the midwinter meeting of the financial section of the American Life convention. More than 200 life insurance executives of the United States and Canada attended the one day meeting, which was held in the Palmer house.

The request for coöperation was made in an address prepared by G. Robley Mackay, assistant treasurer of the Sun Life Assurance company of Canada, and read in his absence by Alex Cunningham, chairman of the convention. Mackay had become ill in New York.

"As we make our investment plans and attempt to gaze a few years ahead, we cannot overlook the troubled world situation and the drift in rearmament," Mackay asserted. "There is not a security in United States or Canadian vaults which will not be affected if world peace is broken. It is to be hoped that a step in the right direction through the consummation of an important trade treaty will be taken by the governments of the United States and the British commonwealth of nations in 1938."

LONDON STOCK MARKET FIRM; TRADING LIGHT

Gains Are Made by American Issues.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—London stock market was firm today, but trading volume was small as dealers and the public awaited a clearing of the involved international situation.

American issues made gains varying from fractions to as much as 3 points, reflecting to a great extent the rise in New York yesterday. Closing prices on international stocks were approximately equivalent to closing prices on the New York Stock exchange Monday.

Pound Gains on Dollar.

The dollar declined ¼ cent in term of the pound, but gained slightly over the franc in Paris. Closing exchange rates were $5.01¼ for the pound and 3.268 cents to the franc, compared with the New York overnight rates of $5.01⅞ and 3.28⅛, respectively.

British industrial stocks generally were higher, with iron, steel, and motor shares leading the advance. A rise in oil and gold shares had a steadying effect on South African issues. Rubber shares were firm.

Comparative Prices.

Paris Bourse Stronger.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Industrial and international issues were stronger today in the bourse. Some profit taking checked the advance, but most of the list finished above yesterday.

Montreal Market Quiet.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The stock market was quiet today, utilities and rails were slightly firmer but there was little trading. Mining shares were irregularly higher.

EXCHANGE BOARD MAY GET REFORM PROGRAM TODAY

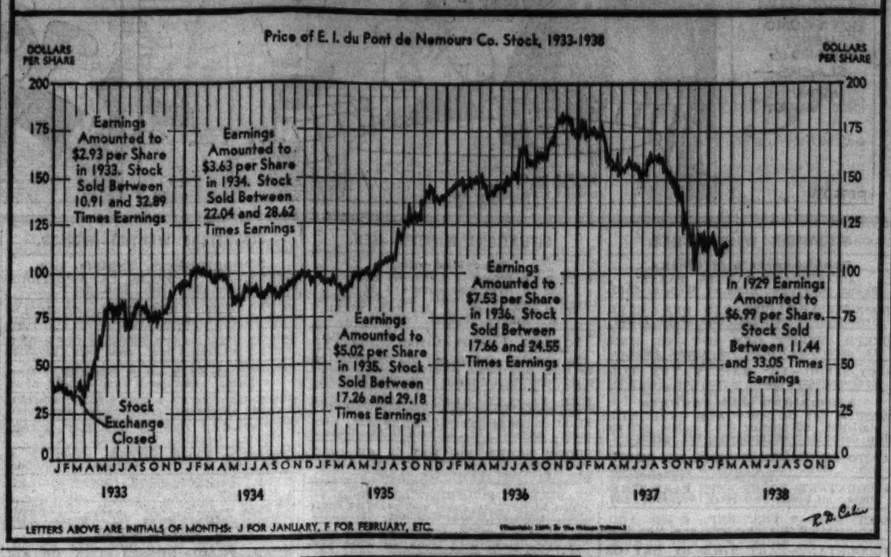
New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Constitutional amendments to pave the way for a paid president of the New York Stock exchange, as well as a reduction of the number of exchange governors to 32, will be submitted to the governors tomorrow by a special committee headed by E. H. H. Simmons, a former exchange president, it was reported today.

If not opposed by the membership—and opposition is considered unlikely—the amendments are expected to become a part of the exchange's constitution by the middle of next month.

Financial circles heard the present governors would resign in a body to expedite reorganization changes, and that a new slate of governors would be prepared and presented to the membership for vote at the May election.

Exchange officials say no candidate has been chosen for the presidency, a post which is expected to pay between $75,000 and $100,000.

How the Price of E. I. du Pont de Nemours Stock Has Fluctuated During the Last Five Years



Wheat Prices at Winnipeg Close Higher

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—An unexpected rally at Liverpool, strength in overseas commodity markets and rumors of political tension in Rumania stimulated a rise in Winnipeg wheat prices today which erased early losses. Final quotations were 1¼ cents to ⅞ cent higher with the May quoted at $1.28½ bid. Export business was estimated around 150,000 bushels.

The local market lacked any lead from Chicago, which was closed for a national holiday, and southern developments had little feature from a market standpoint, with precipitation in the winter wheat belt overnight confined to light snow in Kansas and Oklahoma.

Liverpool Weak Early.

Liverpool's early action was disappointing and prompted commission house selling with eastern and southern houses credited with light pressure in May delivery. However, scattered seaboard support was uncovered on the fractional recession and values rallied impressively when Liverpool turned sharply up at the close.

Liverpool gave an erratic display, opening ⅜ pence down to unchanged, but rallied briskly in the late trade to close 1⅛ pence to ⅞ pence higher. The opening weakness was said to have been due to Russian inquiry for freight with this factor offsetting Monday's late strength on North American markets.

Everyday Economics

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

Chicago Board of Trade.

Records show that Chicago's first formal trade in grain was made in 1838, just 100 years ago. The transaction was destined to start Chicago, then a little village noted chiefly for the deep mud of its few streets, to leadership among grain markets. It involved only seventy-eight bushels of wheat.

Strategically located at the end of Lake Michigan, the natural terminus for the coming railroads, and placed near major grain growing areas, Chicago gained prominence rapidly. In 1839 its first wheat cargo, 1,678 bushels, was shipped by boat to Black Rock, New York. By 1841 Chicago had become the grain market of Illinois and neighboring states.

The fact that grain could be shipped east by boat at low rates enabled Chicago merchants to pay higher prices to farmers than outlying traders, who had to figure on high hauling charges. Records show that often, when wheat was bringing only 40 cents a bushel in Peoria, Chicago merchants paid a dollar for it. Thus, farmers eagerly hauled their grain to Chicago.

The first large grain elevator was built in Chicago in 1848. The first wheat brought to the city by rail was received the same year. And, on April 3, 1848, the Chicago Board of Trade was organized with an enrollment of 82 members.

Stated objectives of the organization were: "To maintain a commercial exchange; to promote uniformity in the customs and usages of merchants; to inculcate principles of justice and equity in trade; to facilitate the speedy adjustments of business disputes; to acquire and disseminate valuable commercial and economic information; and generally to secure to its members the benefits of coöperation in the furtherance of their legitimate pursuits."

U. S. PRICE FIXING HELPS CANADIAN COAL PRODUCERS

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Coal mine operators of Alberta and Nova Scotia, already aided by dominion government subsidies, are now being helped by the United States government.

It was learned tonight the prices of Canadian bituminous coal have been advanced 25 cents a ton following application of the new American national bituminous coal commission minimum selling prices which caused an advance in the price of United States coal imported here of roughly 40 cents a ton. The Canadian dealers have been enabled to lift their own prices and at the same time enjoy a greater advantage over United States coal than a year ago.

Illinoisians Pay $88,448,077 Taxes Annually on Autos

Owners of automobiles in Illinois pay an annual tax on their vehicles of $88,448,077, according to a compilation by the Illinois Manufacturers' association made public yesterday. The average tax in 1937, including state, federal, and local levies on 1,659,750 registered motor vehicles, was $53.29, an increase of 84 per cent in the last 12 years, the association reported.

M. A. Hanna Twelve Month Net $3,048,462

The M. A. Hanna company of Cleveland, O., which through subsidiaries operates coal and iron properties and Great Lakes freighters, yesterday showed an indicated drop in earnings for the quarter ended Dec. 31, but reported an increase in profits for the year 1937 compared with 1936.

Net profit in 1937, exclusive of security transactions, was $3,048,462, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $2.36 a common share, compared with profit in the preceding year of $2,834,336, or $2.14 a share. The surtax on undistributed profits was $209,161.

Fourth Quarter Net Falls.

Indicated net profit for the fourth quarter of last year was $685,811, against $972,218 in the preceding quarter and $1,315,491 in the December, 1936, quarter.

"Unstable market conditions and increased costs," said H. M. Hanna, chairman, and G. M. Humphrey, president, in a statement to stockholders, "contributed to less satisfactory results in both anthracite and bituminous coal mining operations. The showing in other operating and sales activities compared favorably with 1936."

Illinois Officials Agree to 5 State Truck Conference

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A proposal of Wisconsin authorities that representatives of five midwestern states meet next month to discuss uniform truck laws was received favorably by Illinois officials today, although the opinion was expressed the problem could be met more effectively through the creation of legislative trafic commissions in the states. The five state meeting was proposed by Theodore Dammann, Wisconsin secretary of state.

54% More Financial Notices

IN 1937 The New York Times published 292,563 lines of financial notice advertising (dividend, redemption and meeting notices)—a greater volume than any other New York newspaper.

But linage alone does not tell the whole story. In financial notice advertising the number of notices a newspaper publishes is equally important as an indication of leadership.

In the last half of 1937 The New York Times published 2,272 financial notices, 54 per cent more than any other New York newspaper.

White House Parley to Scan Rail Policies

The first concrete development is expected to be the ruling of the interstate commerce commission on the application of the roads for an increase of 15 per cent in freight rates. This decision is expected momentarily and the best guess is that an increase somewhat less than that asked for will be granted.

Another and more important event from which far reaching results are expected is the conference which President Roosevelt will hold this coming week-end with various governmental and other agencies on the broad question of relief for the railroads.

Drastic Legislation Expected.

Out of this meeting drastic legslation is expected to result which will permit not only the scaling down of topheavy railroad capitalization to a point where fair profits will be possible, but which will permit unification of competing lines to eliminate costly duplication of service.

One of the proposals made and expected to be discussed at the White House is the creation of a special court for railroad reorganization with authority over all carriers in receivership and armed with unlimited power for arbitrary rulings.

Securities and Exchange Commissioner Jerome N. Frank originated the idea, which would mean a transfer of all reorganizations now before the I. C. C. to the new court.

Speedy Appeals Proposed.

Direct appeal to the United States Supreme court would be provided to speed procedure. The new court would be directed, under the proposal, to prepare its own reorganization plans and the government, as creditor, could present plans either through the treasury or the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Another proposal which has not been completely worked out calls for the creation of a special railroad consolidation authority. In connection there are two schools of thought with one advocating a railroad czar and the other proposing a railroad economic council with all interests represented. But the two groups are united in proposals that the council have the necessary power to compel railroad consolidations.

LITTLE BUSINESS MEETS TO START AN ORGANIZATION

Twenty-three of the small business men of Illinois who had attended the Washington conference wrangled two hours at the Hotel Sherman last night and eventually selected a committee of nine to draw up plans for further organization. The committee was instructed to formulate policies and present a slate of officers at the next meeting but no date was set for that session.

Early in the meeting opposition was raised to a proposal by C. R. Reilly, acting chairman. He said that he and eleven others had met last week and formed the Small Business Men's League of Illinois, a nonprofit corporation, and had appointed themselves as the twelve members of the board of directors. His proposal was to leave the election of officers of the new small business men's organization up to the board of twelve.

When this was opposed by some of those who had not been among the original twelve, a compromise was reached. It was decided that Reilly and R. P. Hasty, who objected to Reilly's plan, should each appoint three more members to the organization committee and the eight select the ninth. Members of the committee, besides Hasty and Reilly, are: J. L. Adams, Charles R. Cowley, Peter Kluge, A. A. Rotstein, George F. McKierman, J. L. Vitz, and J. A. Wolf.

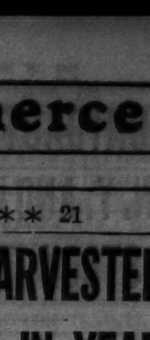
Illinois Central's Gross Operating Revenues Decline

The Illinois Central railway yesterday reported a decline of $51,429 in gross operating revenues in January, but net railway operating income increased $847,461 over January, 1937. Gross revenues for the month totaled $8,978,224 and net operating income was $1,248,167, compared with gross of $9,029,653 and net operating income of $400,706 in January a year ago.

INT'L HARVESTER PROFIT IN YEAR IS $32,493,000

10 Pct. Gain Over Preceding Period.

The International Harvester company yesterday reported net income for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1937, of $32,493,000, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $6.31 a common share. This represented an increase of a little less than 10 per cent over profits for the year ended Dec. 31, 1936, when net income amounted to $29,760,000, or $5.77 a common share. The company has changed its fiscal year to Oct. 31.



Sydney G. McAllister.

Sales for the 1937 fiscal year totaled $351,928,000, an increase of 38 per cent over 1936 sales of $254,934,000. Sales in the United States increased from $196,152,000 to $270,254,000, and those in foreign countries rose from $58,782,000 to $81,674,000.

Profit Percentage Is Less.

"The percentage of profit to sales proceeds was less in 1937 than in 1936," said Sydney G. McAllister, president, in a statement to stockholders, "due to higher wage rates, higher costs of materials, and higher taxes."

Net income from operations for 1937 was $36,343,000, before provisions for general inventory reserve and making other adjustments.

Net working capital on Oct. 31, 1937, totaled $247,17,000, against $239,863,000 a year earlier. Cash of $34,237,893 last Oct. 31, compared with $49,923,918. Inventories increased to $155,915,690 Oct. 31, 1937, from $116,829,070 a year earlier.

McAllister said higher inventories resulted from increased costs and from greatly increased production during the year, together with the necessity of forward buying to maintain continuity of operation and provide for estimated future business.

Tells Inventory Policy.

"The policy of building of the general inventory reserve during periods of price advances," said McAllister, "has been followed and $7,500,000 has been provided out of 1937 income, bringing the general inventory reserve at the end of the year to $30,000,000, which is 18.1 per cent of the total inventory."

Capital expenditures in the 1937 fiscal year amounted to $15,136,000, compared with $10,005,000 for the ten months ended Oct. 31, 1936. The amount of federal, state, local, and foreign taxes was $19,400,000, in addition to $3,046,000 for social security levies.

During the year the company paid, in addition to regular preferred dividends at the annual rate of 7 per cent, quarterly dividends of 62½ cents a common share, and a final common dividend of $1.50 a share on Oct. 15, bringing total common payments to $4 a share for the year.

Discusses the Outlook.

In commenting on the outlook, McAllister said:

"Production schedules for some time after the end of each fiscal year must be based largely on estimates of spring demand, which this year involve more than the usual uncertainties. The company continued production on a five day week schedule until Dec. 15. Since that date most departments have been reduced to a four day week schedule. If shipping demand warants, the schedules can be increased later to meet the requirements."

CONTRASTS MARK N. Y. AND LONDON STOCK TRADING

Jelke also urged the New York exchange to encourage small but well managed companies to list their securities. "London," he said, "has not erected a barrier against small companies by means of exorbitant listing costs."

In the matter of listing, or accepting securties for trading, the New York market has long held to the theory that it should restrict itself to issues large enough, and so widely distributed, as to make for ready dealings. Some point out that corporate practices in England are pretty rigidly regulated by the British companies act, so the London market has not had to be so careful about accepting issues for trading.

Tradition Viewed as Factor.

Wall streeters who have chafed under SEC restrictions have looked with envy upon the comparative absence of legal regulation of the London market. Londoners, on the other hand, have long boasted of the comparative absence of manipulation there, asserting that regulation was unnecessary.

Many in Wall street feel that perhaps the best features of London are results of practices built up through many years of experience, practices based on tradition, and thus not readily exportable.

The slower tempo, they say, results in less sharp fluctuations. Trading for a quick turn is not the popular sport it has been here. Nor do traders hang over the ticker, or sit breathless before quotation boards. Trading is believed to be more largely of an investment, or at least semi-investment character.

But Wall streeters assert that London is by no means perfect, and point to the long train of financial scandals from the South sea bubble to the Hatry affair of 1929.

Cream of Wheat Corporation.

Investors' Guide: Will you please send me a report on the Cream of Wheat corporation?—L. B.

Answer: The Cream of Wheat corporation, Minneapolis, Minn., is engaged solely in the manufacture of a breakfast cereal known as "Cream of Wheat." Widespread demand for the product has been built up and maintained as a result of extensive advertising.

Fairly stable earnings have characterized the company's record and a strong current position has been maintained despite a liberal dividend policy. Wheat is a major element in the company's costs.

Net income for 1937 declined to $1,203,000, or $2 a share, from $1,402,000, or $2.34 a share, in 1936. Indicated net income in the December quarter of 1937 was $353,984, against $531,054 in the corresponding 1936 period.

For 1935 net income was at a ten year low of $1,193,000, or $1.99 a share. Net income was $1,357,000, or $2.26 a share, in 1934; $1,290,000, or $2.15 a share, in 1933; $1,501,000, or $2.50 a share, in 1932. Record net income was in 1929 when earnings reached $1,882,000, or $3.13 a share.

Sole capitalization consists of 600,000 shares of no par capital stock, held in a voting trust which expires in 1939. Dividends at the rate of $2 a share have been paid annually since 1930. There is no funded debt.

C. & O. 3½s of 1996.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate information regarding Chesapeake and Ohio 3½ per cent bonds of 1996.—Mrs. H. P. G.

Answer: Although the Chesapeake and Ohio 3½ per cent refunding and improvement bonds of 1996 are mostly secured by junior mortgages on the system's property, they are accorded a high investment rating because of the road's ability to cover interest requirements by ample margins in periods of poor business conditions. They are secured, along with the refunding and improvement 4½s of 1996 and 3½s of 1938, by a first lien on 715 miles of track, a second mortgage on 720 miles, third mortgage on more than 1,000 miles, and a fourth mortgage on 240 miles.

Answer: This corporation was reorganized in 1932 as the Northwestern Pennsylvania Gas corporation, Kane, Pa.
